Generation No. 2

2. GEORGE HERBERT<sup>2</sup> RANDALL (WILLIAM<sup>1</sup>)<sup>2,3,4</sup> was born Bet. 23 May 1845 - 1860 in London, England<sup>5,6,7</sup>, and died 26 February 1926 in 701 Water St, Watertown, NY<sup>8,9</sup>. He married (1) MARGARET KERNS<sup>10</sup> 10 July 1873 in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, Ontario<sup>11</sup>, daughter of HUGH KERNS and ANNA CONNELL. She died Unknown. He married (2) ELIZABETH KERNS<sup>12,13,14</sup> 22 October 1878 in Kingston, Ontario<sup>15,16,17</sup>, daughter of HUGH KERNS and ANNA CONNELL. Notes for GEORGE HERBERT RANDALL:

Orphaned as a young child.

Into whose care he was handed, we do not know at this time. Perhaps he had other family, perhaps he became an inmate in one of the Dickensian orphanages. In any case, according to his obituary, he emigrated to Canada when he was a young man, and married Margaret Kearns, daughter of Hugh and Anna Connell Kearns. She died young and George then married her sister, Elizabeth. George and Elizabeth lived in various places in eastern Ontario, settling in the city of Kingston, where George worked for the Kingston Gas Company, which provided illuminating and cooking gas for the City of Kingston.

In the early part of the twentieth century, a large number of Canadians migrated to the United States. Many Kingstonians migrated to Watertown, where many flourishing factories and paper mills were located. Several of George & Elizabeth's children moved there, and in about 1903, George and his wife moved to Water Street, in Watertown. He was about 55 years old at the time. Although retired, George found work at the Bagley & Sewell Company, around the corner on Pearl Street. Elizabeth was a practical nurse and attended births and deaths and serious illnesses in the community. Also living in Watertown at the time were adult children Herbert, Ella, Mary, John, and Ernest, while sons Kenneth, William, and Harold and daughters Margaret and Sarah remained in Canada. One son, (Hugh) Alfred had died in Kingston in 1896, at the age of 17.

Besides the death of Alfred, the family endured other tragedies. In 1910, Grand-daughter Maggie, daughter of Herbert and Elsie, died at the age of 2. Then, in January 1919, Herbert and Elsie themselves both succumbed, twenty-four hours apart, during the great Influenza pandemic which swept the world and killed millions.

Marguerite:

Thank you for this.

This is the first documentation I have seen for this marriage, and the first time I have seen parents named for George.

Margaret Curran aka Margaret Kerns was the daughter of Hugh and Anna Connell

Kerns. She and George were the parents of a son, William. Margaret died at a young age, and George then married her sister Elizabeth Kerns. They were the parents of 12 children, including my wife's grandfather, Herbert George Randall, and Kenneth Fenwick Randall, who played on the very first NHL Stanley Cup Champion Toronto Blue Shirts.

George was an employee of the Kingston Gas works until moving to Watertown NY in about 1905 with several of his married children. He died 26 February 1926 in Watertown and is buried in Cataraqui Cemetery, Kingston, along with his wife Elizabeth, who died in Watertown 14 August 1940.

Did the two brothers never see each other again? That's so sad! If I see anything else that might be helpful I'll send it along.

Home Children:

Beginning in about 1868, religious and charitable organizations in England began a program of forced emigration, sending orphans and homeless children to Canada, Australia, and other parts of the British Empire, where theoretically, at least, they would be adopted.

Approximately 100,000 children were sent to Canada by this method.

The results ranged from very successful to tragic.

When Elsie married Herbert Randall, she already had three children whose father, Thomas Campbell was deceased.

The second wedding was performed by Rev C O'Mahoney Saturday evening at 8. The newly-wedded Mr and Mrs Meylor were the attendants at the this (sic) wedding, the party coming directly from the parsonage of Hope Presbyterian church to the rectory of the Sacred Heart church.

The couples will go on a short honeymoon after which they will reside at the home of Mrs. Herbert Randall, 5 Hoard street.

Notes for GEORGE HERBERT RANDALL:

George was injured in a cave-in while excavating clay 1925. He died months later from his injury (severed spinal cord) He was one of the first boy scouts in Jefferson County.

Back Broken Two Years Ago, Dies - Injured in Cave-In at Cape Vincent - George Randall Expires - In House of Good Samaritan Over Two Years During Which He Made Valiant Fight for Life - After a valiant fight of more than two years during which he had been confined to the House of the Good Samaritan with a broken back, George Randall of Glen Park, died this morning. At the time of his death, he had the record of being the patient who had been in the hospital the longest of any one now there. Although suffering from a broken back and unable to use his legs, he was able until recently to get about the corridors of the hospital in a wheel chair. Randall met his injury Aug 23, 1923, when he was buried by a cave-in at the M. G. Ferguson farm at Cape Vincent. Randal was employed by C. E. Deline of 729 Mill street, who had a contract for building tennis courts at the Barracks club, four miles south of Cape Vincent. The clay loam for the construction of the courts was being drawn from a clay bank on the Fitzgerald farm at the west end of the village of Cape Vincent. Randall, with two other employes, was engaged in loading the trucks and, having finished loading one, was sitting down awaiting the arrival of another. Randall was sitting under a projecting bank and was leaning forward so that when the large section gave way and came tumbling down, a distance of about seven feet, it struck him on the shoulders. His head was pushed forward and his back broken before the large chunk of clay broke up. Dr. H. H. Smith and Dr. W.M. Maloney, both of Cape Vincent, were called. Dr. Smith arrived on the scene first and seeing that he was seriously injured summoned an ambulance from the City hospital. In the meantime, his stepbrother, Joseph, who was driving one of the trucks for Deline arrived on the scene. The ambulance arrived and Randall was brought to the city accompanied by Dr. Smith. The portion of the bank which caved in on Randall was estimated to weigh about 300 pounds and broke his back immediately. At the hospital, no hope was held out for his complete recovery. Mr. Randall was born in Kingston, Ont. Canada, Oct. 19, 1905, son of the late Herbert and Elsie Randall and moved with his parents to this city when about one year of age. He lived here with his parents until their death in January, 1919 during the influenza epidemic which swept over the city at that time. Following the death of his parents, Mr. Randall went to live with his sister, Mrs. Leo Mylo of this city, who later moved to Glen Park, where she now resides. He is survived by three brothers, Joseph Randall, of 640 Davison street, this city, Fred (should be Kenneth) and Lyle Randall of Glen Park, and four sisters, Mrs. Hazel Mylo, and Miss Evelyn Randall of Glen Park, Mrs. Mildred Ovatt (Oviatt) of Syracuse, and Mrs. Jennie Vincent of Main avenue, this city. The body was removed this morning to the Northam and Fox undertaking parlors, and will be removed to the home of Mrs. Frank Mylo, the mother-in-law of his sister, Hazel, at 671 Thompson street, from which the funeral services will be held. Funeral arrangements remain incomplete pending the arrival of his sister, Mrs. Mildred Ovatt, of Syracuse.

Pro Hockey Player with Toronto and NY Americans.

Ken Randall was one of the original tough guys. Coined a "Hooligan" and a "Thug", Ken was not afraid of throwing his weight around with opponents or the NHL brass. The following excerpt from The Trail to the Stanley Cup Volume 1 1893 - 1926 gives a pretty good idea of Ken's all-around abilities as a player.

Among the more rugged and aggressive players who liked to combine a fair amount of jousting with their play with resultant penalties, Ken Randall stands forth as a good example.

Ken started as a centre with Brantford of the O.P.H.L. and three years later had an unsuccessful tryout with the newly organized Toronto Blueshirts.

He joined Sydney in the Maritime League and played with them against Quebec in the 1913 Stanley Cup series. He did not appear again until he joined Toronto in 1916, remaining with them for eight years. With the Arenas, later St. Patricks, he played defence most of the way with Harry Cameron, Harry Mummery, Goldie Prodggers and Red Stuart. In 1917 when Toronto did not finish the schedule, he played a few games for the Wanderers as a forward. He was on a Cup winner in 1918 when he also played right wing on a line with Corbett Dennenay and Reg Noble. During these years he was frequently in trouble for fighting and on three occasions was fined and suspended by the league president.

He was on a Cup winner again in 1922, playing defence with Cameron and also right wing on a line with Noble and Babe Dye. He was an even more chunky player than Pitre and it was remarkable the way he could hustle as a forward.

He was traded to Hamilton in 1924 where he was to be playing manager. However, Ken was not the type to be a manager and he was soon replaced by Percy Lesueur. He and Charlie Langlois became the regular defence for Hamilton and he had two of his best years with the Tigers. He was on another championship team in 1925 but when he and the boys decided to strike for extra series money, they lost their chance for the Stanley Cup.

The Hamilton franchise was transferred to New York the following year and here he finished up as a defence man.

A good slam bang player who gave his best at hockey and as a fighter, Ken Randall was on four championship teams and two Cup winners.

Following his playing career, Ken coached the Amherst Ramblers of the NSAPC to a division win in the 1931-32 season. He was let go on February 29, 1932 in what appears to be an argument over fees. The Ramblers did end up paying Ken his $500 bonus for winning the division even though it was to be awarded for winning the championship. The Ramblers went on through the first round but lost in the second round of playoffs. He also coached teams in New Haven and Kitchener. Ken was a plumber and steamfitter by trade, and worked several jobs including ones at the Silverwood Dairy, McBride's Sporting Googs and several hotels before retiring.

Ken died of a heart attack on June 14, 1947. The following is an excerpt from a Toronto daily newspaper:

"Death this morning of Ken Randall takes another of the one time Toronto greats in hockey. Ken played for the old Toronto St. Patrick professional team of the National Hockey League when Charlie Querrie was in charge. He was a defenceman and a rugged one, and formed a partnership with the speedy Harry Cameron. He was a member of the Toronto St. Patrick's when they won the Stanley Cup in 1922 and four years before that he was a member of the Toronto Arenas when they won the famous trophy.

He had been sick for about five weeks. His wife, five daughters and three sons, survive. Death took place at his home at 37 Spruce Hill Road. He was 59 years of age".

The funeral was attended by several people including former teammate and Hockey Hall of Fame inductee Babe Dye.

Ken Randall played in the National Hockey League for 10 seasons. He was a member of the Toronto Arenas (Blue Shirts) who were the NHL's first championship team in 1917-1918. He was also a member of the 1922 Toronto St Pats, who also won the Stanley Cup. He played on 4 teams: Toronto Arenas 1917-1919, Toronto St Pats 1919-1923, Hamilton Tigers 1923-1925 and New York Americans 1925-1927. He played in 217 games, scored 67 goals and 28 assists for a total of 95 points, and received 415 penalty-minutes. Following his NHL service, Ken played one season with N.F.-Hamilton of the CPHL and one season with the Providence Reds of the CAHL.

With the probable passing of Ken Randall to the minor leagues, major professional hockey will lose a decidedly colorful figure. Frequently catalogued as being one of the "bad men" of the league, Randall carried with him an assortment of scars received in active service along the active front of hockey. Likewise, he leaves behind him a few mementoes that indicate he not only struck back at his aggressors, but that he occasionally followed the salient advice of Mark Twain, and got "his blow in first". Randall has had a long career in professional hockey, dating back to the ancient Maritime Province League, which operated in the Sydneys, Halifax, and that district 15 years ago. Even in this rough, tough league, where it was no rare thing for the crowds to invade the ice, or pelt the players, Randall rated a bad hombre. He broke into the National League with that reputation, and when at the former Westmount Arena, he crashed Sprague Cleghorn into the boards and broke his doughy opponent's ankle, his reputation gained some solid basic support. Randall could take it, as well as hand it out, as he showed at the old Jubilee Rink one night, in a play-off between Canadiens and torontos. The Toronto club had a one or two goal lead over the Habitants, coming here for the final game, and it was the opinion of the Canadien strategists of that era that Toronto could be made to quit under punishment. The opening drive was directed at Randall, as per program. He was slashed across the forehead, opening an ugly gash, and sticks swung all around his face. But Randall didn't quit, as was expected. He returned to the ice, his head swathed in bandages, and his courageous display so bolstered the morale of his mates that the Blue Shirts retained their lead and took the title. Randall finished a bad second in his last fistic encounter in the Big Time, and when bad men start finishing second, the magnates start looking up trains for the minor leagues. Kenneth went to bat last spring in New York with Nelson Stewart, of the Maroons. There was an exchange of socks on the ice, and when both were shooed to the penalty cage, harsh words were forthcoming from Mr. Randall. Mr. Stewart eyed the rafters dreamily while Mr. Randall aired a set of opinions enriched by 12 of 15 years' association with professional sports' conversations, but a close observer might have noticed that the silent and preoccupied Mr. Stewart was quietly removing his padded gaunlets, which are not much use for hitting purposes. Once these were removed, Mr. Stewart unexpectedly removed his gaze from the rafters and smote Mr. Randall heavily upon the nose with his bare, hard fists. It was a painful scene, but emphatically proved that the old order changeth. A new bad man had been born and Mr. Randall, carefully holding his nose, fared sadly forth to the dressing-room. Now it looks as if he might fare sadly forth to the minors, where he is sure to star for a time, as he is a good hockey player, even if no longer a bad Bad Man. London Free Press

Subject: Re: [hockhist] Ken Randall revisited

You may recall awhile back that a gentleman by the name of Ken McAulay wrote to the list with some questions about his grandfather Ken Randall.

Myself and perhaps others have kept up a dialogue with Mr. McAuly and he has provided some additional background about his grandfather. I don't think he would mind me sharing this information with you.

It is as follows:

Ken Randall

Born Dec 14, 1888
Died June 17, 1947

The best information I can get is that Ken was born in Watertown N. Y. (yes an American) with 4 brother and 2 sisters. One of his brother was a professional prize-fighter who fought in Madison Square Gardens. One of Ken's brothers grandson, is Doug Gilmour the hockey player.

Ken left Watertown at an early age because he could not get along with his stepfather. He moved to Kingston Ont. were he played the drums in the local marching band. His sporting interests were hockey, handball, tennis and in later years golf. He moved from Kingston to Lindsay were his sister owned a pharmacy. He played hockey in Lindsay as you can see from his bio. His trade was plumbing and steam fitting.

His sons and daughters say he was a quite man, who would sit by the radio and listen to the Saturday night hockey games. The kids were told to be very quite during the games. His children also said he had a bad temper but he did not lose it very often.

-----End-----

Mr. McAulay is in the process of transcribing audio cassettes of interview with family members that can give us a side of Ken Randall that has not been shared before.

I look forward to my continuing discussions with Mr. McAulay and will pass along what I can, when I can.

Subject: More on Ken Randall

The Globe and Mail of 18 June 1947 lists his full name as Kenneth Fenwick Randall. In addition to his playing days the Globe mentions him coaching for New Haven "about 1928". The Globe also says he coached Kitchener of the Canadian-American League.

I can add that he coached the Amherst Ramblers of the Nova Scotia Amateur Hockey Association in the 1931-32 season. Randall led the team to first place and through the first round of the playoff. It was at that point that some disagreement over his contract with Amherst came up. Curiously, the Ramblers payed Randall his bonus but decided to release him before the next playoff round.

A good profile of the "Bad Man" can be found on Joe Pelletier's Hockey Over Time but I believe Michael J. Rodden had the best comment on Randall. Rodden, writing for the Kingston Whig-Standard, said:

"Few hockeyist ever skated a tougher lane than Randall did. Never considered a super-star he lingered a long time in the rocky National and he was a part of several very powerful machines. But now his race has been run and those who had turned thumbs down on him must, in deep reflection, rue their hasty and snap judgment. Ken Randall, in death, has won the biggest fight of his career."

1913 - 1914 Sydney Millionaires - Maritime Professional Hockey League

- Position: Forward

Maritime Professional Hockey League Champions

The Sydney team won MPHA championship but did not play for the Stanley Cup in 1914. There was the intention of doing so but the league ended with a tie for the lead. New Glasgow and Sydney held a two game, total goal series to name the MPHA champion. Given the deadline set by the Stanley Cup trustees, the series ended too late for a challenge.

From the Hockey Research Association web page provided by Joseph Nieforth.

"On January 28th 1914 the Halifax Crescents travelled to Sydney for a match against the Millionaires. Two weeks earlier the teams had met in a close fought contest. The game on the 28th would be just as tight with the game ending tied after three periods. The teams then went to overtime to settle the deadlock.

Ken Randall managed to break through the Halifax defence and seemed certain to net the game winner. Andy Kyle, the Halifax point, managed to get close enough to Randall that he threw his stick ahead of Ken and knocked the puck safely away. As a result the referee, J.H. Brown, blew the whistle to penalise Kyle for throwing his stick. As Kyle was heading for the box Randall started to follow the defenceman. According to witnesses Ken said something along the line that Kyle was a coward for his stick throwing. It was at this point that Kyle decided he had heard enough and swung his stick into Randall's back. The force was enough to send Randall to the ice.

It was at that point that the home crowd started to surge forward to demand justice for their star player. The police moved onto the ice at the insistence of Mayor Gunn of Sydney to remove Andy Kyle for the purpose of arresting him.

Shortly after play resumed the Millionaires scored the winning goal. Andy Kyle was taken to the town jail. He was released on bail and later fined $15 for his actions.

While the law had taken care of Andy Kyle, the league chose to look into the actions of Ken Randall. J.C. Lithgow, acting president of the MPHA, decided that Randall had instigated the assault and fined him $ 5.00. Lithgow would later write to the newspapers explaining the disciplinary actions and the position of the league on Kyle's arrest.

What the incident brought up was where league discipline ends and public law begins. As we can see by the arrest of Marty McSorley recently, that debate remains with us".

1914 - 1915 Sydney Millionaires - Eastern Professional Hockey League

Ken led the East Coast Professional Hockey League and Sydney with 11 goals in 8 games. He played as a forward.

The Maritime Professional Hockey League had broken up after the 1913-14 season over various disputes and the start of the first war. A three-team league operated for part of the 1914-15 season as the Eastern Professional Hockey League. The teams in the league were the Glace Bay Miners, New Glasgow Black Foxes and Sydney Millionaires. The Black Foxes folded on January 7, 1915 and the league disbanded February 7, 1915, no champion was declared.

Feb. 4, 1917 Ken Randall of Toronto is suspended for one game by NHA for fighting with Quebec fans Feb. 3rd.

"The 1916-17 season also produced a number of on-ice contretemps." <snip>

"Then a game between Toronto and Quebec was terminated with two minutes to play when a violent brawl broke out, and officials, even with the help of police, were unable to restore order. Quebec fans tossed chairs and bottles at the Toronto players and attacked them as they ran for their waiting train after the game. Ken Randall of Toronto was suspended for a game or two for instigating a punchout with a fan during the fracas."

The Official National Hockey League 75th Anniversary Commemorative Book (1991)
(from an article on page 11 entitled "The Making of the NHL" by Brian McFarlane)

"This season had seen Toronto in the forefront of a huge off-ice face off between the Toronto Blueshirts owner, Eddie Livingstone and the N.H.A. (National Hockey Association). The dispute culminated in Toronto being dropped from the game schedule in the second half of the 1916-1917 season and it's players being divided between the other clubs in the N.H.A. The effected players were Reg Noble who went to the Montreal Canadiens and Corb Dennenay who went to Ottawa. Quebec waived their rights to players in favour of the Wanderers, who in addition to Harry Cameron also obtained Ken Randall and Alf Skinner. All players were returned to Toronto in time for the 1917 - 1918 season."

The first National Hockey League Stanley Cup Champions

The Toronto Arenas and the Montreal Canadiens tied for league championship. In the playoffs the Arenas defeated the Canadiens to win the first NHL Championship. Toronto went on to defeat the Vancouver Millionaires of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association to become the first NHL Stanley Cup Champions. In penalty minutes he ranked 2nd with 96 behind Joe Hall's league leading 100. Ken's salary for the year was $550.00 the total payroll for the team was $6250.00.

The Toronto Arenas (The Arena Hockey Club of Toronto) so called because they were the only hockey club officially sanctioned to play in the Toronto (Mutual Street) Arena.

The O'Brien Trophy

The O'Brien was originally the NHA's championship trophy. The NHL took it on in 1917-18 and it was awarded to the first-place team until the Wales Trophy was donated. The O'Brien was retired until 1927-28, when it was earmarked for the Canadian team with the best regular-season record. (It therefore wasn't technically awarded to the first-place team in the Canadian/International Division, but the New York Americans were never a threat to win the division title.)

After the NHL dropped the two-division alignment, the O'Brien was awarded to the NHL's second-place finisher, and this was done until it was retired, for the second time, in 1950. The New York Rangers were the first U.S.-based team to win the O'Brien Trophy, in 1939

1918 - 1919 Toronto Arenas - National Hockey League

Position: Defence Sweater # 3

Hat trick: February 11, 1919 vs. Montreal Canadiens

Ken was in the starting line-up as a defenceman, paired with Harry Cameron on Jan 5, 1918 at Toronto versus the Montreal Wanderers. The game was significant because the Wanderers rink had burned down 3 days earlier forcing the team to withdraw from the NHL. The Wanderers decided not to come to Toronto to play this scheduled game and so Toronto lined up for the opening face-off, took the puck down the ice and scored on the empty net. The players then left the ice, winning 1-0 by default. It is believed that the Arenas didn't want to lose the gate receipts and took a legal precaution by playing the game. I believe it is the only time in NHL history that such a "game" has been played.

"Randall was frequently in trouble with NHL brass. One incident, in February 1918, occurred after he finished serving a one-week suspension for quarreling with officials. Just before the start of a Toronto-Ottawa match on February 23, Arena's boss Charlie Querrie was told that Randall's suspension had been lightened to a $15 fine and that he would be permitted to play, provided he settled back fines totaling $35. Of course, Randall forked over the dough, $32 in bills and the remaining three bucks in pennies. The officials turned their noses up at the copper. Randall then filled a bag with the pennies and threw it out to center ice. An Ottawa player smashed open the bag with his stick. Players from both teams had to gather up every one of the pennies, which were scattered from net to net, and Randall was forced to produce the three dollars in bills. The final score of the game was Arena's 9 - Senators 3".

From "The Globe & Mail" regarding game two of the NHL finals played March 13/18, 1919 in Montreal against the Canadiens:

"The Arenas refused to quit and that tells the whole story. For the entire first period the Canadiens hammered and battered these game youngsters. They put Ken Randall out of the game for keeps, cut Jack Adams's head to ribbons, battered Rusty Crawford from head to foot, sent Harry Mummery hobbling off halfway through the period with one leg limp from a sweeping slash, broke the teeth of goalkeeper Harry Holmes, knocked out Harry Meeking and Alf Skinner, and bumped every other opposing player on the ice - but the Arenas didn't quit."

The Toronto Arenas placed third in the league. Ken missed the last game of the season (March 6, 1919) to play in Glace Bay.

The Montreal Canadiens won the NHL Championship and played the Seattle Metropolitans of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association for the Stanley Cup. The Stanley Cup Playoffs were made up of five games all played at Seattle. The Canadiens had won one game and Seattle had won two. The fourth game was played to a tie. After 20 minutes of overtime the game was declared "no contest" by NHL President Frank Calder and not included in official records. The series was then halted by an outbreak of influenza among the players, resulting in the death of the Canadiens star Joe Hall. The Stanley Cup was not awarded for the 1918 - 1919 season.

The Toronto Arenas were reorganized as the Toronto St. Patricks in 1919 - 1920. Conn Smythe purchased the Toronto St. Patricks in 1926 -27, he changed the team's name to the Toronto Maple Leafs.

1918 - 1919 Sydney Millionaires - Maritime Independent Hockey League

During the 1918-1919 season the Arena's gave Ken permission to play for a professional team in Cape Breton if he so wished. Ken had been offered $700 to play a number games for the Sydney Millionaires. Sydney and Glace Bay had an eight game professional series during that winter, with Ken and Harry Meeking another Toronto team-mate, moving east to play. It appears Ken was given permission to play in the maritime league due to the disputes he was having in the NHL over fines. In addition there were some internal team problems within the Arenas and with the league.

1919 - 1920 Toronto St. Patricks - National Hockey League

Position: Right Wing Sweater # 3

The Toronto St. Pats placed third in the league. The Ottawa Senators defeated the Montreal Canadiens to win the NHL Championship. Ottawa went on to defeat the Seattle Metropolitans of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association to become Stanley Cup Champions.

1920 - 1921 Toronto St. Patricks - National Hockey League

National Hockey League Champions

Ken missed the first 3 games of this season due to a contract dispute. The St. Pats won the league but lost the NHL playoffs the Ottawa Senators. Ottawa then defeated the Vancouver Millionaires of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association to win the Stanley Cup.

1921 - 1922 Toronto St. Patricks - National Hockey League

National Hockey League Playoff Champions and Stanley Cup Champions

The Ottawa Senators won the league but the Toronto St. Patricks defeated the Senators to win the NHL playoffs, The St. Pats then defeated the Vancouver Millionaires of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association in a best of 5 series all games at Toronto, to become the Stanley Cup Champions.

1922 - 1923 Toronto St. Patricks - National Hockey League

Position: Right Wing Sweater # 8

The Toronto St. Pats placed third in the league. The Ottawa Senators won the league and defeated the Montreal Canadiens to win the NHL playoffs. They went on to beat the Vancouver Maroons of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association and the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada Hockey League to become Stanley Cup Champions.

In March 1923 Foster Hewitt broadcasts radio's first hockey game.

1923 - 1924 Hamilton Tigers - National Hockey League

Position: Defence Sweater # 2

On December 14, 1923 Ken was traded to Hamilton with the NHL rights to Corb Dennenay and cash for Amos Arbour, George Carey and Bert Corbeau. Ken went on to be the playing-manager for the Hamilton Tigers but since managing wasn't his forte he was soon replaced by Percy Lesueur.

The Hamilton Tigers placed fourth in the league. The Ottawa Senators won the league but lost the NHL playoff's to the Montreal Canadiens. The Canadiens went on to beat the Vancouver Maroons of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association in the semi-finals and the Calgary Tigers from the Western Canada Hockey League in the finals to win the Stanley Cup.

1924 - 1925 Hamilton Tigers - National Hockey League

Position: Defence & Right Wing Sweater: # 2

National Hockey League Champions and National Hockey League Playoff Champions

The Hamilton Tigers (formerly the Quebec Bulldogs) won the league then defeated the Toronto St. Pats to win the NHL playoffs. They were banned from taking part in the Stanley Cup playoffs because the players refused to play unless they were paid an additional $200.00 for the six games of the playoff series. The owner(s) would not pay the additional salary. The Montreal Canadiens who placed second in the NHL playoffs were selected to play the Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League. Victoria defeated Montreal and won the Stanley Cup. The Victoria Cougars were the last non NHL team to win the Stanley Cup.

The Hamilton Tigers were sold in 1925 renamed The New York Americans and moved to Madison Square Gardens. Perhaps because the player's refusal to play in the Stanley Cup.

1925 - 1926 New York Americans - National Hockey League

The Hamilton Tigers franchise and players were transferred to New York Americans after the NHL club purchased the franchise in September

Williams was commended for his devotion to duty and disregard for his personal safety in the face of the enemy. Mrs. Ella Williams, mother of Sgt. Williams, resides at 115 E. Division St.

Note: His heroic act occurred July 14, 1944. He was wounded Aug. 8, 1944, in France, and after the war was awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster to his Bronze Star for another gallant act in France.
