She was born November 12, 1875 in Nottingham, England, and died December 1946 in Essex County, New Jersey⁷¹.

Notes for ROBERT CUMMING:

Served in and was wounded in the H.L.I (Highland Light Infantry)

1878 Births in the District of Wilton in the County of Roxburgh

Robert Cumming, 1878 September fifth, 6hr,30m A.M. 1 Princes Street, Wilton, M, Father John Cumming, wool Factory worker, mother Elizabeth Cumming M.S. Fyfe, marriage date 1877 December 31st, Tillicoultry

Robert Cumming supposedly was a drinker and his two sons Johnnie and Alex threw him out of the house. Sarah was not consulted and was left destitute after Robert left. Soon after John and Alex married and moved out of the house their mother lived in. Hilda's two daughters, Margaret and Evelyn, were the charges of Sarah. Helen was also in residence at that time. Shortly before Helen married, she visited her father, Robert. The next day he was to go to Florida with a new lady friend. No contact from him after that time. Helen thinks he was headed for Lakeland, Florida. From the Family Tree of Sheila Webber.

More About ROBERT CUMMING:

Occupation: engineer's machinist

Residence: August 03, 1903, 17 Hogarth St, Parish of Sneirton, County of Nottingham, England

Notes for SARAH ELLEN DIXON:

"My recollection of my grandmother Sarah are few. She was a proper English Lady and would read the tea leaves left in the cup for us kids. She was an excellent seamstress and also could knit. I remember asking her how old she was. Her reply was "As old as my tongue, and a bit older than my teeth". We would visit her every Saturday in Bloomfield, NJ. Stop at Tim's Deli and bring home cold cuts and salads for the super. I remember two or three apartments and finally the last one was in East Orange 384 Dodd St. Sarah started to deteriorate mentally and was finally placed in the county home at Overbrook. That place was a horror. The grounds of the hospital were very park-like but the inside was just awful". From the family tree of Sheila Webber.

Notes for JAMES ROLLO MCKAY:

James joined the Royal Engineers Signal Section for a four year period. He was in France until WW I ended in 1919. He still had two years to go on his enlistment and was sent to India with the Royal Engineers and worked as a telegrapher. After his enlistment was over, he then worked as a civilian for the Egyptian State Railways and Telegraphs as a radio operator in Alexandria. He was discharged from the job and returned to Scotland to find that the whole family (except for his father and one sister, Nell) had moved to America. James was a very impatient man. He could have waited two weeks to get a permanent visa to emigrate to America, but he preferred to get on a boat to Canada right away. After landing in Canada, he was met by his brother David and the two of them rode to New Jersey on David's motorcycle. So he was an original Wet-Back. He went to work immediately and was never without a job. He was in the textile printing business and was finally made boss printer. He never applied for citizenship until FDR pardoned all the European immigrants that had been in the U. S. and married and had families. In 1946, he applied for citizenship and passed the test. His wife, Florence, also became a U. S. citizen at that time. From the family tree of Sheila Webber.
