

Descendants of Joseph Bemis

Generation No. 1

1. Joseph¹ Bemis¹ was born 1619 in Dedham, England (probably)², and died 07 Aug 1684 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts³. He married Sarah (____)⁴. She died Bef. 18 Nov 1712⁵.

Notes for Joseph Bemis:

Resided at Watertown, Massachusetts was a Blacksmith and farmer

White v. Bemis, 1679

Actions for debt between neighbors in Watertown were extremely rare. The normal procedure with slow settlers was to ask some other, influential townsmen to lean on the debtor. Such informal pressure almost always worked, which was what Anthony White decided to try on 8 June 1679.

As reported by selectman Samuel Stearns, White "asked him, Ensign [Daniel] Warren and John Stearns to go to Joseph Bemis in order to settle his debt" of £10.16.6, which went back seven years to 1672. Bemis, however, "utterly refused...he said they had reckoned formerly. He had tendered his pay two years before." According to White's daughter Mary Willard, they had indeed "made a general reckoning [on 9 October 1675] from the beginning of the world to that day." Nonetheless, White's bill included subsequent supplies of food and such services as carpentry, fencing, plowing, pasturing, and carting. Witnesses described young John White bringing a load of hay "by order of Joseph Bemis," or carrying four barrels of Bemis's cider to Boston from Robert Harrington's cider mill. There could be no doubt about the indebtedness. Why then the debtor's obduracy?

The conciliators soon discovered when they visited Bemis. He "insisted upon the wrong that he sustained from that family...there was differences between them...If there were a debt, he reckoned Anthony White owed him fifty shillings for giving information about his sons having cards." On 27 May 1670 the General Court had sadly noted that "the great sin of gambling increases among us...to the corrupting of youth." Draconian £5 fines were imposed on possessors of decks of cards or dice. Informers were given a onetime reprieve for their own involvement. This noxious tattling ordinance was one cause of the Bemis-White confrontation.

On 20 November 1677 John White had been fined £2.10.0 for possession of a deck of cards. In the following February and March a string of witnesses had testified about other cardplayers in Watertown, Sarah Hall, aged thirty-three, described how "last winter, Goodman Bemis's sons did frequently resort to our house in the evenings to play at cards though much against my will and desire for often both I and my children were deprived of the use and benefit of the fire and were often constrained to go to bed and they were so bold in it that we knew not how to restrain them." John Wayte, aged forty-eight, had no doubt about the ringleaders: "Living near Anthony White's [I] did see this winter Goodman Bemis's sons often and frequently resort to Anthony White's house and hearing a rumour of their playing at cards there, caused me to speak of it to Goodman Bemis's sons and reprove them for it, and further, till this winter I never knew or heard that John White was given or addicted to going out at night or to company-keeping." The court records also contain an abominably spelled and craven letter from John Bemis to Major Gookin, the Cambridge magistrate, bewailing that he had had the effrontery "to take away the cards out of Major Gookin's house...rashly to do such a thing not considering of the evil that was in it...please to forget and forgive...it is a warning to me for overrunning." For this self-condemnation he was let off with an admonition.

White's incrimination of the Bemis boys' cardplaying and their fining by Gookin had plainly enraged their father, but for the Whites it was far less serious than another interfamily outrage of that winter. On 14 March 1678 Joseph Bemis had to try to ingratiate himself with the General Court to seek a reduction for his son Ephraim's fearsome punishment for "trapanning and procuring [a young married woman] by his lying and false information in order to her being abused by one John Oynes [Owens?] under the name of Mr. Woodman...to the end that John Oynes might commit adultery with her." The respectable woman thus ensnared was Anthony White's daughter Mary, married in 1677 to Jacob Willard. It is easy to see why White should have decided to call in Bemis's debts.

This was not a confrontation between young hotbloods. Bemis was sixty and White seventy in 1678; both had been in Watertown nearly four decades. The court did not allow White the £10.16.6 he claimed; Bemis must pay £5.0.6 in money, £2.6.4 in country pay, and £1.11.8 in costs. It was not fifty shillings less, but a £1.17.4 discount could not but help to calm frayed nerves. Five years later, in 1684, John White married Rebecca Bemis. He was thirty-five, she thirty. They may have had to wait for the feud to subside.

Habitual restraint in neighborly relations was only broken by behavior perceived as betraying communal expectations. Two households previously conforming were thrown into conflict by breaches of trust. The sins of the younger generation were held against the older. It took years rather than months for the sense of injury to abate and normal relations to be restored.

"The History of the Bemis, Perkinson, Fay and Lawrence Families", Ted H. Bemis, 1981:

"Joseph Bemis, the American progenitor, was born in England in 1619 and came to America with his sister Mary Bemis in 1640, both settling in Watertown. Although I have not found any evidence, Draper (:2.1) feels there is strong evidence that this Joseph had a wife prior to his marriage to Sarah, even though it was Sarah who came to America with him.

He was a blacksmith and farmer by trade, and on 11/8/1647 was one of seven men chosen to order the prudential affayers of the town (Watertown). On 2/12/1649 he was fined three pounds for felling trees on the common. Fifty shillings of this was returned to him with the proviso he pay the other ten shillings and have no share in the wood or timber on the common. Joseph was granted a strip of land against the meadow to make in lunc, or fence, straight, and to pay the town what it was worth. On 1/14/1655 he was fined one shilling for a hog, disorderly.

By August of 1656, he was one of two overseers of fences and hogs (perhaps this was his easiest means of assuring that he would not again be fined for disorderly hogs! - ed.) On 1/3/1658 he was elected surveyor of highways, and a Constable on 11/4/1667. Joseph Beamis and two other men were chosen by the town on 11/2/1674 to see that all children were taught to Read the English tung (and who was the judge of that? - ed.) and the orthodox catechism, and that each man have in his home a copy of the 'Capital Laws'. He was a selectman of Watertown in 1648, 72, and 75. :1.1 states that he was a soldier in King Philip's War.

Joseph Bemis' will is as follows:

The following is found in Bond, 679 Volume II:

The estate of Joseph Bemis [1], was divided, Nov. 18, 1712, after the d. of his wid. Sarah, and it was distributed (except what had been given to "eldest son, Joseph," and dr. Martha), to the following children, viz.; Ephraim,

Mary, Rebecca and John. As the eldest child, Sarah [2] is not mentioned in this distribution, she was probably d.s.p. It appears that Joseph [3 1/2] the eldest son lived to have a share of his father's estate, but it is not known what became of him. Martha [4], was adm. f.c. by Rev. Mr. Angier, Feb. 25, 1697-9, then aged about 49, unm. Ephraim, [7 and 9] settled in Watertown, where the births of four of his children are recorded, but the account of the family is brief. He probably had other children besides those four recorded, and it is probable that his family, or some part of it, moved to Windham and Hamton, in Windham Co., Conn.

There was a suit in Mid. C. C. P., in 1714 vs. Daniel Bemis of Wat., and another suit there in 1718, viz. Samuel Bernard, of Wat., house-sarpenter, vs. Daniel Bemis, of Windham, Conn., since [formerly] of Watertown. * [See Hinman, p. 190]

Joseph Bemis and Sarah came from Ireland and lived near Warren Street. He was Selectman three times and left a large family prominent in town affairs.

Notes for Sarah (____):

The estate of Joseph Bemis [1], was divided, Nov. 18, 1712, after the d. of his wid. Sarah. Therefore I have changed her date of death to Before Nov. 18, 1712. (Steve Dahlstrom)

Children of Joseph Bemis and Sarah (____) are:

- 2 i. Sarah² Bemis⁶, born 15 Jan 1642/43 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts^{6,7,8}; died Bef. 18 Nov 1712. She married John Bigelow⁹ 02 Oct 1694 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts¹⁰; born 1617 in England¹¹; died 14 Jul 1703 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts^{11,12}.

Notes for Sarah Bemis:

In 1907, the eminent Ellery Bicknell Crane wrote:

- > Their first child, however, was born at Watertown, Massachusetts, in
- > 1642, and they may have been married in Watertown or, as the birth
- > is on the Boston records, in Boston, Massachusetts.

In the meantime, both the town and church records of Boston have been published, and there is no mention of Sarah Bemis' birth or baptism among them. Instead, the birth was found in the county court records with a notation that the birth was in Watertown.

JOHN BIGELOW, a blacksmith of Watertown, was born in England in 1617. His first wife was Mary Warren, daughter of John Warren (76A). The record of their marriage, which took place on October 30, 1642, is the earliest in the Watertown records. Mary was born in England and died at Watertown on October 19, 1691. Bigelow took the oath of fidelity in 1652, and he was selectman in 1665, 1670, and 1671. He and Mary had at least twelve children, of whom Sarah, the ninth, was born September 29, 1659, and married Isaac Learned (75). Bigelow's second wife was Sarah Bemis, whom he married on October 2, 1694. He died at Watertown on July 14, 1703, aged eighty-six, leaving an estate inventoried at £ 627.

3. Mary² Bemis (Joseph¹)²⁵ was born 10 Nov 1644 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts²⁶, and died Bef. 1730²⁷. He was born 23 Jul 1648 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts³², and died Abt. 1730 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts³².

Notes for Mary Bemis:

My Bemis line goes back to Mary Bemis who married Samuel Whitney of Watertown. I have her birth date as 10 Sep 1644.

Has anyone found conclusive proof that she was indeed the daughter of Joseph and sister of Joseph, Jr. of Watertown.

Bert Smith

I look at this the other way around. There is no doubt that Joseph and Sarah Bemis had a daughter Mary born on 1644 Nov 10 (not September), but I have not seen any record of the marriage of Samuel Whitney, so I would ask: has anyone found proof that his wife Mary was indeed a Bemis?

John Chandler

Mary's birth is recorded: "Mary Bemish the Daughter of Joseph and Sary Bemish borne ye - 10d - 9m" in the section for 1644 in additional names found upon Middlesex Co. Clerk of Court Records in Watertown Records, page 11.

BEMIS History & gen.; an acct. of the desc. of Jos. Bemis of Watertown, Mass., by T. Draper.

"Joseph Bemis 2d (I. Joseph). This son of the immigrant, the first to arrive at manhood, m. Anna-----and removed to Westminster, Mass; then called Narragansett No. 2. In 1740, his son, probably Philip, "Disposed of all right and title to the property of my honored father and mother, Joseph and Anna Bemis, to my brother Joseph and sister Mary of Cambridge." (p. 542. Hist. of Westminster Mass. by William S. Haywood.) As we know that Joseph's wife was Anna, and that he went to Westminster to live, it proves that he was the son of Joseph Bemis the immigrant. The records of the town of Westminster and Watertown do not furnish any data of an intervening generation, and the author therefor assumes there was none. Joseph Bemis, or Bemish so spelt, was a soldier in King Phillips War as evidenced from the following entries in Bodge "Soldiers in King Phillips War" p. 176. Joseph Bemish credited under Capt. James Oliver, for services Mar. 24, 1675-6. £2. 14s. p. 376. The same soldier received £2. s10. p. 147. Under a list of the Grantees of Narragansett No. 2, now Westminster, Mass, appears Joseph Beames, deceased, claimed by his son Joseph Beames. Grant made about Oct, 17, 1733. In 1700, the son of the Narragansett settler, Joseph 3d was aided by a contribution "having had his substance consumed by fire."

The previous date of death is wrong, and from that, many problems have sprung..... what follows is correct; to the best of my knowledge.....

Joseph Bemis [Joseph of Watertown] born 1651, husbandman, sold land to Jonathan Robinson in 1709, contribution for 11 Nov 1700, (487), married Elizabeth Pierce 15 Oct. 1706, b. Watertown. [This was probably a second marriage for him. I have no record of children from this marriage.]

He probably had other children besides those four recorded, and it is probable that his family, or some part of it, moved to Windham and Hampton, in Windham Co., Conn."

[Draper:5] Living in 1738 in Windham Ct.

[Draper:34-5] "They settled in Watertown, Mass, where the births of four of their children are recorded: there were probably several others, but as the family removed subsequently to Windham and Hampton, in Windham County, Conn., the younger children were probably born in the latter places of settlement. The Records of Watertown give very meager accounts of this branch.

Ephraim Bemis was a private in Capt. Joseph Sylls Company, in King Phillips War, and, (NEHGR:1889:43:263] received for his services in that campaign on Dec. 20, 1675. £3. 8sh. 4d. and on June 24, 1676. £3. sh. 5. on Aug. 24, 1676. £3. sh. 5. In Bodes "Soldiers in King Phillip's War" p. 360 he is named as of the garrison of Groton two of the above payments are mentioned as well as an additional one on Jan. 25, 1675-6 of sh. 12 on p. 376. He and Joseph Bemis are mentioned as soldiers from Watertown, giving the amounts paid them. In a list of Grantees of Narragansett Twship No. 4, confirmed by the Court Jan. 13, 1738, Ephraim Bemis received his assignment for services in King Phillip's War. He is mentioned as being alive at Windham, Ct. This Twship No. 4, is now Greenwich, Mass."

[Draper:36] "The author (Draper) has been entirely unsuccessful in obtaining absolute proof of the parentage of 384, 385, and 386 (Daniel, James and Ephraim), but is fully convinced that they were the sons of Ephraim and Elizabeth who were born in Watertown. All accounts agree that the Windham County Conn. Bemis's were from there; and, as the date perfectly agree, of removal and settlement, it is a fair and honest assumption that the line of descent is correct.

Of James (385) there is a Windham Record, that on Jan. 29, 1731. Nathaniel Bemis and his wife Abigail Hovey were summoned before the church to testify against James Bemis for "hard drinking."

The following passages concerning "Church History of Ashford, Connecticut," reflect upon Ephraim and some of his activities:

"The discipline of the church was preserved with very much of the mint-tithing exactness which was characteristic of the period, while much liberality was exercised with regard to some matters which are now considered as of great practical importance. For example, on one occasion Ephraim Bemis was charged with selling strong liquor in small quantities upon a certain occasion, and the question was raised as to whether he was guilty of a "confessable fault" in so doing, but the church decided in the negative."

and later in the same section,

"The methods and action of these Baptists and Separatists were very offensive to the strict church people, and the preaching of Solomon Paine especially was so obnoxious that efforts were made to stop him by legal process. February 15th, 1745, while Paine was preaching in a private house, complaint was made to justice Tiffany, who, upon searching his legal authority, was clearly convinced "that it was an unlawful meeting for Paine to come to Ashford to preach and exhort," and thereupon granted a warrant for his arrest. Constable Bemis went to the house to serve it. Taking hold of Paine he told him that he had no right to preach, and that he must go before the justice to answer for his unlawful preaching. Paine vehemently stigmatized the law as being suggested by the Devil, and refused to respect it or obey the summons. Bemis then called upon several persons. to assist him, who at first refused, but when reminded that the law had a penalty for such refusal, they " gently took Paine from the stage whereon he was preaching, and carried him out of the door and set him down." But Paine stubbornly refused to go before the justice, whereupon "they took him in a very gentle way and set him on a horse and led him to justice Tiffany's," where he was appropriately rebuked and then dismissed. The arresting party was afterward indicted for a riot, in which the charge set forth "that with riotous intent and with force and arms they did assault the person of said Solomon Paine, and pulled him onto the floor and carried him half a mile distant, to his great hurt and abuse and the disturbance of others." The county court acquitted them, but adjudged that they should pay costs, but on their appeal to the general assembly, this charge was also remitted."

Upon the memorial of John Smith, Ephraim Bemis and Edward Tiffany, of Ashford in the county of Windham, praying to this Assembly that they may be released from paying a large bill of cost taxed against them. (viz:) £33 17s. 4d. old tenour, by the county court held at Windham within and for the county of Windham on the 4th Tuesday of August last past, by adjournment, on an information at said county court preferred against the memorialists for a riot: Resolved by this Assembly, that the said Smith, Bemis and Tiffany be, and are hereby, released and discharged from paying the said sum of £33 17s. 4d. taxed against them by said county court.

Notes for John Bemis:
[Tower:V1:41]

John Bemis, Father of Samuel.

John, the ninth child of Joseph, was a farmer. He married Mary Harrington in 1680 and lived at Watertown. So far as his relation to town affairs and general usefulness are known, he appears to have maintained the same relative standing in the community achieved by his father and belong to what is usually called the well-to-do middle-class. He was at different times corporal, selectman, tighingman, school committee, "Sarvayar of Rhods," besides rendering service on special town committees. At a town meeting held in 17 05 it was voted " that the town doe nominate, appoint and Impower John Bemus, Sr., John Hastings, Sr., and Daniel Harrington, Sr., to locke ought sum convenient place to keep the gramer schoole for the second quarter sum where neere where it was kept for the middle of the town last." In 1707 it was ordered at a town meeting "that Netl Bright and murings Sawin take Present caer of one Sarah Honey for her entertainment and also to Desire Doct. Palsgrave Wellington to locke after her wounds, and John Bemis was ordered to forthwith make inquiry how long she had been in town and report at next meeting."

John Bemis was the father of fourteen children and lived to the age of seventy-three years. Samuel, the sixth child, was born in 1690. At the age of twenty-six he married Sarah, daughter of John Barnard of Sudbury, by whom he had two children, Samuel Jr. and Edmund while living at Watertown.

On 26 April 1701, he sold to John Sherman, for £56, ½ of ¼ of Alcock's farm in Marlborough, of 900 acres; and on 6 April 1702, he, with his son-in-law, Daniel Child, bought of Nathaniel Saltonstall, Fellow of Harvard College, 160 acres of land in Watertown, the 30th lot, first granted to Sir Richard Saltonstall. [Weis:19]

Ap. 26, 1701, for £56, he sold to John Sherman, ½ of ¼ of Alcock's farm, in Marlboro, of 900 acres. Ap. 6, 1702, he, with his son-in-law, Daniel Child, bought of Nathaniel Saltonstall, Fellow of Harv. Coll., 160 acres of

Notes for Abigail Bemis:

[NEGHR:1880:34:203] "Notes and Queries"

WINDHAM, CANADA.--In Dr. Bond's Watertown, page 396, it is stated that Stephen Pierce and Abigail Bemis were "dismissed to 'Windham Canada,' Feb. 5, 1732." Page 871, they were "dismissed from Waltham church to Windham Village alias Canada."

Can any one tell me where this place was? What town is it now? It is not Windham, Conn., as the names are not found in the records, either church or town, there.

Frederick C. Pierce.

Barre, Mass., Feb. 7, 1880

NEGHR:1881:35:90] "Notes and Queries"

WINDHAM, CANADA.--In the Register for April, 1880 (vol. xxxiv. p. 203), F. C. Pierce inquires where Windham village, alias "Canada," was located. The manual of the old Congregational Church in Windham, Ct. (formed Dec. 10, 1700), and printed in Norwich in 1860, now before me, says: "In 1723, a Colony of over sixty members was dismissed to form a church at 'Canada,' now Hampton." Does not this fact settle this question? But further: in this manual a list of more than 1280 names are printed, and among them occur those of Elizabeth and Ruth Bemis (Nos. 224 and 374), who went from the Windham to form this Hampton church. This may account for the dismissal of "Stephen Pierce and wife Abigail Bemis to Windham Canada"--as some of her kindred already may have lived there in 1732.

Notes for Ephraim Bemis:

"The Bemis History and Genealogy" by Colonel Thomas Waln-Morgan Draper, 1900, published San Francisco, California, copies in the Library of Congress

"There is not much to be said of Ephraim Bemis, because little is known. He resided in Ashford, and the church records of that town state; "at one time (1728) in Ashford Church, discipline was so strict, yet with all this, when it was put to a vote of the Association, whether Ephraim Bemis was guilty of a confessable fault in selling strong liquor, in small quantities, on a certain occasion, the church decided in the negative.

The rigid church party in Ashford were very bitter against the Baptists and Separatists, and the preaching of Solomon Paine was especially obnoxious, so that on Feb. 15, 1745, Justice Tiffany gave a warrant to Constable Ephraim Bemis to arrest Paine, who resisted; whereupon he was forcibly placed on a horse and conducted to the Justices where he was properly rebuked, and apparently dismissed. Constable Bemis and his assistants had been very forbearing and gentle with the Exhorter Paine, but in spite of that, they were themselves indicted for riot, but on trial, declared not guilty, yet had the costs to pay, which later were also remitted.

Ephraim Bemis was baptized, as an adult, at the same time as his son James, namely Sept. 29, 1737."

Notes for Samuel Bemis:

[NEHGR:1964:118:183] "Identity of Phebe, Wife of Joseph Bowman"

The following describes the involvement of Samuel Bemis in the affairs of the estate of James Barnard:

"The papers in the packet of the estate of James Barnard of Sudbury (Middlesex County Probate #1062) further confirm the relationship. Paper No. 1 is a "rough" inventory, taken "by us the subscribers 25 February 1717/18, as it was shown to us by Benjamin Barnard and Sam'l Bemis and his wife, Lt. Col. Edward Goffe, Capt. Nath'l Bowman and Capt. Joseph Bowman being present." (This inventory was a meager one, showing personal property of £8:17:6. Later inventories showed real estate of £654:6:6.) "We also took some pages into our hands: viz. 1 mortgage deed of George Harrington, 2 bonds from Col. Goffe and a bond of William and Peter Jenison." Jona Bond, Moses Boardman, John Noyes sign. Appended to the inventory are some lines written by F. Foxcroft, Judge of Probate, difficult to decipher, but seemingly as follows:

"The above James Barnard died at his kinsman James Barnard's house at Watertown...and by the consent of the principal kinsman I impowered the 3 Gent. above to ride up and take an inventory...Justice Bond delivered to me £8:17:6 bills of credit and the bonds above mentioned and told me he left the rest of the goods to Mrs. Sarah, wife of Sam'l Bemis, as I ordered... F. Foxcroft, J. Probate."

Those present at the taking of the inventory were evidently some of the principal kinsman, Benjamin Barnard, a nephew, and the husbands of four nieces--Samuel Bemis, Edward Goffe, Nathaniel and Joseph Bowman."

[Bond:22] "m., Ap. 12, 1716 SARAH BARNARD. They settled first in Sudbury, and, in 1721, moved to Spencer, and he was the second settler in that town, where he d. Aug., 1776, and she d. Sept. 30, 1756. [For interesting information respecting him and his chil., see Draper's History of Spencer, 105-9]"

[James Draper, History of Spencer:1-2] "BEMIS SAMUEL, came from Watertown, 1721, and was the second settler in Spencer. He was born in 1688, was m. to Sarah Barnard of Sudbury. He was doubtless, a descendant of Joseph Bemis, who came from England to Watertown, in 1640, and was probably the ancestor of all who bear that name in this part of New England. He purchased 400 acres of the easterly part of lots (29) and (36). He commenced felling the ancient forest, which covered his farm, before he removed his family here. At that time the Indians had not all retired from this part of the country, and some of them frequently came into his cabin and tarried with him through the night, but their presence was very offensive to him. In 1722, when his wife was about to give birth to her third son (William), fearing the Indians, she made a journey to Sudbury, for safety during that critical period, and when her little son was only two weeks old, she rode home on horseback, a distance of nearly fifty miles in one day, and carried her infant son in her arms, although the greatest part of the distance the road, such as it was, passed through an entire wilderness! He acquired a handsome estate, and built the first frame house in town, a building of two stories, which stood on the site of the present house of Mr. Robinson, and was taken down a few years since. His wife Sarah died September 30, 1756. His children were Samuel, b. May 1716; Edmund, Nov. 1, 1720; William, Nov. 1, 1722; Nathaniel, 1725; Sarah, Dec. 12, 1727; Joshua, July 14, 1729; Elizabeth, 1732; Jonas, March 25, 1737. The following is the inscription on his tomb stone.

'In memory of Mr. Samuel Bemis, one of the first settlers of the town, who died August 1776, in his 84th year.

Where nothing dwelt but beasts of prey,
Or men as fierce and wild as they,
Our kind forefathers did repair,
And built us towns and cities there.'

[Draper:123] They resided for a time in Sherborn. Samuel Bemis was the second settler of Spencer, Mass., going ther from Wat. in 1721. He purchased 400 acres of land, and began at once to fell the timber, with which the land was covered, before bringing his family from Wat. At that time, the Indians were still numerous in that section, and they frequently came to his house and tarried the night, but their presence was most offensive to him. In 1722, when his wife was about to give birth to his third child, William, fearing the Indians, she made a journey to Sudbury for safety during the critical period, and when her little son was only two weeks old, she rode home on horseback, a distance of fifty miles in one day, carrying her infant in her arms, the road passing through an entire wilderness.

Mr. Bemis acquired a handsome estate, build the first frame house in Spencer, a building of two stories, which stood for over one hundred and twenty-five years, and was then taken down. The following is the inscription on his tombstone:

'In memory of Mr. Samuel Bemis, one of the First settlers of the Town, who died August 1776, in his 84th year.

Where nothing dwelt but beasts of prey,
Or men as fierce and wild as they,
Our kind forefathers did repair,
And built us towns and cities there.'

His wife, Sarah Barnard, came from English ancestry. She was born at Watertown, January 25, 1694, and died at Spencer, September 30, 1755, proceeding him 20 years. Her father, grandfather and great grandfather Barnard were named John. 46. Phillip⁴ Bemis (Joseph³, Joseph², Joseph¹)^{330,331} was born 21 Nov 1700 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts, and died Aft. 1782. He married Elizabeth Lawrence^{332,333} 21 Nov 1723 in Cambridge, Middlesex, Massachusetts^{334,335}. She was born 13 Nov 1701 in Cambridge, Middlesex, Massachusetts, and died Aft. 1782.

Notes for Phillip Bemis:

[Historical Sketch of the Town of Troy, New Hampshire, and Her Inhabitants...1764-1897, by M. T. Stone, M. D., Press of Sentinel Printing Company, Keene, N. H.]

Philip Bemis, perhaps grandson of Joseph, who settled in Watertown, Mass., in 1640, was in Cambridge in 1723, and married, Nov. 21, 1723, Elizabeth Lawrence. In 1738 he moved to Westminster, Mass., being the third settler in that township. He had six children, all born in Cambridge. The date of their birth is not recorded but the church records give the date of baptism as follows:

- I. Philip, Nov. 13, 1726.
- II. William, Nov. 13, 1726.
- III. David, July 30, 1727.
- IV. Abigail, July 25, 1731.

V. Edmund, Oct. 22, 1732.
VI. Zacheus, July 25, 1736; married Elizabeth Lyon, and settled in Westminster.

The History of Ashburnham, Massachusetts indicates that Philip Bemis was probably the son of Joseph. Other records, including the logic of birth dates (the elder Joseph was born about 1619, and his son, Joseph Jr., was born in 1651, and Philip was born about 1700) would indicate that Philip was more likely the son of Joseph Bemis, Jr.

Philip lived in Cambridge from 1723 to 1738. He was married in 1738 and moved to Westminster, where he and his wife were the third settlers. He was considered to be a man of influence and character.

"The Bemis History and Genealogy" by Colonel Thomas Waln-Morgan Draper, 1900, published San Francisco, California, copies in the Library of Congress, p6:

"...m. Nov 21, 1723. Elizabeth Lawrence. They settled down in Westminster in 1738, and he was the third permanent settler in that town. They had probably previously lived in Cambridge. Phillip was a plain, substantial and much respected citizen, though he held no office. The exact dates of death of his wife and self, are not known, though he was living in 1782. He had in his family a waif or orphan boy named Daniel Munjoy."

The Vital Records for Cambridge [Vol. 2, p. 236] show the following marriage under Lawrence:
"Eliza[beth] and Phillip Beemus, Nov. 21, 1723" (intention not recorded)

Notes for Jotham Bemus:

[Bond:680] *It is conjectured that the following Bemis family are descended from Ephraim Bemis.

Jotham Bemis, Jr., and wife Tryphema, from Connecticut, settled early in Saratoga, Saratoga County, N.Y., on the margin of Hudson River, and on the road leading from Albany to Skenesborough (now Whitehall). He kept a public house, which was the only one of note between those two places. The high ground, rising in the rear or on the west side of his house, and known as Bemis Heights, has acquired an historical celebrity, as the place where the battle fought, which resulted in the capture of Gen. Burgoyne and his army. Gen. Gates occupied the house of Mr. Bemis, as his headquarters, until after the battle of Sept. 19, 1777, when it was occupied by Gen. Lincoln and Gen. Gates removed his headquarters to the house of Captain Ephraim Woodworth, on the Heights.

Mr. Bemis has 5 children. 1. Jonathan. 2. William, who moved from that town. 3. John, who settled on the homestead, but moved to the town of Saratoga Springs, where he and his wife both d. about 1828, s.p. 4. Sally, m. -----Crawford, and is now, 1853, living at Saratoga Springs, aged 85. 5. Nancy.

[Draper:37-40]: "(This Branch of the family write the name Bemus, substituting the 'u' for the 'i'; and I shall write the name as they do whilst treating of them, although believing it to be a corruption of the name, just as I believe that the name originally in England was Bemish. Author's Note.)

For the data on this Branch, I am almost wholly indebted to Captain Daniel Hazeltine Post of Jamestown, N.Y., who being a descendant himself took a great interest in the matter; In June 1894, he published a most interesting genealogical pamphlet entitled "Jotham Bemus of Bemus Heights;" and which with Capt. Post's permission I make the basis of what follows, as to the descendants of Jotham Bemus.

JOTHAM BEMUS OF BEMUS'S HEIGHTS

By Daniel Hazeltine Post

[Privately Printed]

Considerable interest naturally attaches to the family which owned and occupied the ground chosen by General Gates, on the advice of Count Kosciusko, for the American defensive works against Burgoyne's onward march in 1777; in view of the fact that the family name became forever associated with the important battles fought in the vicinity, and that members of the family took part in them upon the American side, literally defending their home and fireside. There is a considerable amount of information in regard to this family existing, but scattered through various volumes and never before collected together in a single article it has been of little use to the historical reader or to the descendants of the original settlers. To briefly give a summary of this information is the object of this sketch.

At the time of the Burgoyne campaign there was living upon the bank of the Hudson, about four miles north of the village of Stillwater, Jotham Bemus and his family, which consisted of his wife and six children. Bemus was a farmer, energetic and enterprising, engaging in buying cattle and in other traffic and evidently a man in easy circumstances. He kept the only tavern of any note between Albany and Fort Edward, as Lossing relates in his Field Book of the Revolution, volume I, page 45, and was well known through the region. According to the English Manuscripts in the State Library, page 827, he was in 1774 a justice of the peace. He was born about 1738 and consequently was about 40 years of age at the time of the Bugoyne campaign. He is described as of stout build and of a vigorous and determined character. From Charles Neilson's account of Burgoyne's campaign, published in 1844, it is learned at page 289 that Bemus's house was the only frame dwelling included within the limits of the military operations at the Heights.

DERIVATION OF THE FAMILY

At the time of the battles, the family had been residents of the vicinity for at least 17 years, for the Calendar of Land Papers in the State Library, 164, Sept. 9, 1763, page 325, records that in 1759 the families of Bemus, Griffith and Park were occupying land in this region. There is a strong probability that these families came to this region from Norwich, Conn. Jeremiah Griffith, who afterwards settled in Chautauqua county, was born in Norwich in July, 1758, went to Rensselaer county from which he emigrated to Chautauqua county (See Young's History of Chautauqua County, pp. 315-323.) In Hurd's History of New London County, 1882, among the inhabitants of New London in 1651 occur the names of Bemus and Park. Jotham Bemus, the subject of this sketch was married to Tryphena Moore, and the History of New London County gives the names of a family of Moores as living in that county previous to 1689. These facts indicate strongly that the Bemus family came to Saratoga from near Norwich, Conn., and this is further corroborated by the following from Bond's Genealogies and History of Watertown, Mass. 2d edition, page 680, 2d volume(edition): It is conjectured that "the following Bemis family are descendants form Ephraim Bemis; Jotham Bemis and wife Tryphenia, from Conneticut "settled early in Saratoga county, N.Y., on the margin of the "Hudson river, etc."

Though the genealogical chain between Ephraim Bemis of Watertown, Mass., and Jotham Bemus of Saratoga county is not complete, the presumption is strong that the latter was a descendant of the former and this presumption is strengthened by the fact that the family given names common to the Massachusetts branch are of frequent occurrence among the descendants of Jotham Bemus. Possibly this sketch may result in the discovery of the "missing link" in this genealogical chain.

PARTICIPATION IN THE BATTLES

It is believed by the writer that in the battles occurring near the Heights Jotham Bemus and three of his sons took part. This was always been a family tradition and considerable evidence exists to prove its truth. William Marvin of North East Pa., a descendant of Jotham Bemus, now living (1894), recently wrote: "I think from what I have heard that your great-great grandfather (Jotham Bemus, Sen.) and his two sons, Jotham and William were all in the army and all in the battles of Bemus's Heights." Mr Marvin also writes that he has heard William Bemus, son of Jotham Sen., relate his army experiences. And that his impression of the occurrences are thus derived from personal conversation with one who participated in the battles.

Jotham Bemis, Jr., the first child of Jotham, Sen., certainly was in the American army as shown by the Archives of New York, volume. I. p. 250.

"Bemus Jotham, Corpl. Rhode Island Regt., Jeremiah Olney, Lt. Col. Commanding. Enlisted in Col. Van Schaick's for 1 year, '76. Served 6 years, 1 month, 10 days. Discharged by General Washington Jan. 15, '83. A.P. 17-62. Town of Saratoga, badge of merit."

William Bemus, the second child of Jotham Bemus, Sen., was a member of Captain Ephraim Woodworth's company, the 4th, in the 13th Regiment, Saratoga district, known as the Saratoga regiment, Colonel van Vechten (or Van Veghten), who was on Gen. Gates's staff, was the regimental commander. He lived at Dove-gat, or Van Vechten's Cove, between Bemus's Heights and Schuylerville. Captain Woodworth was also a neighbor of the Bemuses, his house, less than half a mile back of theirs, being used by Gen. Gates as headquarters, after he left the Bemus house. Col. John McCrea was at one time commandant of the "Saratoga regiment." The tragic death of his sister Jane McCrea, formed a leading incident of the Burgoyne campaign. (See Archives, vol I, page 322 for reference to William Bemus; also page 271, volume 1, for reference to Saratoga regiment.)

That the third son, John, also took part in the struggle is evident from the following extract from his obituary notice published in the Saratoga Sentinel Sept. 15, 1829: "Though young he was in the American service at the capture of Burgoyne, as a teamster."

The Bemus house was used as Headquarters by Gen. Gates as headquarters for a time. When the extension of the American fortifications after the first battle was completed, General Gates moved his headquarters to the house of Captain Ephraim Woodworth on the Heights. After the battle of Sept. 19 the Bemus house was also used by General Lincoln as headquarters. The fate of the Bemus house is established by a letter from the Rev. S. Hawley Adams of Jamestown, N.Y. printed in Stones Burgoyne Ballads, in which he says: "My grandmother, Salley Bemus Crawford, (daughter of Jotham Bemus, Sen.) was born at Bemus Heights May 1768. She has spent hours in telling me of Burgine' and his army, which she saw; of the burning of her father's house by the British, and of the sufferings of the family for a time while they were wintering in a barn--Burgoyne having destroyed all their buildings and crops." Though no mention of the destruction of the house appears in any of the accounts of the battles, it is evident that it was burned in some foray of the enemy after it had been abandoned by Gates and Lincoln as headquarters. It was on the extreme flank of the American lines, and probably more or less unprotected after the first day's fighting, the troops being massed at some distance from the river, near Fort Neilson.

The site of the Bemus house is now marked by a stone tablet bearing the following inscription:

THE DESCENDANTS OF JOTHAM BEMUS

JOTHAM BEMUS, SEN., who was born about 1738, died, it is believed, about the year 1786 at the age of 48 years. (This date is thought too early by some of the family. - Draper) His first wife was Tryphena Moore, who was of Scotch descent. She was a woman of much refinement and culture. In an old family Bible in possession of some of the descendants of Jotham Bemus, Sen., at Bemus Point, Chaut. Co., N. Y., is the following list of his children.

1. Jotham - No sons, 4 daughters.
2. William.
3. John - No children.
4. Sally - Married a Crawford.
5. James - Went South.
6. Nancy - Married a Hudson.

This meagre record can be filled out to some considerable extent in the case of two of the children. William and Sally. Concerning the others but little is known. Following is the information concerning each of the children so far was obtained. The first four children were by Jotham Bemus' first wife, Tryphena Moore, the fifth child by a second wife whose maiden name is unknown. The "Nancy" whose name is given above was not a child of Jotham Bemus, but was the child of his second wife by a previous marriage. She married a Hudson, and lived in Chatham, N. Y., and had one son whose name was ordinarily called "Plin," but in reality was probably Pliny.

The second wife of Jotham was a woman of violent temper and made the home unhappy for the children of the first wife, and it would seem from the recollections of Mrs. Sally Crawford, the youngest of these, that it was not long after the second wife came into the household before the children of the first wife had to leave it.

Following is what is known of the children of Jotham Bemus:

I. CORPORAL JOTHAM BEMUS, JR. remained in the army until 1786, serving with distinction and receiving the "Badge of Merit." In 1805 (Turner's history of the Holland Purchase, page 460) he took "articles" to land in Western New York in township 8, range 7, and township 9, range 7. In the library of the Buffalo Historical society, in the letters to Joseph Ellicott, agent of the Holland Land company, is a manuscript letter from him dated May 4, 1806, in which he says he "has surveyed lot 44, "township 9, range 7, and is building on lot 37, township 9, range 7." The letter is No. 187, Vol. 8, B. The lots mentioned were situated in the present town of Hamburg, Erie Co. near Buffalo. He was a member of the first grand jury west of the Genesee river, which was chosen in 1803, and sat in the court house just completed at Batavia. Nothing of his descendants, beyond the meagre record of the family Bible-"no sons, 4 daughters"-is known to the writer. It would seem not a difficult matter to trace this branch of the family further.

II. WILLIAM BEMUS, the second son, was born at Bemus Heights, Feb. 25, 1726 and died at Bemus Point, (Town of Ellery, Chaut. Co., N.Y.) Jan. 20, 1830, in the 67th year of his age. He moved from Bemus Heights to Pittstown, Rensselaer Co., and on Jan 29, 1782 was married to Mary Prendergast, who was born at Pawling, Dutchess Co., March 13, 1760, and died July 11, 1855. Her father was a leader in his section and for his patriotic resistance to the obnoxious rent laws was in 1766 condemned to death for high treason but was subsequently pardoned by the king. William Bemus, in 1805, left Pittstown with his own and his father-in-law's family and journeyed to Kentucky and Tennessee, but came back to New York state and settled on the shores of Chautauqua lake, at Bemus Point, March 9, 1806. In 1804, according to Turner he had taken articles to land in township 2, range 12, the site on which he settled in 1806. He evidently visited the region before the trip south. He was a man of mark in the community, of high character, benevolent instincts and public spirit. He wielded large influence. His children were as follows:

1. DR. DANIEL BEMUS, born Sept. 4, 1784 and settled in Meadville, Crawford, Pennsylvania, where he died in 1866, married, first, Jane Miles, second Jane Brooks Clark.
2. THOMAS BEMUS, born May 9, 1786. Settled near Westfield, N.Y. where he died June 23, 1829. Married Jane Atkins Jan. 1, 1809.
3. ELIZABETH BEMUS, born Nov. 3, 1789. Married Captain John Silsbee (who was wounded in the war of 1812) Dec. 6, 1808, and died in Iowa.
4. LIEUT. CHARLES BEMUS, born Aug. 31, 1791. Married Relepha Boyd, Feb. 27, 1811, died Oct. 10, 1861; was a soldier in the war of 1812.
5. TRYPHENA BEMUS, born April 23, 1793, married John Griffith Feb. 28, 1809, died Feb. 19, 1851.
6. MEHITABEL BEMUS, born Jan. 10, 1795. Married Daniel Hazeltine Oct. 1, 1818 died Sept. 22, 1889.
7. JAMES BEMUS, born Feb. 2, 1797, married Tryphena Boyd Feb. 14, 1819, died June 2, 1874.

The descendants of William Bemus are numerous in Chautauqua county and are people of influence and standing in the community.

III. JOHN BEMUS, the third son of Jotham Bemus, Sen., was born on the Heights farm in 1763 and lived there until shortly before 1829, when he removed to the village of Saratoga Springs where he died Sept. 8, 1829, in the 66th year of his age. He was married but had no children. He was quite well-to-do and left half his property to his sister Sally (Bemus) Crawford. His wife died some years before his own death.

IV. SALLY, the fourth child of Jotham and Tryphena Moore Bemus, was born May 6th, 1768; married Daniel Crawford of Saratoga Springs, March 22d, 1789; died June 8th, 1865 at Evanston, Ind., buried at Saratoga Springs beside her husband.

She was a woman of great vitality, courage and energy, and was a life long member of the Baptist church. Her husband, Daniel Crawford was for many years owner and proprietor of "Highland Hall" situated in the southern part of the village of Saratoga Springs. He died in 1839 aged 75 years.

They had eight children: Mary, Jotham, John, Tryphena, Betsey, Margaret, Sarah, Martha.

MARY, m. Darius Davis of Saratoga Springs, and had thirteen children. She died in 1832 aged 42 years.

JOTHAM, m. Electa Jarvis, and had eleven children. He died at Saratoga Springs, July 23rd, 1872, aged 80 years.

JOHN, m. Louisa Harris, and had five children. When a young man he went to North Carolina and was engaged in teaching until his death in 1847 at Goldsboro, N.C., aged 49 years. His descendants live now at Goldsboro and Raleigh, N. C.

TRYPHENA, m. Alvah Ostrander who died in 1826, and in 1831 she married Marvin Holden of Elmira, N. Y. She had one child by the 1st marriage and three by the 2d. She died in Hancock Co, Ill., aged 72 years.

BETSY, m. John Andrus, and had three children. Resided at Geneva, Ohio, until 1856, later at Saratoga Springs where she died in 1861, aged 57 years. Mr. Andrus's brother James was a leading citizen of Saratoga Springs and very wealthy.

MARGARET, m. Samuel Hawley of Rochester, N.Y., he died in 1841, and in 1845 Rev Augustus Pomeroy a Presbyterian clergyman. His pastorates after their marriage were at Fredonia, N. Y., Ashtabula, O.; Groton N. Y. She died in 1889, aged 83 years. No children. Both are buried at Groton.

SARAH, m. Grant Adams of Lowell, Oneida Co., N. Y., Jan. 1, 1834. He died in 1866 and she in 1878, aged 70. One child, Samuel Hawley Adams, at this time (1894) pastor 1st Congregational church, Jamestown, N. Y.

MARTHA, m. Ezra Hall of Saratoga Springs. Removed to Evansville, Ind., in 1864. There she died in 1893, aged 82 years. Two daughters.

THE SPELLING OF THE FAMILY NAME

The descendants of Jotham Bemus should spell the family name Bemus, if they propose to follow the orthography undoubtedly adopted by their ancestor. This is shown by the fact that letters from Jotham Bemus, Jr., and William Bemus can be seen in the Holland Purchase papers above referred to, in which it is signed in that manner. This spelling we believe is now coming into general acceptance, though in the past the spelling has been extremely varied. The Massachusetts family adhere to the spelling Bemis. In the Calendar of Land Papers spoken of it is given as Beemis. In Justin Winsor's Critical History of the U. S. on page 361 of Vol. VI it is given as Braemus. In Spencer's History of the U. S., Vol. II, page 500, it is given Behmus. Hurd's History of New London Co. gives the name Bemas. Ephraim Bemish was a soldier at Groton in 1765. There are doubtless many other forms of spelling the name to be found.

Interestingly, we find the following "Notes and Queries" in [NEGHR:1900:54:354]:

Miscellaneous Queries --...

Bemus -- Wanted to know the ancestry of Jonathan Bemus or Bemis, owner of "Bemus Heights," b. 1738, and his wife, Tryphena Moore, of Scotch descent...

What is odd about this posting is the idea that, six years after publishing his work, Post is still submitting inquiries?

[Genealogical and family history of western New York, 61-2]

BEMUS - This family settled in New York state prior to the revolution. The earliest record in this state is of Major Jotham Bemus. Joseph Bemis, emigrant ancestor, was born in Dedham, Essex county, England, 1619, and came to Watertown, Massachusetts, with his sister, Mary, as early as 1640. He was a blacksmith and a fairly well-to-do farmer. His wife was named Sarah, and they may have married in England. They were the parents of nine children. From this family the Bemus family of New York sprang.

(I) Major Jotham Bemus was a soldier and officer of the revolutionary war. His family lived at Bemis Heights, Saratoga county, New York, their farm including Bemis Heights historic battle ground, made famous by the defeat and capture of the British army commanded by Burgoyne. The name originally seems to have been spelled Bemis. Major Jotham Bemus died in the town of Pittstown, Rensselaer county, New York. He married Tryphena Moore.

Notes for Tryphena Moore:

In the "History of the Bemis Family", it is said that Tryphena Moore, who was of Scotch descent. She was a woman of much refinement and culture.

TRYPHENA MOORE, b. 1739; m. Jotham Bemus; b. about 1738 and d. about 1787, aged 48. Gen. Burgoyne had his headquarters at the Bemus House at the battle of Bemus' Heights. Jotham and three of his sons were engaged in this battle while Tryphena had at least 5 brothers in the fight to say nothing of her nephews. It would be strictly historical to say the Moore family captured Burgoyne, but it cannot be denied that the family was well represented in the battle that settled the fate of the Republic.

I also found church records in Edmeston, that support the fact that my Jonathan Bemiss and family did live there, and attended The Baptist Church, which is no longer in existence.

There is a little museum in Edmeston, and I found maps showing where Jonathan and Thomas Bemiss lived. This is just about all the information I have on this family for that time period and area, as Thomas and family moved on to Chautauqua County, NY.

Marriage Notes for Susanna Bemis and John Viles:

{NEGHR:1947:101:72} "Notes"

BEMIS - PIERCE-VILES CORRECTION: -- Bond's History of Watertown and The Bemis Genealogy by T. W. M. Draper state that John Viles, who died in Waltham 4 Feb. 1774, age 67, married in Watertown 2 Jul. 1731 Susanna Bemis, daughter of John (2) Bemis and Mary Harrington, born 3 Dec. 1705. This is incorrect.

John Bemis' will dated 6 May 1729 and proved 20 Nov. 1732, mentions his daughter "Susanna Pierce". Watertown records give the marriage of Isaac Pierce and Susanna Bemis on 7 Sept. 1722.

Joseph (3) Bemis, son of John (2), married Elizabeth Pierce, daughter of Joseph (3) and Martha, had a daughter Susanna, born 13 Jan. 1713/14, who married 2 Jul. 1731 John Viles, and died in Waltham 28 Nov. 1785, age 72. Joseph Bemis' will dated 4 May 1738 and proved 20 Jul. 1741, mentions his daughter "Susannah Viles".

At the present time, I am not able to prove the ancestry of John Viles who was brought from Boston by Thomas Smith at an early age. It seems probable that he was a grandson of John (2) vial and Mary Williams, but I have found no record of his birth. John Viles died, according to Saunderson's History of Waltham, 4 Feb. 1774, age 67, which would make it impossible for him to have been the son of either John (3) Vial and Mary Adams or Nathaniel (3) Vial and Sarah Bennet. There was another son of John (2)'s, Joseph (3), who was not mentioned in his Father's will dated 15 Oct. 1720 and proved 21 Nov. 1720, but was named in his grandmother William's will in 1679.

-- Frederick W. Wead, Boston, Mass.

A note about an error in Bond and Draper:

I suspect your information came either from Bond's Families of Watertown or Thomas Draper's Bemis genealogy. You all continue the error made by Bond on the marriage of Susanna Bemis to John Viles (I find Draper hopelessly confused and his "scholarship" suspect).

If you begin with the Bemis line in Bond, you will get the error. At that point, Bond gives Susanna, b. 1705 dau. of John Bemis/Mary Harrington (I think she is #18* in the Bemis line). If you start with the Viles line in Bond, you go back to Bemis 37, Susanna, b. 1713/14 dau. of Joseph Bemis and Elizabeth Peirce/Pierce. This is the correct linkage.

The proof is given by Frederick Wead in NEHGR 101: 72 (1947) where he has examined the wills of the fathers. John Bemis (m. Mary Harrington) mentions his daughter, Susanna Pierce [She married Isaac Pierce]. Joseph Bemis (son of John/Mary) mentions his daughter, Susanna Viles.

If you have an ahnentafel, you'll have to correct the lineage back from here; if doing a descendant listing, only the marriage is wrong. I have information on John Viles/Susanna Bemis' 13 children which I am willing to share. [Bond also has errors in their marriages/children as well.]

"Genealogies of the Families and Descendants of the Early Settlers of Watertown, Massachusetts, including Waltham and Weston", by Henry Bond, M.D.

"...studied medicine with Dr. Joshua Brackett, of Portsmouth, N.H., and commenced practice in connexion with Dr. Hall Jackson, of Marblehead. He soon relinquished the practice of medicine; and, after qualifying himself, under the instruction of a chemist in Boston, he commenced the business of apothecary and grocer, in Salem, Mass., in which he was very successful. A correspondent says, "he never spoke ill of a person, and was the most singularly honest man I ever knew." He represented the town repeatedly in the State Legislature; often held municipal offices, and was most fond of that of Overseer of the Poor, as affording him the greatest opportunity to gratify his benevolent feelings. He was noted for hospitality and public spirit. He took the lead in making the turnpike from Salem to Boston, and at one time owned one-eighth of the stock. The first large block of brick buildings in Salem was his. The night before the battle of Bunker Hill, he was employed the whole night in throwing up the breastworks, and during the action was taking care of his parents at their farm at Plowed Hill. In the yard in the rear of their house, Major McCleary was killed by a ball or shell from the hill."

He married (2) Eunice Chadwick⁸⁴⁵ Bef. 24 Aug 1749 in Leicester, Worcester, Massachusetts⁸⁴⁵, daughter of John Chadwick and Hannah. She was born 21 Nov 1731 in Watertown, Middlesex, Massachusetts⁸⁴⁶, and died 13 Apr 1761 in Spencer, Worcester, Massachusetts^{847,848,849}.

Notes for Capt. Edmund Bemis:

[Bond:22] "a lieut. at the capture of Louisburg, and a capt. in the expedition to Crown Point, 1755-56"

[James Draper:3-4] "BEMIS EDMUND, s. of Samuel, senior, m. Eunice Chadwick, of Western, (Warren) 1749. John, b.Sept. 3, 1749; Joseph, Nov. 20, 1750; Susannah, May 3, 1752; Phineas, Oct. 7, 1754; Eleazer, May 24, 1756; Ruth, Dec. 29, 1757; Lydia, March 29, 1760. His wife Eunice d. April 13, 1761.

Again m. Mrs. Smith of Charlton. He settled on a part of the homestead, but finally purchased lot (80) in 1769, where he died, Dec. 1810, aged 90, and where four of his grandchildren still remain.

He was a lieutenant at the capture of Louisburgh in 1745, and captain in the expedition of Crown Point, 1755 and 1756. The following obituary notice appeared in the Massachusetts Spy, Dec. 26, 1810: 'Died in Spencer,

Capt. Edmund Bemis, aged 90. There are some things worthy of record in the life of this aged and war-torn veteran. His father was one of the first settlers of Spencer, having removed from Sudbury about the time of the birth of this son, or about the year 1720. This son, Edmund, has been very remarkable for his habits of honesty, industry and temperance, which produced a long life of health and happiness. He early entered into the service of his country, and was a lieutenant at the reduction of Louisburgh in the year 1745. At this seige he was a zealous and active officer. After the French had surrendered to the victorious arms of New England, it was found they had spiked their cannon, intending thereby to render them entirely useless to the captors. It had been heretofore deemed an impractical thing, after a gun was thus spiked, to drill it out, or by any other method whatever, to render it again fit for service. The commander of the American forces offered a premium to any one who would undertake the task, if he should prove successful. Lieut. Bemis undertook it, and by a process heretofore unthought of, effected the desired object. Instead of drilling, was was supposed to be the only practicable method, he collected a large quantity of wood around the cannon, and setting it on fire, heated it to such a degree that, with a cold punch, the spike was easily driven into the barrel. Thus was he the author of a successful discovery to his country, which has ever since been followed with complete success. After the reduction of Louisburgh, he was a captain in the war with France, which succeeded, at the close of which he returned home, to seek that repose among his friends, which he has since enjoyed without interruption."

Notes for Jonas Bemis:

[Bond:23] "a soldier in the French war and in the Revolution"

[Draper:173] Lieut. Bemis was a farmer. He was a soldier in the war with France in 1756; and also in the Revolution (sic), being Lieutenant in Captain John Wolcott's Company of Rangers (April 19, 1775.) In this company, serving 12 days later were, as privates, Reuben Bemis; Benjamin Bemis and Amos Bemis. In his later years Lieut. Bemis was very corpulent, weighing 400 pounds, it is said.

Hi Steve,

I saw your research material on the Bemis line on USGenweb and Ancestry. It is excellent work. I descend from Jonathan Lackey, born 1775, Spencer, Worcester, MA, to Abraham and Mary Lackey. (Vital Records of Spencer to 1850) Abraham and Mary Lackey were both from Watertown, originally.(Bond's Watertown) On 10 December 1797,Jonathan Lackey married Mercy Simmons in Spencer/ Brookfield,MA. (NEHGS) On that very same day, Jeremiah Simmons married MOLLY BEMIS, in Spencer.(NEHGS) Due to later connections,I believe that Mercy Simmons and Jeremiah Simmons were siblings, however, I have not been able to pinpoint their parents. By 1800, Abraham and Mary Lackey, Jeremiah Simmons and Molly Bemis, and Jonathan Lackey and Mercy Simmons resided in Hancock, Addison County, VT. I rented the LDS microfilm to verify this and sure enough, Abraham Lackey, Jonathan Lackey, and Jeremiah Simmons were named as "freemen" and admitted to a Hancock town meeting, Sept. 1, 1801. There are also several land transactions between these three men in Addison County documented in those early years. In the 1810 census, Jeremiah Simmons and Molly Bemis were in Middlebury, Addison, VT, with five children; Abraham Lackey was still in Hancock; and Jonathan Lackey was in Essex, NY. I have ordered the microfilm for Middlebury to investigate the Jeremiah Simmons family a bit further, but in lieu of that, I have a couple of questions: Have you had any luck in determining the parents of Jeremiah Simmons, husband of Molly Bemis? (since they are likely the parents of Mercy Simmons, also, they would be my direct ancestors!) Do you know the names of any of the children of Jeremiah Simmons and Molly Bemis? I would be happy to share what I learn about them when my microfilm comes in.

Sincerely, Billie Pett, Longmont, CO

No, I can say that I have anything about Jeremiah Simmons or his children or parents. The reference for him is the Vital Records of Spencer, p. 136, "BEMISS - Molly and Jeremiah Simmons of Brookfield, Dec. 10, 1797" Because of the way this is shown, he is probably from Brookfield, not Spencer. The wedding of Jeremiah and also of Mercy and Jonathan Lackey are both recorded in the VR for Brookfield as well. Also, be sure to check Simonds and Simons as the Brookfield VR refers to this spelling as well.

[History of Newton, Massachusetts. Town and City from Its Earliest Settlement to the Present Time. 1630 - 1880, Samuel Frances Smith, D.D., Boston: The American Logotype Company, 1880, pages 576-582]

The history of the North Village of Newton, as connected with the establishment and growth of various original kinds of manufactures, is full of interest. Some of the works first planted here were on the Watertown side of the river; but, the village being one, the water-power being equally available on each side, and the enterprise of the owners having built up a business constantly expanding in each direction, the history of manufactures at this point belongs to the history of Newton, and the history of Newton cannot be complete without it. The locality bore for many years the title of "Bemis's Factories."

An article in the Waltham Sentinel of April 29, 1864, supplies the requisite materials for the view which follows.

Through the energy, enterprise and perseverance of the Bemis family through two or three generations, water-power was first applied at this point for manufacturing and mechanical purposes.

David Bemis, the father of Captain Luke Bemis and Seth Bemis, Esq., more than a century since purchased thirty-nine acres of land on the Watertown side, and subsequently twenty-five acres additional, embracing all the land on which the buildings belonging to the village on that side of the river now stand. In 1778, David Bemis with Dr. Enos Sumner, who then owned the land on the Newton side, constructed the original dam across the river where the same now is. The next year Dr. Sumner sold out his interest in the concern to John D. McDongal, of Boston, Michael Carney, of Dorchester, and Nathaniel Patten, of Hartford, Conn., who erected a paper-mill in 1779. In 1780-1, David Bemis became owner of the two-thirds of this business, and with his son, Captain Luke Bemis, carried it on till 1790, when the father, David Bemis, died. Shortly after that event, Luke Bemis and his brother Isaac became sole owners of the property, and continued together till 1794, when Isaac died. From that time till 1821, Luke Bemis, either alone or in partnership with his brother-in-law, Caleb Eddy, of Boston, carried on the business of paper-making. He then sold out to Seth Bemis, his brother, as will be more particularly noticed hereafter, in connection with the history of the Watertown side.

Captain Bemis may be regarded as the first successful manufacturer of paper in this vicinity, and, perhaps, in Massachusetts, and who at the outset had to struggle against great difficulties, being obliged at the commencement to obtain most of his machinery and workmen from Europe, and afterwards suffering the loss of his mill, stock and machinery by fire. But so important was the enterprise considered, in a public point of view, that the Legislature of Massachusetts made a special grant to enable him to rebuild his mill after the fire.

The process of paper-making in those days was slow and tedious, requiring as many months as it now requires days. Each sheet was made singly, by first dipping the mould into the pulp, and shaking it, much in the same manner as a person shakes the riddle in cleaning grain. When the pulp was sufficiently consolidated by this shaking process, the mould was turned over upon a woolen felt, to which the pulp adhered; upon this, another felt was laid for the reception of another sheet, and thus the process was continued. The moulds were all imported until the beginning of the present century. About that time, Mr. Jacob Mead, an ingenious citizen of Waltham, invented a machine for weaving cooper wire for paper-moulds. This invention proved to be very remunerative to the inventor, and a great convenience to the public. No one, outside of the inventor's family, ever saw it until after the inventor's death. It was then sold at auction by the administrator, boxed up and unseen, to the late Mr. Thomas Miller, of Waltham, for $550. The process of paper-making, however, soon became so essentially changed, after Mr. Miller's purchase, that the value of the invention was much diminished.

All the land bounded by the river, on the southerly, that is, the Newton side, extended from or near the Watertown line to a point on the Charles River near the north end of Morse Island, afterwards called Fox Island, belonged, during a century or more from the first settlement of Newton, to Richard Park and John Fuller, and their lineal descendants. The former owned six hundred acres of the easterly portion, and John Fuller the westerly portion, containing seven hundred and fifty acres. The division line between them commenced at a point on the river, near and perhaps identical with that which divided the land of the late Henry Craft from that which now belongs to Messrs. Seth and George Bemis. This line ran southerly to a white oak tree, the stump of which is now remaining at a point about twenty feet south of Watertown Street, opposite the house of the widow Monks. This original landmark still continues as an important one between different owners of land. John Fuller's south line ran westerly from said oak tree to the point near Fox Island, as before mentioned. John Fuller had seven sons, whose Christian names all began with the letter J. This very valuable tract of territory now belongs to Waltham; during more than a century, it was called Fuller's Corner. The father, with some or all of his sons, while traversing the then wilderness near the residence of the late Ezra Fuller, refreshed themselves with cake and cheese and drank from the brook, and hence named it Cheese-Cake Brook, by which name it is still known. At a later hour, they spotted some wild game on the small conical hill standing a little east of the residence of Mr. Conant, which they named Cook Hill. Fifty or sixty years ago it was so designated; but the name has now become obsolete.

The remains of the original house of John Fuller could be seen, until within a few years, near the river, on the farm of the late Ezra Fuller.

Richard Park died in 1665, and his only son Thomas inherited his estate, by the will of his father. Thomas Park erected a house near the barn, which was burned several years since, belonging to the late Seth Bemis, Esq. The house was standing until about 1808-9, although so dilapidated as to be untenable. Thomas Park died August 11, 1690, aged sixty-two, and from him, his heirs and assigns, the title of all the land in the vicinity has been derived.

We will now turn our attention to the northerly or Watertown side of the river, which forms an integral part of this busy manufacturing village.

During the period while David Bemis with his son Luke was engaged in the manufacture of paper on the Newton side, he build and carried on a grist-mill and snuff-mill on the Watertown side, until his death in 1790, it being the first mill on that side of the river at that place. At his decease, the property on the Watertown side was inherited by his two sons, Luke and Seth, the latter of whom, in or about 1796, bought out the interest therein of his brother Luke, and became sole proprietor of the mill and its appurtenances. He soon made preparations for the manufacture of chocolate, and preparing dye-woods and medicinal woods and roots for use. These branches of business he carried on successfully until about 1803. Then, by making a small addition to the old mill, he commenced spinning cotton by machinery; and although the machinery was very limited in amount and imperfect in its construction, his profits were said to be almost fabulous on his "cotton warp," which was wholly consigned to a Mr. Bowers, of Boston, father of Mr. Charles E. Bowers, later of Newtonville. So great was the demand that it was impossible for Mr. Bemis, with his limited number of spindles, to furnish the required supply.

It had been and was then the practice universally to manufacture all the cotton cloth for domestic use, in the family. All the families were furnished with spinning-wheels, and nearly all with looms. Hence the great demand for "Bemis' warp," which was much superior to that spun by hand. The woof or filling was still spun, and the cloth woven in families. At that period the women, old and young, knew how to spin and weave, as well as to sew. A writer of the age following says, -- "They were the more respected for being competent and willing to earn their living by honest industry. Alas, the change that the spinning of street yarn and weaving webs of scandal should have so generally succeeded the home manufacture of useful domestic textile fabrics."

The preparation of the cotton for carding was at that time a slow and expensive operation. It was carried out in small parcels, to be picked by hand in families living in the vicinity, at about four cents per pound, exclusive of carrying out and bringing back, which required most of the time of one man and horse. To facilitate the process of picking, such families as were engaged in the occupation were mostly provided with a "whipping frame," the bottom of which was woven, or made of strong cords so loosely that the seeds and dirt could pass through; the cotton, being placed thereon, and two sticks, one in each hand, being laid on smartly for two or three minutes, became very much loosened. For several years the business of cotton picking afforded employment to a multitude of persons, enabling them to procure a comfortable livelihood.

Mr. Bemis constantly improved and increased his machinery for spinning, etc., discarding the old and adopting that which was new and better. After a few years he caused a machine to be made for preparing the cotton for carding, which did not differ materially from the "cotton pickers" of the present day. This machine bore the grim title of "the devil;" and, though not very attractive in appearance, particularly when in motion, performed in a very expeditious and satisfactory manner the service intended, much to the regret of the numerous laborers, who were obliged, in consequence of the invention, to seek their daily bread by other methods.

As early as 1808 or 1809, Mr. Bemis, with the aid of foreign weavers using hand-loom, began to manufacture somewhat extensively sheeting, shirting, bed-ticking, satin, bagging for the Southern market and cotton duck, woven at that time principally by the State Prison convicts in Charlestown, a large number of whom were employed by Mr. Bemis until his power-loom were put into operation, taking precedence of any in New England. The cotton duck manufactured by Mr. Bemis was the first that was ever manufactured in the United States. Strong prejudice, having its birth in ignorance and interest, existed for some years against its use; but Mr. Bemis had the satisfaction to outlive the prejudice against its adaptation to the uses for which it was intended, and to realize a handsome profit by its manufacture.

In the autumn of 1812, Mr. Bemis caused to be built, at the easterly end of the old mill, the small brick building, -- demolished fifty years later, -- for a gas-house. In this building gas from coal was made under the direction of an English expert, and the lighting of the factory by the same in 1812-13, was said at that time to have been the first attempt to illuminate with coal-gas in the United States. Many persons from considerable distances visited the factory to witness the brilliancy of the experiment. The gas being prepared in close proximity to the dwelling-house of Mr. Bemis, and the pipes, being of common tin, having many leakages, made its use objectionable, and it was abandoned after the second year; but it is a fact worthy of record, that carburetted hydrogen for illuminating purposes gleamed out over the waters of the Charles and irradiated the intervals of Newton two years before it was in use in England.

At this time Mr. Bemis had, by several additions, alterations, divisions and sub-divisions under the same old roof, departments for carrying on, at the same time, the following branches of business, -- viz., the manufacturing of cotton and wool into yarn, the weaving being done in another building, preparing for use the various kinds of medicinal preparations and dye-woods, glass grinding and cutting, polishing binnacle and other lights for lighthouses, ships, etc., a shop for repairing and making machinery, a grist-mill, and, adjoining, the building for the manufacture of gas. In that hive of industry might be seen at that time the late Elisha Crehore, for many years a successful merchant in Waltham.

All the operatives employed in carrying on the foregoing branches of business for the first eighteen or twenty years were apprised of the time to commence operations by the blowing of a tin horn, which required the effort of strong lungs to make the blast long and loud. And, however ludicrous such a method may appear at this age of the world, the ringing of a bell at that time for such a purpose would undoubtedly then have appeared much more so, as no bell larger than a cow-bell was then in use in Watertown, Newton or Waltham. The name of "Tin Horn," applied to the village, has been coined in more recent times, no such term having been in use until subsequent to the employment of the tin horn for the purpose specified.

In 1821, Mr. Bemis, by purchasing of his brother Luke and Caleb Eddy, a brother-in-law of Luke Bemis, their interest on the Newton side, became sole owner of the whole water-power, mills, etc., and soon after sold to the Boston Manufacturing Company twelve inches of the power; that is, he lowered his dam one foot, and received the sum of $12,000 for so doing; and, soon after, re-conveyed to his brother Luke and four or five others a joint interest in the establishment under the firm name of the Bemis Manufacturing Company, and during their corporate continuance carried on principally the manufacture of satinets and cotton ducks, until the dissolution of the Company in 1830.

On the dissolution of the Bemis Manufacturing Company, Mr. Seth Bemis, in company with Thomas Cordis, one of the old company, bought out the entire property of said company, and continued the same business of the former company until 1839. When Thomas Cordis sold out his interest to Seth Bemis and his son, Seth Bemis, jr., they used the water-power on both sides, partly for the manufacture of cotton and wool, and partly for the manufacture of dye-woods and drugs, until 1847. Then they sold out their dye-wood business on the Newton side to William Freeman; and Seth Bemis, senior, again became sole owner of the factory buildings and water-power on the Watertown side, and so continued till his death in 1850.

On the settlement of his estate in 1851, Seth Bemis, son of the deceased, became the sole proprietor of the Watertown mills and property, and retained the ownership till 1860, when he sold out to William Freeman & Co. By a subsequent transfer, Messrs. Freeman & Co. sold to the Aetna Mill Company, by whom the works were greatly enlarged, for the purpose of prosecuting the manufacture of woollen fabrics by both water and steam power.

It will thus be seen that, from the original purchase in 1753 by David Bemis, the property on the Watertown side of the river has been in the Bemis family more or less exclusively for more than a century and a quarter, and on the Newton side for nearly a century.

A bridge across the river was first build by the Messrs. Bemis at this part of the river, being private property, between 1780 and 1796. For ten or twelve years it was without railing, and would now be regarded as dangerous. In 1807, the Watertown end was carried away by a freshet, and a foot-bridge only was substituted during two or three years. Subsequently, a bridge was built by subscription, suitable for teams, the people in the vicinity aiding. In 1818, the Watertown end of this bridge was again carried away. The next day, John Cowdry and Timothy Davis, many years a resident of Waltham, attempted to cross the river to the Newton side, above the dam, in a boat, which was upset, and they were carried over the dam. John Cowdry was drowned, but Mr. Davis, after being several times drawn back into the vortex under the dam, was by a mysterious Providence thrown out of the whirl, and floated to the portion of the bridge on the Newton side, and was rescued by anxious spectators.

The road leading over the bridge was called California Street, and was laid out as a public highway in 1816.

Notes for Moses Sanderson:

[NEHGR:1880:34:199] "Notes and Queries"

SANDERSON - Bond, in his History of Watertown, page 417, states that Samuel Sanderson (3) (Jonathan(2), Edward(1)) was killed by lightning, July 8, 1722. It was his son Samuel(4) who was killed by lightning at that date. The father died in Waltham, July 21, 1744, which death-date Bond assigns to the son.

The names of Sanderson and Sanders, both of which are found in Watertown, are often confounded. Moses Sanderson, son of the above Samuel, did not marry for his second wife Elizabeth Goddard, as Bond, p. 418, states. It was Moses Sanders who married Elizabeth Goddard, Feb. 7, 1766. Their daughter Sarah (Sanders), born July 19, 1767, is erroneously placed by Bond among the children of Moses Sanderson. The second wife of Moses Sanderson was Mrs. Anna (Jewett) Pingrey, their intention being filed August 27, 1797. His first wife Mary Flagg died in Littleton, Sept. 18, 1789. They had nine children. He died Aug. 10, 1798. Their oldest daughter, Sarah, born Feb. 9, 1752, married Benjamin Hartwell.

Notes for Lieut. John Brown:

"Genealogies of the Families and Descendants of the Early Settlers of Watertown, Massachusetts, including Waltham and Weston", by Henry Bond, M.D., p.139:

He was an ardent whig, and an uncompromising persecutor of the tories, even before the Revolution broke out; was one of the Boston "Tea Party," and was engaged, it is said, in the battle of Bunker Hill. His stature was 6 ft. 2 in., and his proportions admirable for masculine beauty and power, in which he was almost unequalled. But his violent and ill-regulated temper, and his wayward habits, greatly impaired his usefulness in after life. In 1777, he purchased of Oakes Angier, 12 acres of land in Newton, near Angier's Corner, which he sold in 1786, to Wm. Brown, of Boston. He afterwards settled in Maine, where he d. 1824 or '25.

Notes for Ebenezer Bemis:
[NEGHR:1956:110:234] "Notes"

GRAVES-BEMIS-PIERCE: Correction:--In his "History of Westminster, Massachusetts" (1893), Mr. Heywood states that Lucy Graves (born June 21, 1768, daughter of Peter Graves of Westminster and (later) Groton, Mass.) married Ebenezer Bemis of Westminster, a brother of Edmund Bemis, Jr., who married Susanna Graves, a younger sister of Lucy. This statement is incorrect. Lucy Graves was married in 1778 to John Pierce ("Westminster Vital Records", 1908, pp. 145, 175). Mr. Heywood's statement has, however, presumably influenced later compilers of genealogies, and helped to deter further investigation (see "The Bemis History and Genealogy", 1900, by Col. Thomas W. M. Draper).

Peter Graves died in Groton 29 Oct. 1824 (see "Groton Vital Records"). His will is dated 27 Oct. 1824, and was allowed on 28 Dec. 1824 (Middlesex County Probate Records, Lib. 150, Fol. 26). This will furnishes indisputable evidence. It makes specific provision for Peter Graves' "daughter Lucy, the wife of John Pierce". It also makes provision for his "daughter Susanna, the wife of Edmund Bemis".

Notes for John Bemis:

[Draper:183-187] " The subject of this sketch, who was the third of four sons, was born on the 16th day of February, 1773. In consequence of his father's continued ill health and limited means, he was, at a very early age, thrown upon his own resources.

Even in boyhood, he was imbued with a singular love of letters, and conceived a fixed determination to master them. Having no means for acquiring the rudiments, he eagerly sought, and embraced the first opportunity, for employment in manual labor, with a single view to that object. With that indomitable energy, which was his distinguishing characteristic through life, he rose superior to every obstacle which stood in the way to his coveted acquirements. Every nerve of a vigorous and well-endowed constitution was strained to the uttermost to achieve his ends. Every leisure hour of this period was scrupulously employed in the study of such books as were within his reach.

The ruling passion of his life, which is rarely ever known to gain the ascendancy, until a much later period, seemed even now to possess the mastery, for he denied himself all participation in the usual sports and amusements of boyhood, lest they might consume time he had determined to appropriate to more valuable purposes. It was, probably, in this manner he acquired that contempt for all conventional pastimes and amusements, or games of chance, which never forsook him in after life.

It appears from some old manuscripts, that the intervening four years, from 1789 to 1793, were alternately occupied in some department of business, and attendance upon school. During this period he was under the tuition of Eliphalet Nott, who had charge of the Plainfield Academy, probably the best, and school at that time in New England.

At this date, 1793, he seems to have been pretty well advanced in letters, for we find him in charge of a school Pomfret, Connecticut. In what proportion his time is now divided, between teaching and studying, is not clear. His diploma, or certificate of graduation in Plainfield Academy, bears the date, 30th March, 1795.

He now spent two years studying Latin and the higher branches of English literature, under the tuition of an educated gentleman, who had become interested in him by his steady, persevering efforts at self-advancement. In 1797 he entered the office of Dr. Zachariah Standish, as a student of medicine, under whose supervisory instruction he made astonishingly rapid progress in acquiring the elementary principles of the science.

His certificate of the term of his professional studies, and permission to practice medicine and surgery, bears date

June 3rd 1801.

After three months as an assistant to his preceptor, in the autumn of 1801 he emigrated to Kentucky, and located in Bloomfield, Nelson county, then called Middleburg.

In 1797 he had married Miss Elizabeth Bloomer (b. in New York), said to have been a lady of highly cultivated intellect, polished manners, and amiable disposition. On his first visit to Kentucky, he had left her with her friends in New York, where she remained for twelve months, at which time he went back, and brought her with him on his return.

The severe habits of early study to which the Dr. had subjected himself, together with the keen powers of observation, and so enlarged his capacity for the acquisition and retention of knowledge, that he had completely mastered all the standard works of his day.

He had amassed such a vast fund of information, and had such perfect command of the resources of the profession, that he at once took a very prominent stand, and acquired, in an incredibly short period of time, a reputation rarely attained by a country practitioner.

Boldness, self-reliance on, implicit confidence in the curative power of his remedies, remarkable therapeutical acumen, and a profound sympathy with his patients, marks the outlines of his professional character. He was emphatically a man for the occasion. The fertility of his resources was almost boundless. And while exhibiting the most unwavering confidence in the saving power of his remedies, and plying them with unwearied assiduity and skill, he had a happy faculty of imbuing his patients with the same unshaken confidence.

It is useless to say that Dr. Bemis was a very safe and successful practitioner. He had witnessed so many recoveries, against a reasonable expectation of friends, attributable, as he believed, to his vigilance, perseverance, and constancy, that hope never deserted him; nor did he relax his efforts until the taper of life had expired.

When in the height of his practice, his advice was sought in difficult cases in all the surrounding counties; and even after he had retired from the active duties of the profession, he was retained, throughout a very wide scope of country as consulting physician, to which calls he always yielded a hearty response. His thorough knowledge of the history and literature of the profession, his familiar acquaintance with the standard authors of the day, is ready comprehension, clear insight, accurate diagnosis, and lucid exposition of a case, attached great weight to his opinions with his professional brethren.

He was courteous and fair in his professional intercourse, candid and uncompromising in his views of practice, kind and generous towards the junior members of the profession, scrupulously observant of the rules of ethics, jealous of the honor of the profession, and uncompromising in his opposition to all professional outlawry. The hordes of empirics and nostrum-mongers who flooded the country in his day, found no mercy or foothold near him. His boldness and bitter raillery were weapons they much dreaded.

Dr. Bemis was an ardent and excitable politician, and took an active part in the New Court and Old Court controversy. He was an uncompromising advocate of the Old Court policy, and wrote a number of able articles on the subject, which were published in the "Spirit of '76," at Frankfort. He had no sycophancy about him; never dissembled; was very decided in open in his attachments and antipathies; not unfrequently made enemies by his openness and candor.

His style of writing is vigorous, clear, concise--not much embellished with flowers. His natural turn was to pointed, and matter of fact, to allow space for either redundancy or decoration. Even in the midst of an overwhelming practice, he wrote a great deal. A number of his address is on the subject of Masonry, of which order he was a prominent member, are still extant. They glow with that fervor, that spirit of expensive benevolence, which animated his whole life, and breathe of nothing but what is wise, good and philanthropic.

He was always a close student; retained his love for literature to the last; studied Greek when over sixty years of age, besides keeping himself well posted in all the current literature of the day, except novels, for which he had a supreme contempt.

Dr. Bemis's religion turn of mind developed in early youth, grew with his growth, strengthened with his strength, and matured in his manhood, culminating in a desire to assume the office of minister of the Gospel, in which position he thought his faculties for doing good would be enhanced, a consummation which had been his ruling passion through life.

Although he had in the year 1817 retired from active duties of the profession, and resigned his practice to the charge of his son-in-law, Dr. S. B. Merrifield, his ardent, ever-active temperament did not allow him to take that repose, which he had probably promised himself previous to his retirement, and he turned his attention to the study of Theology. He was accordingly ordained as a minister of the Presbyterian Church about the year 1830. The duties of this office he continued to fulfill with zeal, fidelity, and great acceptance until his death, which occurred, of apoplexy, and the 29th day of March, 1851, in the seventy-eighth year of his age. BLOOMFIELD, 132m. (455 pop.), on Simpson Creek, was founded in 1799 by Dr. John Bemiss of Rochester, N.Y., but was not incorporated until 1819. The section of the town lying on the western side of the dividing creek was known as Gandertown because in early days the young men in this region indulged in gander pulling. A post set in the ground had a revolving crossbar from which a gander with a soaped neck was suspended by the feet. The men, mounted on horseback, rode at full speed past the post, attempting to seize the gander's neck as they went by. The prize was awarded to the contestant who succeeded in jerking off the head.

228. William⁵ Bemus (Jotham⁴, Ephraim³ Bemis, Ephraim², Joseph¹)¹³⁷⁰ was born 25 Feb 1762 in Bemus Heights, Saratoga, New York^{1370,1371}, and died 02 Jan 1830 in Bemus Point, Chautauqua, New York^{1372,1373}. He married Mary Prendergast¹³⁷⁴ 29 Jan 1782 in Pittstown, Rensselaer Co., NY¹³⁷⁴, daughter of William Prendergast. She was born 13 Mar 1760 in Pawling, Dutchess Co., NY¹³⁷⁴, and died 11 Jul 1845 in Bemus Point, Chautauqua, New York^{1374,1375}.

Notes for William Bemus:

[History of Chautauqua County, New York, From Its First Settlement to the Present Time; with Numerous Biographical and Family Sketches, by Andrew W. Young, printing house of Matthews & Warren, Buffalo, N. Y., 1875, p. 320-1] [US/CAN 974.795 H2y]

William Bemus was born at Bemus Heights, Saratoga county, N. Y., Feb. 25, 1762. About the beginning of the Revolutionary war, he removed with his father to Pittstown, Rensselaer county. He was married Jan. 29, 1782, to Mary, daughter of Wm. Prendergast, Sr. Mr. Bemus and his family were a part of the company of emigrants composed chiefly of Prendergasts, who journeyed to Tennessee, and returned to this state, and settled in Chautauqua. [See Prendergast Family, p. 264] He came to Ripley in the fall of 1805, and spent the winter in the present town of Westfield, near Arthur Bell's, in the west part of the town, on the Buffalo & Erie road. The next spring he settled on the east side of Chautauqua lake, on land bought in January, 1806, at what has since been known as Bemus Point, in Ellery, where he resided until his death. He died of dropsy, Jan. 2, 1830, aged nearly 68 years. He purchased other lands in the neighborhood of his residence; also, early in January, 1806, on the west side of the lake, where his son Thomas settled, who is believed to have been the first occupant of land in the town of Harmony, though he remained several years unmarried. The wife of Mr. Bemus, born March 13, 1760, died July 11, 1845, aged 85 years. They were buried in Ellery, in the Bemus Point Cemetery. They had a large family, all of whom removed to Chautauqua county. Their children were: 1. Daniel, who was a physician, and removed to Meadville, Crawford, Pennsylvania. He married a Miss Miles, and died at Meadville. 2. Elizabeth, wife of Capt. John Silsby; they removed to Iowa, where they died. 3. Tryphena, who married John Griffith. [See the Griffith Family.] 4. Thomas. 5. Charles. 6. Mehetabel, wife of the late Daniel Hazeltine, of Jamestown, where she still resides. 7. James, who married Tryphena Boyd, and resides at Bemus Point.

[Draper:42] He moved from Bemus Heights to Pittstown Rensselaer Co., N.Y. where he married. His wife's father was a leader in his section and for his patriotic resistance to the obnoxious rent laws, was in 1766 condemned to death for high treason, but was subsequently pardoned by the King. William Bemus in 1805 left Pittstown with his own and his father-in-law's family, a party of 30 persons, and journeyed to Kentucky and Tennessee, but came back to New York State and settled on the shores of Chautauqua Lake, at Bemus Point March 9, 1806. In 1804, according to Turner, he had taken articles to land in township 2, range 12, the site on which he settled in 1806. He evidently visited the region before his trip south. He was a man of mark in the community, of high character, benevolent instincts and public spirit, yielding a large influence. His military record has already been recorded. (see notes for father)

She married Daniel Crawford^{1386,1387} 22 Mar 1789 in Saratoga County, NY^{1388,1389}, son of Archibald Crawford and Mary Benedict. He was born 14 Jan 1764 in Pound Ridge, Westchester Co., NY¹³⁹⁰, and died 23 Oct 1839 in Saratoga Spa, NY^{1390,1391}.

Notes for Sarah "Sally" Bemus:

Sallie related the following to her Grandson about the Battle of Saratoga. General Gates and General Lincon used their house for a headquarters for a while, then moved the headquarters to another location. The British Army burned the house, and she and her mother had to spend a very severe winter living in the barn.

The Historians of the Saratoga Battle Field say the Bemus house was never used by General Gates, but from what is written in the Bemus, and Moore Genealogy, and from the location where the house (or Inn) stood, (in the point of Rt #4 and Rt #32, marker may be found behind the barn of the present day house) I feel it is very likely that when Gen Gates arrived on the scene he used the Bemus house as a headquarters.

In the Moore genealogy it states the Bemus Family Cemetery was near the Bemus house. I could find no indication of where the cemetery was. Saratoga park rangers had never heard of a cemetery there, but felt if it existed, it may have been moved to the cemetery in Stillwater, as that is where the Battle Field park has been re burying the remains of any Rev War Soldiers they have found. 341. Mary⁵ Bemis (Benjamin⁴, Joseph³, John², Joseph¹)^{1630,1631,1632,1633} was born 11 May 1749 in Waltham, Middlesex, Massachusetts¹⁶³⁴, and died 15 Oct 1818 in Cornish, New Hampshire¹⁶³⁵. She married Zebedee Edminster^{1636,1637} 12 Sep 1771 in Spencer, Worcester, Massachusetts^{1638,1639}. He was born Mar 1747/48 in Freetown, Massachusetts¹⁶⁴⁰, and died 17 Jun 1837 in Cornish, New Hampshire¹⁶⁴⁰.

Notes for Mary Bemis:

Mary is probably the person who married Zebedee Edminster, based on the names of their children which reflect the names of her sisters. Also, her date of birth and residence in Spencer make this more likely. [Steve Dahlstrom:06/07/2003]

[The Edminster Family In America]

Mary Bemis, Zebedee's wife, was born in 1749 according to her tombstone. She was probably a member of the prominent Bemis family of Spencertown, now Spencer, Massachusetts. However, the Bemis family history (47) lists her only in the "Addenda" in recording her marriage to Zebedee. This Bemis family descended from John Bemis who was born in Dedham, Essex County, England about 1550. His grandson, Joseph, came to Watertown (now part of Boston) in 1640. Many Bemis men served in the French and Indian and Revolutionary Wars.

Notes for Zebedee Edminster:

[The Edminster Family In America]

Zebedee Edminster was born in Freetown, Massachusetts in March 1748 (or 1747 ?) according to his deposition in applying for a Revolutionary War veteran's pension. He was probably son of William and Mary (Paul) but this is concluded through circumstantial evidence. He moved to Oakham, Worcester County, Massachusetts, probably late in the 1760's. On 12 September 1771, he married Mary Bemis of Spencertown (now Spencer) and they lived in that area until shortly after 1790 (45) (46). His record as a Revolutionary War was described in Part I; also, Mary Bemis' probable ancestry was noted as well as the six children born in Spencertown. When they came to Cornish, New Hampshire in the early 1790's, they had three of their six children with them. Henry, probably named after Zebedee's (probable) brother Henry, had been buried in 1786 and apparently Katharina and John also had died in Massachusetts although published records of the deaths of the latter two have not been found.

The following is his testimony of his service in the Revolution, as recorded by the Co. of Worcester, Mass., 9-6-1832, Judge Nathan Paine presiding.:

That he entered the service of the United States under the following named officers and served as herein stated: "On or about the first day of August A.D. 1775, the said Amasa Bemis enlisted as a private soldier into a company of Massachusetts Militia commanded by Captain Cole in the regiment commanded by Col. ---- Woodbridge, marched to Cambridge near Boston, Mass., where we were put under the command of General Washington, was stationed at said Cambridge the remainder of the term being four months, and was discharged on about the first day of December the same year. Also, on the 30th of July A.D. he received a Sargeants warrant (which is here unto annexed) and enlisted as a Sargeant into a company of Foot, commanded by Captain Ralph Earll, in the Regiment commanded by Col. Danforth Keyes, marched to Providence, Rhode Island, and was stationed at Providence and other places in the vicinity, the remainder of the term being six months. Also, the said Amasa Bemis, sometime during the month of September, 1776, enlisted into a company of Massachusetts Militia as a private soldier; said company was commanded by Captain Josiah White, in the regiment commanded by Colonel Samuel Denny, that he marched from said Spencer to Hartford, thence to New Haven, CT., thence to Terry-Town, so --- on the River Hudson, New York, and was stationed there two months. All of the above tour of duty were done in the War of the Revolution. He was born at Spencer, aforesaid, October 10, 1757, and a record thereof is in the town records of Spencer, has lived in said Spencer ever since he was born and lives there still. Has never received a written discharge. The whole time of service as above specified is twelve months. Refers to William Pope --- Joseph Mason, Walton Livermore, and William Sumner who are my neighbors and who can state my character for truth. --- the second term of enlistment has he received a Sargeant's warrant, was by mistake inserted into the place where it stands, it ought to be placed after the second term of enlistment."

Signed: Nathan Paine, Judge of the Probate Court, and Amasa Bemis, himself.

Steve,

I got this from the Archives today and thought you would be interested, since you are such a great Bemis researcher and were such a great help to me early on in my search! I also found Nancy's grave Beloit, Wisconsin. She died 10-19-1855 and she is buried in Oakwood Cemetery, Block C, lot 219, grave space 3. She went to Wisconsin to get a bounty land due from the govt. for Amasa's service. She went with her son Dexter Bemis. Thanks for all your help in the past.

Following items are found in - Charles A. Bemis, History of the Town of Marlborough, Cheshire County, N.H., (Press of Geo.H. Ellis, 141 Franklin Street, Boston, Mass.; originally printed 1881):

In March, 1776, the Continental Congress took measures [a resolution] to disarm all persons who where notoriously opposed to the cause of America. They passed a resolution on the subject, a copy of which was transmitted to all the Colonies. The Committee of Safety for New Hampshire, under the leadership of Hon. Mesbach Weare, immediately sent to the several towns a copy of this resolution, and also a pledge of loyalty for the citizens of each town to sign. This pledge was called the "Association Test"; all those who refused to sign it were supposed to be Tories, and were looked upon by their neighbors with suspicion.

The original paper containing the signatures of fifty of the citizens of Monadnock No. V. was found in the office of the Secretary of State at Concord, from which the following copy was made: --

Colony of New Hampshire, &C.

Committee of Safety.

April, 12, 1776.

To the Selectmen of Monadnock, No. five: In order to carry the underwritten RESOLVE of the Honorable Continental Congress into execution, you are requested to desire all Males above twenty-one years of age, (lunatics, idiots and negroes excepted,) to sign the DECLARATION on this page, and when so done, to make return thereof together with the name, or names of all who shall refuse to sign the same to the GENERAL, ASSEMBLY, or Committee of Safety of this Colony.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the several Assemblies, Conventions and Councils, or Committees of Safety of the United States immediately to cause all persons to be disarmed within their respective Colonies, who are notoriously disaffected to the cause of AMERICA, or who have not associated and refused to associate to defend by ARMS the United Colonies against the hostile attempts of the British Fleet and Armies.

Extract from the minutes,

In consequence of the above Resolution of the Continental CONGRESS, and to show our determination in joining our American brethren in defending the lives, liberties and properties of the inhabitants of the UNITED COLONIES;

We, the Subscribers, do hereby solemnly engage and promise that we will to the utmost of our power, at the risk of our lives and fortunes, with ARMS oppose the hostile proceedings of the British Fleets and Armies against the United American COLONIES.

Under a section on Schools, there is the following description: "The East School Squadron, or District No. 6 -- This district in 1794 was composed of eleven families, as follows: -- Henry Hunt, Seth Harrington, Thaddeus Hastings, Francis Hastings, Luke Newton, Calvin Stone, Timothy Bemis, Shubel Stone, Jeremiah Bemis, David Bemis, Eliphalet Stone.

The first school-house stood in the pasture north of the house of Samuel Jones. This, like others of that day, was but a rude affair, and at the commencement of the present century had become unfit for use. Consequently, in the year 1800, the school was kept at the house of Timothy Bemis, the same now owned by Samuel Jones. Mr. Bemis received four shillings per week for the use of his house."

Notes for Daniel Bemis:

[Received from David Bemis]

- Daniel Bemis fought in the Revolutionary War, enlisted as a private, in Captain Fullers Co. 37th Regiment company return dated Prospect Hill, October 6, 1775. They marched on the alarm of April 19, 1775. Further Daniel and John, his brother John? Were paid for watching British Prisoners held at Cambridge, MA. on April 2, 1782. As recorded in the town records for Weston, MA.
- Daniel also served in Capt. Asabet Wheelers Co. for three months And ten days, in Cambridge, MA. Co. for six months in Rhode Island in 1777.
- Daniel also served in Capt. Fisk's Company
- In 1799 Daniel Bemis and his brother Lot were appointed by the Town of Weston as "Hogreaves" (people who viewed hogs to see if they were ok).
- In 1803, Daniel Bemis, and a Samuel Smith were appointed by the Town of Weston as "Fence Viewers"
- In May 1814, there is a Daniel Bemis listed in the "Census of the Children" ages 4-18. At this time he is shown to have three children in this category in the North West District of Weston: Abijah, Joseph, and Henry, no ages were given.

Daniel Bemis Guardianship/probate

Daniel Bemis; had an action filed against him by the town of Weston In 1822 involving his property and debts owed to people and the town. The issue involved certain suits filled, and some relatively important people in the Weston, MA area. Those people involved and complaints filed against Daniel Bemis are: Nathaniel Hobbs, Henry Hobbs, and Washington Pierce, dated February 14th 1822. It should be noted that Mr. Pierce was the town constable at that time. The reasons for this action in being filed by the town of Western was that Daniel Bemis was said to be a drunkard, and a spendthrift. The specific language of the complaint is as follows "excessive drinking, idleness, and spendthrift that lessens his estate so as to expose himself in his family, does also thereby endanger and expose the said town of Weston, MA. In light of these actions the town of Western appointed a guardian and bounder, Mr. Washington Pierce, who was to oversee Daniel's estate. In the judge that presided over this matter in the Middlesex Probate Court is Judge Samuel P.P. Fay, and the signatories, were; Augustus H. Fisk, Isaac Fisk, Benjamin Jones, a "Physician", and James Billings, a "Gentleman". As part of this action a sum of $10,000.00 was placed in escrow with the Middlesex Probate Court. In the probate actions there are numerous persons named to money was owed and paid. A rather unusual notation made in the probate was this, "the sum of $5.00 was paid to a George Morton for a funeral for his wife who was "burned to death". In 1825 Washington Pierce it is noted was removed from office as Daniel's guardian. In 1827, a Horatio Allen was appointed "Guardian, and then removed in 1829. It seems that his later life, as outlined in this court action, was difficult. He was on medication from a Doctor Ames, and in 1822 his residence was paid on a month to month basis and at one point he was receiving care for a "bleeding sore" in 1827. What actions there were seemed to have been completed in the year 1829. At one point in the Guardianship there is a reference to the assigned guardians as being "overseers of the poor", apparently Daniel was "poor" Daniel dies in 1832, four or so years after the last action.

The Revolutionary War

Records show that during the Revolution seven Bemis' from the town of Weston served in the war. From Daniel's family there were John, Nathaniel, Jeduthan, and Daniel. Timothy, their older brother, was on the Board of Correspondence. This board was responsible for getting information and letters back and forth to the local and state communities, as well as other states regarding the plans and procedures for the war. In addition to these brothers there were Jacob, James and Thaddeus Bemis, apparently relatives, that also served in the War. They were part of various companies of soldiers from Weston, and fought in numerous battles of the war. {5} Daniel, who applied for a pension, was noted to have fought in the battles of Bunker Hill, and at Bemis Heights, in up state New York.{4} At this time men were allowed to enlist for short periods of time (days, months or years) and then return home. In many cases during the course of the war they would enlist in the local army 3- 4 times. Daniel Bemis for example enlisted in the army five times for a total of two years, eight months service. It was not until 1818 that Daniel applied for a pension due to his "reduced circumstances", and in 1820 he received the pension

An interesting note made in the book "Weston, A Puritan Town" by Emma Ripley wrote the following excerpt. I do not think she is correct. First, his wife Patty did not die in 1842, she died in 1823 in a fire. Second, Daniel and Patty, as far as can be determined had four or more children, of which Luther, Abijah, Joseph and Henry were but four of. They may have had two or more daughters as well. Thus Daniel did have legal heirs, but why the house was lost such as it was is not known.

"The house on rising ground with lawn sloping to Sudbury Road, now the home of Frank B. Dow, Jr., was built by John Bemis, brother of Dinah Bemis who married Jonathan Stratton. Of the fourth generation from Joseph Bemis who was in Watertown in 1640, John married Hannah Warren of Weston in 1731. His family numbered twelve children, of whom Daniel, the youngest, born in 1758, inherited farm and homestead and married Patty Winch of East Sudbury in 1784. After the death of his widow Patty (or Martha) in 1842, there were no direct heirs and the Bemis property was finally sold in the 1880's to Mr. Moses H. Fuller. Mr. Fuller, born in Weston, had lived for many years in St. Louis, Missouri, and was glad to return to the old New England."

Notes for Abraham Bemis:

[Draper:92] ...Private in the first Company of Waltham, War of the Revolution.

Abraham Bemis was one of the first fruits of Methodism in the East. With an unrestrained liberality, he opened the doors of his home at Waltham for its Evangelists, and for many years it was their home and temple. Hundreds gathered for years, in the shades of his orchards, to hear them preach, and many were there converted, including all of Mr. Bemis' family, and many of his relations. The old Weston Society was formed under his roof -- his name being the first on the roll. His hospitality towards God's Messengers returned in a hundredfold; his acres increased and abundance surrounded him.

Notes for Oliver Hastings:

[Draper:98] Oliver Hastings was a builder, and a Federal pensioner for services in the War of 1812.

[NEGHR:1879:33:380]: "Deaths"

Hastings, Mr. Oliver, of Cambridge, died Feb. 18, 1879, in the 88th year of his age. He was a son of Maj. Samuel and Lydia (Nelson) Hastings, of Lincoln, where he was born May 16, 1791. Maj. Hastings was among the patriots on Lexington Common, April 19, 1775, and his lineage is traced to Thomas Hastings, of Watertown, the first settler in N. England of that name.

Oliver was educated at the public schools, and learning the trade of carpenter, established himself in Cambridge, where he soon became a contractor and master builder. Besides many other structures, he built the present Unitarian Church in (Old) Cambridge, and most of the best houses occupied by the college professors forty years ago. He afterwards became an extensive lumber dealer.

He was retiring in manners, a true and consistent christian, eminently genial and social, with large liberality. He was an admirer of art, and to some extent both a patron of art and education.

Mr. Hastings was a pensioner for service in the war of 1812. He was a follower and admirer of Webster and Sumner. For nearly forty years he was the nearest neighbor to Professor Longfellow, whose friendship and writings he deeply appreciated.

He was twice married: first, Sept. 10, 1824, to Eliza, daughter of Amos and Susan (Fiske) Bemis, of Lincoln; second, Sept. 28, 1843, to Mrs. Huldah (Holmes) Tribon, daughter of Howland and Huldah (Copeland) Holmes, of Bridgewater, Mass., who survives him.

Com. by H. Holmes, M. D.

Notes for Grizel Livermore:

JASON⁵ LIVERMORE (Josiah,⁴ Joseph,³ John,² John¹) was born Dec. 1, 1726, in Weston; died Oct. 14, 1797, in Paxton; married in Weston, March 30, 1749, Abigail, daughter of William and Mary (Flagg) Hagar, born Aug. 11, 1725, in Weston; died Jan. 17, 1824, in Paxton. In 1748 he and his brother Josiah bought a tract of land in the westerly part of Leicester, near and in part upon Moose Hill; they divided these lands, and Jason, having built a small house on his portion, took his bride to his new home, and in this house they lived the rest of their lives.

He was twice chosen as a surveyor of highways in Leicester. The town furnished five men, in 1756, as her quota in a call for one thousand men from Worcester and Hampshire counties. Their names were Ezekiel Bellows, Jacob Wicker, Jason Livermore, David Wicker and John Wicker. These men were in the command of Gen. Ruggles, and saw service at Crown Point, Fort Edward and Ticonderoga. Inscription on his powder-horn says: "Jason Livermore his horn made at fort Edward August ye 29. 1759." On his return from that unsuccessful and unfortunate expedition, he came by land through the wilderness, with two or three companions, and suffered hardships and privations from cold and hunger.

In 1765 that part of Leicester in which he lived, with a part of Rutland, was incorporated as a district by the name of Paxton. The first town meeting of Paxton was held March 11, 1765, at the house of Mr. John Snow, when Jason Livermore was chosen constable. He was an active and prominent man in Paxton, having aided in procuring the act of incorporation, and assisted in building the first meeting-house. He was one of the members of the first Congregational church organized in the town.

When the news reached Paxton that the "regulars" had attacked Concord and Lexington, Jason Livermore and his three sons, Jason, William, and Josiah, were plowing in the field, and learning that the company of minute men (Capt. Willard Moore's), of which they were members, would march forthwith, the father said, "Boys, unyoke the cattle and let us be off." No sooner said than done, and they at once made ready, with the household pewter dishes melted into bullets, and marched to Cambridge, and there joined the Continental army, being attached to Col. Doolittle's regiment. On June 17, 1775, under command of Major Willard Moore, then in charge of the regiment, they took part in the battle of Bunker Hill, where Major Moore was killed. The wife and mother, left at home with a son only twelve years of age, continued the farm work, besides excavating the earth under the barn and other buildings, and from it obtaining more than one hundred pounds of nitre or saltpetre, for the purpose of making gunpowder, of which there was great need in the army.

Jason Livermore and Samuel Brewer of Sutton raised a company of volunteers in Paxton and Sutton, of which he was the second in command, and marched on the 9th of August, 1776, from Paxton to Charlestown No. 4, in New Hampshire, thence to Ticonderoga and Mount Hope, where they were stationed for some time. After the close of the war he retired to his farm, where he passed the rest of his life.

425. Joel⁵ Bemis (Samuel⁴, Samuel³, John², Joseph¹)²⁴¹³ was born 07 Feb 1768 in Spencer, Worcester, Massachusetts²⁴¹⁴, and died 1815 in Lyndon, Caledonia, Vermont²⁴¹⁵. He married Nancy Jenks²⁴¹⁶ 17 Apr 1791 in Spencer, Worcester, Massachusetts^{2416,2417,2418}, daughter of Nathaniel Jenks and Content Carpenter. She was born 1774 in Pawtucket, Prov., Rhode Island, and died 1865.

Notes for Joel Bemis:

Draper (3): "BEMIS Joel, m. Nancy Jenks, of Brookfield, April 17, 1791, and removed to Lyndon, Vt."

[Gazetteer of Caledonia and Essex Counties, VT.; 1764-1887, Compiled and Published by Hamilton Child; May 1887, Page 151-172]

Joel Bemis, a native of Spencer, Mass., moved to Lyndon about 1800, where he remained until his death, in 1815, aged forty-seven years. He married Nancy Jenks, and reared four children, viz.: Content, John S. J., Sally and Clarissa. John S. J. married Nancy S. Smith, and has had born to him two children, Octavia D., now deceased, and Emma J. (Mrs. Walter C. Cheney). He represented the town in 1880, has been justice of the peace fifteen years, and lives at Burke Hollow, where he has resided fifty-four years.

- 1034 iii. Sally Bemis²⁴²⁷. She married George W. Payne.

Notes for George W. Payne:

[Mary Taffet:mdtaffet@mailbox.syr.edu:12/30/2002]

I found a listing in the 1880 census for Lyndon, Caledonia County, that includes the following persons:

Census Place: Lyndon, Caledonia, Vermont
Source: FHL Film 1255342 National Archives Film T9-1342 Page 97A
Relation Sex Marr Race Age Birthplace
Hollis INGALLS Self M M W 70 VT
Occ: Farmer Fa: NH Mo: NH
Diana C INGALLS Wife F M W 55 VT
Occ: Keeping House Fa: CT Mo: VT
George W PAYNE FatherL M W 84 CT
Fa: CT Mo: CT

So, it would appear that the as yet not completely identified sister of Clarissa BEMIS was (a) the wife of George W. PAYNE, and (b) the mother of Diana (BEMIS) INGALLS. Both Diana INGALLS and George PAYNE filed depositions on Clarissa's behalf.

The 1850 census for Lyndon shows a George W. PAYNE, age 55, born in CT, with wife Sally, age 52, born in VT, but no children are living in the household at that time. I'm guessing that Sally was Sally BEMIS, daughter of Joel BEMIS & Nancy JENKS.

+ 1035 iv. Clarissa Bemis, born 03 Jan 1802 in Lyndon, Caledonia, Vermont; died 16 Jan 1892.

[Received from Linda Smith]

The following is his testimony of his service in the Revolution, as recorded by the Co. of Worcester, Mass., 9-6-1832, Judge Nathan Paine presiding.:

That he entered the service of the United States under the following named officers and served as herein stated: "On or about the first day of August A.D. 1775, the said Amasa Bemis enlisted as a private soldier into a company of Massachusetts Militia commanded by Captain Cole in the regiment commanded by Col. ---- Woodbridge, marched to Cambridge near Boston, Mass., where we were put under the command of General Washington, was stationed at said Cambridge the remainder of the term being four months, and was discharged on about the first day of December the same year. Also, on the 30th of July A.D. he received a Sargeants warrant (which is here unto annexed) and enlisted as a Sargeant into a company of Foot, commanded by Captain Ralph Earll, in the Regiment commanded by Col. Danforth Keyes, marched to Providence, Rhode Island, and was stationed at Providence and other places in the vicinity, the remainder of the term being six months. Also, the said Amasa Bemis, sometime during the month of September, 1776, enlisted into a company of Massachusetts Militia as a private soldier; said company was commanded by Captain Josiah White, in the regiment commanded by Colonel Samuel Denny, that he marched from said Spencer to Hartford, thence to New Haven, CT., thence to Terry-Town, so --- on the River Hudson, New York, and was stationed there two months. All of the above tour of duty were done in the War of the Revolution. He was born at Spencer, aforesaid, October 10, 1757, and a record thereof is in the town records of Spencer, has lived in said Spencer ever since he was born and lives there still. Has never received a written discharge. The whole time of service as above specified is twelve months. Refers to William Pope --- Joseph Mason, Walton Livermore, and William Sumner who are my neighbors and who can state my character for truth. --- the second term of enlistment has he received a Sargeant's warrant, was by mistake inserted into the place where it stands, it ought to be placed after the second term of enlistment."

Signed: Nathan Paine, Judge of the Probate Court, and Amasa Bemis, himself.

Steve,

I got this from the Archives today and thought you would be interested, since you are such a great Bemis researcher and were such a great help to me early on in my search! I also found Nancy's grave Beloit, Wisconsin. She died 10-19-1855 and she is buried in Oakwood Cemetery, Block C, lot 219, grave space 3. She went to Wisconsin to get a bounty land due from the govt. for Amasa's service. She went with her son Dexter Bemis. Thanks for all your help in the past.

Notes for Capt. Phinehas Stearns:

[Bond:515] Captain PHINEHAS STEARNS...a farmer and blacksmith, of Watertown; was a soldier at Lake George, 1756, and was among the earliest to take up arms in the Revolution. He commanded a company on Dorchester Heights, when the British evacuated Boston. He, with Samuel Barnard (a major in the Revolutionary Army), and John Randall, all of Watertown, were of the "Boston Tea-Party," and assisted in that renowned transaction. He was offered a Colonel's commission, but the care of his young children, upon the death of his wife, and of a family of apprentices and journeymen, prevented his continuing in the public service after the British left Boston. He was distinguished for his benevolent and cheerful disposition, which was strongly marked in his open, manly countenance. This, with his good sense and strict integrity, made him a favourite of all who knew him.

[Draper:176] Capt. Stearns was a farmer and blacksmith in Watertown; he took part in 1756 in the Lake George expedition as a private and was one of the earliest to take up arms in the Revolution. He was one of the participants in the "Boston Tea Party", and commanded a company on Dorchester Heights when the British evacuated Boston. He was offered a Colonel's Commission, but declined it, as, on account of his wife's death, his children needed all his care. In Watertown he was one of the most benevolent and highly esteemed citizens.

The Bemis grist-mill, on the privilege below Snow's Falls, was built soon after the incorporation of the town, by Seth and Luke Bemis of Watertown. They also established a store at the place and employed as clerk Alanson Mellen, who also "tended" the mill. Eleazer Dunham became the miller after the removal of Major Mellen to Paris Hill. The mill and the bridge were carried away by a freshet about 1822. The floating wreck is well remembered by daughters of Eleazer Dunham-Mrs. Holden and Mrs. Jairus Cummings. Mr. Dunham narrowly escaped, having left the mill but a moment before it was carried away. The house, barn and store were purchased by David Bemis and moved to the David Bemis farm, since owned by David R. Ripley and now by Mr. Jackson.

[Draper:179] Luke Bemis was Captain of the Trained Band, and Selectman of Watertown, 1800-1-2-3 and 4.

"According to the data of the descendants Jonathan removed from Watertown, Mass., to Paris, Maine, when a lad, with his parents, David Bemis and Mary Bigelow. Jonathan Bemis was a man of sturdy qualities, and a worthy citizen in every respect. A grandson writes, "Miss Caroline Bemis, Salem, Mass., if she is living, can give much information about the Bemis Tribe, more than any one else, in fact. She was getting up a history of the Bemis Family, but I have not heard from her for over 20 years."

"Potash was quite extensively manufactured in previous years. Daniel Stowell was engaged in its manufacture at an early date. The Potash stood near the barn of William Rice. There was one also near the north-west corner of the old cemetery on Paris Hill. Its location is pointed out by Samuel R. Carter as being a few rods below the cemetery and on the southern slope of the bank across the run. Simeon Cummings also entered into the manufacture. The site is now occupied by the stand of Stephen D. Hutchinson. In later years, Francis Bemis operated a potash on the site of the Elmer H. Marble stand. There were probably others."

- 1280 iv. George Bemis^{3373,3374}, born 16 Oct 1816 in Cambridge, Middlesex, Massachusetts³³⁷⁵; died in Nice, France³³⁷⁶.

Notes for George Bemis:

[History of Newton, p. 769-70]

George Bemis was a native of Watertown, and died at Nice, France. His father was a man of great energy of character, being proprietor of the Bemis factory, North Village, one of the oldest establishments of the kind in Newton. As a lawyer Mr. Bemis attained considerable distinction, and was at one time Solicitor of the Boston and Worcester Railroad. Connected with Attorney-General Clifford in the trial of Webster for the murder of Dr. Parkman, by his untiring industry he brought together a vast array of evidence, greatly contributing to present a convincing case to the jury. He afterwards published a report of the trial in book form, making one of the most remarkable cases of American jurisprudence. As a writer on International law, in connection with our differences with Great Britain, he displayed a thorough knowledge of the subject, and in his affair had very intimate relations with the late Senator Sumner. He was not a politician, and studiously avoided all public position. He was a pupil, in early years, of Mr. Seth Davis, and on the occasion of the ninetieth birthday anniversary of his old Master, sent him a letter of congratulation. Mr. Bemis was about sixty years of age, and was unmarried.

His will contained many public bequests. Among them was a bequest to his sister, Sarah Wheeler Bemis, for her life use, $50,000; also, his pictures and other objects of art; to the President and Fellows of Harvard College the sum of money set apart for the life use of his sister, to be held for the establishment and maintenance of a professorship of international law in the Dane Law School of said University; $5,000 to pay for the compilation and publication of his articles on Public Law and the Alabama claims; to the Department of State of the United States his annotated volumes of American and British Diplomatic Correspondence, including the published documents connected with the Geneva award; to his executors, the sum of $5,000 to be applied toward the completion of the subscription to the Story statue of President Quincy, ordered on behalf of the Alumni of Harvard College; to the Massachusetts Historical Society, all the MSS. and printed material for the preparation of the Webster Trial Reports; to the Boston Atheneum, $20,000 for the purchase of books for the reading room. The will is dated October 23, 1872.

Notes for Joseph Bemis:

[Dunster:147] Joseph Bemis, the second child of David and Molly (Dunster) Bemis, enlisted into the Continental service when between 16 and 17 years of age. Wintered at Valley Forge with Washington's Army. He stood guard on night over a house in which General Washington was an inmate. At daybreak, the General came out and said, "Pretty cold morning, isn't it soldier? Do you suppose a little peach brandy would hurt you? Mr. Bemis replied, "I think not." The General returned to the house and sent his servant out with a flask. At another time, while on guard duty, General Washington wished to pass into camp. He presented his gun, and called for the countersign. General W. told him that he could let him pass; he was one of his officers. Mr. B. replied, "told him he must give the password first. The General then said, "You have a fine gun there, soldier." B. replied, "Guess I can kill an Indian six or eight rods off. Stand out there; you can tell. The General held out his hat and showed the countersign in it, which was obliged to be given in a whisper, or written. As he passed, the General slapped him on the shoulder, and said, "I wish I had a whole regiment of soldiers like you." He married Jemima Stoddard; was a farmer, in Dummerston, Vt. The family are Baptists. He died at Dummerston. Had six children: ...

[Received from Teresa Y. Mitchell, funyfarm@quicktel.com] (relates another publication of this story)

The Vermont Historical Gazetteer tells this Joseph Bemis Sr., story which was also told in the Pavor Household, so Dr. Pavor verifies it.

"Joseph Bemis was in the Continental Service at the age of 17. He wintered at Valley Forge with Washingtons army in 1777. One night he stood on guard over a house in which General Washington was an inmate. At daybreak the General came out and said, "Pretty cold isn't it, soldier? Do you Suppose a little peach brandy would hurt you?" "I think not " replied Bemis. The General sent him the brandy. On another occasion Washington wished to pass into camp where Bemis was on guard. He halted the General, presented his gun and called for the counter sign. "You can let me pass," said Washington, "I am one of the officers." "You have a fine gun there soldier." "Yes" replied Bemis, "Guess I can kill an Indian six or eight rods off. Stand out there; you can tell." The General held out his hat, showing the countersign inside, and was allowed to pass on. As he went by, he slapped Bemis on the shoulder and said, "I wish I had a whole regiment of soldiers like you."

The Joseph Bemis Jr., family moved from Vermont to New York. They may have stopped in Ellisburg on the way, to see the Alcander Dickinson family. Alcanders first wife, Emily Bemis died in 1848. Josephs family settled in Ashford, Cattaraugus County, New York, around 1849.

Josephs son Edwin, whose wife died before 1850, lived in the Ellisburg, Jefferson County, New York , area for several years. He appeared on the 1850 census. In 1855 he had been in Ashford for about four years. By 1859 he must have been in Ashford, for he married Chauncey Crossfields widow.

It is still not clear when Josephs wife Abigail died but it was prior to 1870 when he was living alone with Jesse Bemis's family. Joseph Jr. was still living whe the 1880 census was taken in Ashford. At that time he was about 93 years old.

There are many intermarriages in this family - even cases of cousins marrying. The Dickinson brothers mother was Sarah Bemis, probable sister of Joseph Bemis, Sr. Each married a cousin. Elias returned to Vermont from New York to marry a probable daughter of Nathaniel and Polly (Bemis) Attridge. Then George and Alcander returned to marry Joseph Jrs. daughters.

Notes for Dr. Samuel Merrifield Bemiss:

[Draper:187-191] " Dr. Bemiss' early education was carefully conducted by his father and private tutors until the age of eighteen, when he determined to study medicine, entering for that purpose the office of his brother-in-law, Dr. Samuel Maryfield, of Bloomfield. Here he remained until 1841, when he went to New York and became the first matriculate of the University of New York. Having returned to Bloomfield in the following year to continue his studies under his father and brother-in-law we find him at the bedside of his first case in August, 1842. Thus is remarkably active life as a practitioner of medicine extended over more than forty years.

In the fall of 1844 he went back to New York, where in the following spring he received his diploma, and degree " Medicine Doctor " from the University. To this careful and protracted course of study, and his own remarkable memory, was probably due that exact and minute knowledge of the details of many branches forgotten by most to dance in three years after they have risen from the benches.

Returning to Bloomfield, Dr. Bemiss at once became associated in an active practice with Dr. Merrifield, his former preceptor. This connection lasted until 1850, when another was formed with Dr. Joshua Gore. This was a period of his life of which Dr. Bemiss often spoke with great pleasure. He was full of anecdotes illustrated of the old-time in Kentucky, and, as he spoke, enlivening the story with many touches of hearty humor, man and manners rose clearly before the listener.

In 1853, the Doctor moved to Louisville, and joined practice with Benjamin Wible, a companionship only broken by the departure of the other for the Confederate army in 1862. Meanwhile, Dr. Bemiss had been appointed by the State, Registrar of Kentucky, in 1849; in 1858, Professor of Chemical Medicine; then, in 1859, Professor of Hygiene and Medical Jurisprudence, and finally, in 1861, Professor of Therapeutics and Materia Medica in the University of Louisville. In the latter year Kentucky had declared an armed neutrality, and many of her citizens were joining ranks of either army. After some months of mature deliberation, Dr. Bemiss became convinced that his opinions and sympathies were with the Southern cause, and that once offered his services to the Confederacy. He became Acting Surgeon of the Provisional Army, at Tunnel Hill, Georgia, where he saw his first hospital work. His value was soon recognized by the authorities, and, in 1862, he received his commission as full surgeon, and was assigned to duty on the Medical Examining Board, in session at Hamilton's Crossing, Virginia. It was during this period that Dr. Bemiss met and rendered some medical service Gen. R. E. Lee, a circumstance to which he was wont to allude with pleasure. There is now in the position of the family a letter in which the General thanks the doctor in warm terms for his attention and kindness.

In April, 1863, he was ordered to take charge of the hospital at Cherokee Springs, Georgia where he remained until after the battle of Chickamauga, when he was transferred to Newman. December 1st, 1863, he was appointed Assistant Medical Director of Hospitals, to S. H. Stout, Medical Director of the Army of Tennessee, and, in 1864, Medical Director of Hospitals in the rear of the Army of Tennessee. At the latter post he remained until General Lee's surrender at Appomattox Court House, April, 1865.

Dr. Bemiss now returned to Louisville; was at once elected Professor of Physiology and Pathology in the University, in an upon a large and remunerative practice. In the spring of 1866, however, he accepted a call to the chair of Theory and Practice of the Medicine, and Clinical Medicine in the University of Louisiana. Dr. Bemiss now sailed for Europe, where he spent the summer in traveling and in visiting the hospitals of Great Britain and France.

In the Fall he returned to New Orleans and entered upon his new position, the duties of which he continued to discharge without interruption, and with great satisfaction to his colleagues and students up to the day of his death.

Dr. Bemiss' style in lecturing was marked in simplicity and force. His delivery, slow and emphatic. Few of his students will ever forget the impressive forefinger, lifted to work some especially nice point of diagnosis, or treatment. In opinion he was conservative and judicial. He was careful in directing attention to the relations between symptoms and pathology. As a clinical teacher Professor Bemiss was most painstaking. Ever punctual in his words he would pass from bed to bed, patiently demonstrating each case, and pointing out the appropriate remedies and their rationale.

It was his custom to make each student practice day after day the arts of auscultation and percussion; each day a number of the class would be called upon to examine, diagnosticate, and prescribe for some new case, a bit of good-humored raillery being the penalty of a too glaring mistake. In these exercises the Doctor was at especial pains to encourage a feeling of self-reliance in his students. Turning to a number of his class he would invite him to listen to a beautiful example of such and such a sound (in a perfectly normal lung), and was always delighted when the pupil frankly declared his inability to hear it.

In 1878, Dr. Bemiss was named as chairman of the commission appointed to investigate the origin and spread of the great yellow-fever epidemic of that year. He threw himself into the work with all his heart, and in conjunction with Dr. Jerome Cochran did most of the practical work. A large number of infected towns were visited, and a report presented at the meeting of the Public Health Association at Richmond, in November of this year. In the following December, the commission was merged into a Board of Experts, with Dr. John M. Woodworth, Supervising Surgeon General; of the Marine Hospital Service, as President. Many more localities were now visited, and the final report of the Board made January 29th, 1879. In March of the same year, the National Board of Health was instituted, and Dr. Bemiss was made a member, and also Chairman of the Committee on Epidemics.

Having been long a contributor to various medical periodicals, and having been ever interested in Medical journalism, Dr. Bemiss, in 1868, became Senior Editor of this Journal, a position which he continued to hold until 1883.

Besides his many valuable contributions to the pages of this Journal, and his ratings embodied in the Reports of the National Board of Health, the best known of his papers are "Essay on Croup," Louisville Review, 1856, and "Report on the Influence of Marriages of Consanguinity upon Offspring," Transactions of American Medical Associations 1858, a paper Michael of for which won for its author great praise.

Dr. Bemiss was a member of the American Medical Association; of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, of Louisville; of the Kentucky State Medical Society; of the Boston Gynecological Society; of the State Medical Association of Louisiana."

Notes for Hon. John Taggard Blodgett:

(NEHGS:1912:66:195-6) The New England Historical And Genealogical Register
July, 1912

HON. JOHN TAGGARD BLODGETT, A.M.

by Amasa Mason Eaton, A.M., LL.B.

John Taggard Blodgett, a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1906, and elected its Vice-President for Rhode Island at the annual meeting preceding his death, was born in Belmont, Massachusetts, May 16, 1859, the son of William Alfred and Anna Maria (Taggard) Blodgett, his line of descent from Thomas(1) Blodgett, born in England in 1605, who came from London, England, to Boston, Massachusetts, in the Increase in 1635, and settled at Cambridge, being through David(2), Thomas(3), Joseph(4), Jonathan(5), Jabez(6), Alfred(7), to William Alfred(8), his father. His great-great-grandfather Jonathan Blodgett of Hudson, New Hampshire, answered the "Lexington Alarm," April 19, 1775, and later served as a private in a New Hampshire regiment. He was a great-grandson of William Taggard of Hillsborough, New Hampshire, ensign and lieutenant in the Second New Hampshire Regiment, 1776-1780; and also the great-grandson of Bartholomew Trow of Charlestown, Massachusetts, a member of "The Boston Tea Party," a minute man at Lexington April 19, 1775, lieutenant and Colonel Thomas Gardiner's regiment at Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775, and captain in the 25th Massachusetts Regiment at the siege of Quebec in 1776. He was a great-great-grandson of Hezekiah Welch of Boston, second lieutenant of the frigate Boston in 1778; and he was the great-grandson of Ebenezer Welch of Boston, midshipmen in the Revolution.

He received his early education in the public schools of Belmont and of Watertown, Massachusetts, and was graduated from the Watertown High School in 1875, and from Worcester Academy in 1876. He then entered Brown University, and was graduated with his class in 1880, being a member of the Society of Phi Beta Kappa, and receiving three years later from the college the degree of A.M.

Upon graduation he entered upon the study of law in the office of Benjamin N. Lapham, in Providence. There he completed the regular course of three years' study, and passing with brilliancy the bar examinations, he was admitted to practice. He was admitted to practice in the United States District Court in 1885, and in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in 1895, his law practice relating principally to corporation and banking business. He was United States Commissioner for the District of Rhode Island from 1890 to 1897; and he became supervisor of Federal elections in Rhode Island in 1891, remaining in that office until the repeal of the Federal election law, the duties of the office being to inspect the list of voters and to see that no fraud was practiced in Federal elections. The familiarity with election laws thus acquired led him to prepare and to carry through a state law relating to the appointment and defining the powers and duties of the Board of Canvassers and Registration. Upon its passage in 1895 he was appointed a member and became its chairman, remaining so until he became a member of the Supreme Court of the state.

He was a member of the House of Representatives from the city of Providence from 1898 to 1900, and took a leading part while a member in drafting and securing the adoption of important legislation relating to the city. His experience upon the board of canvassers led to his appointment in 1900 as chairman of a commission to revise the ward plans of the city of Providence.

He was chairman of the Rhode Island Commission to the Jamestown Exposition of 1907.

In 1900 he was elected by the General Assembly Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Rhode Island, remaining in that office until his death, at Providence March 4, 1912.

An examination of his opinions in the Rhode Island Reports illustrates his thoroughness of research, his scholarship, capacity for work, and independence of judgment, especially in some of the dissenting opinions he delivered.

Besides his association with this Society, Judge Blodgett was a member of the Rhode Island Historical Society, the Rhode Island Society of Colonial Wars, and the Rhode Island Society of Sons of the American Revolution. He was also a corresponding member of The Colonial Society of Massachusetts, and contributed a paper upon "The Political Theory of the Mayflower Compact" to its Transactions in 1909.

He married first, March 28, 1883, Amelia Wilson Torrey, daughter of Moses Eddy and Amelia (Wilson) Torrey of Providence, by whom he had a son, Moses Torrey, who died soon after his birth, and a daughter, Gwendolen. On August 15, 1900, he married his second wife, Amy de Lacy Bemiss, daughter of Dr. Samuel Merrifield and Frances (Lockert) Bemiss of New Orleans, Louisiana, who survives him, with the daughter by his first wife, Gwendolen Blodgett.

- 1495 vi. John Harrison Bemiss³⁷³⁴, born 24 Aug 1856 in Louisville, Kentucky³⁷³⁴; died 02 Sep 1897 in Ocean Sps., Mississippi³⁷³⁴.

Notes for John Harrison Bemiss:

[Draper:191-194] His first trip into the world was made to visit his father's honored preceptor, the distinguished Dr. Draper, of New York. So he went on a pilgrimage, which was filled with many experiences. He remembered with much pleasure the one bright our he spent with the aged man, who gave him a very warm reception.

In the course of time he went to the University of Virginia, where he was said to be the youngest boy that up to that time had ever entered the institution, being just fifteen. Here he prosecuted his studies with earnestness and with much success for several years, graduating in 1876. He then returned to New Orleans, where he matriculated in the Medical Department of the University of Louisiana, now Tulane. During these days he was closely associated with his father, Professor Bemiss, assisting him greatly in the preparation of his lecture notes. For a short time proceeding his graduation he was a resident student and the Charity Hospital, but did not remain long, owing to an opportunity which presented itself through the kindness of Prof. T. G. Richardson. This was the offer of a medical position under the Hawaiian goverment. Professor Bemiss, believing the change of climate would materially benefit his health, advised him to stand a premature examination and accept it. This he did, and having received his diploma, he went to the spring of 1878 to the Sandwich Islands, where he remained about five years. He was government physician in the Wauilckee and Lahaina districts, his residence and office being in the town of Wailuckee on the Island of Maui. He published after his return an interesting article on Hawaii.

He had much of interest to relate of his life out there, and told his experiences in a peculiarly delightful style. He had learned the Hawaiian language and was fond of calling attention to the musical character of its many beautiful vowel combinations. While in the islands he carried on a practical study of leprosy and made some valuable contributions to its literature. When he returned to New Orleans about 1882, he entered into partnership with his father, Dr. S. M. Bemiss, who still occupied the chair of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in the University. He continued with his father until the sudden death from apoplexy up Professor Bemiss in 1885, just at the beginning of the course of lectures.

During his partnership with his father, which lasted until the death of the latter, Dr. Bemiss very materially assisted in the hospital work of the professor. He served as chief of clinic and rendered much efficient service, taking numerous case notes and carefully following the admirable course of instruction in physical diagnosis, carried on by Prof. Bemiss. All who were so fortunate as to be students at this time, remember the remarkable diagnostic ability of Prof. Bemiss and the very entertaining way in which he imparted his teaching. To this association with his father may be largely attributed the unusual ability of the younger Bemiss as a physical diagnostician. At his health permitted he would undoubtedly have remained the peer of any man in the Southern profession. He was so earnest and painstaking in his instruction of students that all his pupils in the classes' of Tulane, and afterwards in the New Orleans Polyclinic, remember him with the liveliest gratitude. Soon after his return from the Sandwich Islands Dr. Bemiss, with Dr. G. B. Underhill, just then returned from Germany, organized the Quiz class in the Medical Department.

Dr. Bemiss took the first year the subject of Practice of Medicine and Materia Medica; Dr. Underhill, Surgery and Anatomy; and another Physiology and Obstetrics. The following year others were associated with them. Dr. Bemiss retained the Practice of Medicine. Thus was established with the approval of the professors, the Quiz classes, which, modeled after the original one of Prof. Chaille, have in various hands continued up to the present day, making now, we believe, a feature much sought after by students. He carried on this Quiz to with as much steel and earnestness as he afterwards did his teaching in the New Orleans Polyclinic, which organized in 1887 on an entirely clinical basis. He was its first president and so continued until failing health forced him to relinquish his interest in its work. But while strength permitted, both as president and professor a Physical Diagnosis, he threw his whole soul into his work and both students and professors cordially testified to his unflagging zeal as its executive officer and to his remarkable success as a teacher. Indeed, it was no secret among the students that the chair was the most ably filled and the most sought after in the the Polyclinic. He had prepared a scheme of physical signs which was simple, but thorough, and much facilitated his instruction, which was almost entirely clinical. He had a happy knack with the students, a encouraging them on from one step to another, guiding them, making them fully appreciate each explanation so thoroughly that it was a pleasure to go on. Here was display conspicuously a trait recognized by his family from his early boyhood--that of exactness. His attention to detail, in his teaching at least, was unusual, and to this his success as a teacher is largely due. This was the underlying factor in his professional career.

In his private practice he was equally conscientious, to the poor and the rich alike. He was to charitably disposed, seemingly, preferring to devote himself to the poor. He gave his colored porter just as close and careful attention as he did the wealthiest of his patients. Money was a secondary consideration with him. He frequently forgot to send bills, and his accounts were so carelessly kept that many who would willingly have paid him well for his services, did not know what they owed him, and a practice which should have made him independent, left him scarcely anything for his long period of enforced idleness.

He wrote many valuable articles for the New Orleans Medical and Surgical Journal, and other journals. Some of these are: "A Few Cases of Leprosy," "Hysteria in Children Due to Malaria," "Thoracic Aneurism with Spontaneous Recovery," "Abscess of the Liver," "Hydronephrosis in Cystitis," "Hamophilio" and many shorter contributions, for he was for many years a regular correspondent of the Medical News and was for some years on the editorial staff of this journal. He wrote well and carefully and had his health been vigorous he would have enriched our clinical medical literature."

He was successful in business and prominent in educational matters, and one of the first trustees of Alleghany College. He was one of the first vestry of Christ Church Meadville."

[History of Crawford County, Pennsylvania, p. 718]

DR. DANIEL BEMUS (deceased), eldest son of William and Mary (Prendergast) Bemus, was born in the town of Pittstown, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., on the 4th of September, 1784. His paternal grandfather, William Bemus, was, at the time of the battle of Saratoga, the owner of and resided upon the battle-field known as Bemus Heights. His future profession was early decided upon, and to fit him for it, extraordinary opportunities, for those times, were afforded him; in addition to the advantages of the public schools, he received the instruction of a private tutor. When nineteen years of age he commenced the study of medicine with his uncle, Jediah Prendergast, a physician in active practice in Pittstown. In the spring of 1805, in company with his father's and maternal grandfather's families, in all twenty-nine persons, he went to Tennessee to search for a new home possessing the advantages of a mild climate and productive soil. They proceeded by wagon and flat-boats to Duck River, near Nashville, Tenn., their intended location. Being dissatisfied with this country, the whole family turned northward, passing through Kentucky, Ohio, and western Pennsylvania, arriving at Erie the end of September, 1805. The following spring they removed to their permanent home, now known as Bemus Point, Chautauqua Lake. In the fall of 1805 Daniel went to Philadelphia for the purpose of attending medical lectures at the University of Pennsylvania, going the whole distance on horseback. The next spring he returned to the home of his uncle, Thomas Prendergast, at Westfield, N. Y., remaining there practicing and reading during the summer. His practice extended from Silver Creek, N. Y., along the Lake Shore road to Erie, Penn., a distance of over fifty miles. He returned to Philadelphia in the fall of 1806; attended lectures during the winter, and graduated in the spring of 1807 with the degree of Doctor of Medicine. Soon after his return to his father's home, he was requested by Dr. Kennedy, a prominent physician of Meadville, Penn., then temporarily at his mills near Jamestown, N. Y. to take charge of his practice during his absence, and this resulted in Dr. Bemus locating permanently at Meadville, Dr. Kennedy retiring in his favor. On June 12, 1810, our subject was married to Jane, daughter of William Miles, of Union, Penn., who died August 2, 1826. To them were born two daughters Mary, born March 21, 1814, who married J. Stewart Riddle, an attorney of Meadville, and who died March 3, 1839, leaving one daughter, Arianna, married to Thomas B. Kennedy, of Chambersburg, Penn., and Julianna W., born February 26, 1816, died December 9, 1836. Dr. Bemus next married, June 19, 1835, Mrs. Jane Clark, widow of Conner Clark and daughter of Hon. John Brooks. By this second marriage was born May 8, 1836, Julia Prendergast, who married George H. Bemus, a lawyer of Jamestown, N. Y., now residing in Meadville. Their children are—William Marvin, a physician residing at Jamestown, N. Y.; George Prendergast, also at Jamestown; Selden, who died in infancy, and Dudley, residing with his parents. Dr. Bemus at once took a prominent position at Meadville, and was the leading physician for many years. He was one of the first Trustees of Allegheny College, doing much to promote the interests of that institution. The old college building was constructed upon a plan drawn by him. He was a member of the Episcopal Church and one of the first Vestrymen of Christ Church, Meadville. In politics he was first a Whig and then a Republican. During the war of 1812 he was Chief Surgeon of the division commanded by Maj. Gen. Mead. About 1828 he built extensive woolen, flour, lumber and oil mills on French Creek, about two miles above Meadville. As a business man he was successful, accumulating a handsome fortune, and at his death was possessed of considerable property. He died February 21, 1866, at the advanced age of eighty-three years. Few men of his time were better known or more highly esteemed in the community in which he lived.

Zebedee Edminster, Jr. (Zebedee¹), born 15 July 1792 at Cornish, New Hampshire, son of Zebedee and Mary (Bemis). He was the only child to marry and all later descendents of Zebedee are also descendents of Zebedee, Jr. He married 10 April 1814, Tirzah York, born 1796, in New Hampshire, daughter of William and Lucy (Hilliard) York. Author Child (48) gives this account of Zebedee, Jr., "They lived on the farm in South Cornish now (1910) owned and occupied by Charles S. Lear. He was a farmer, a man of unquestionable integrity and honor. He was rather an eccentric individual and of limited education. Yet he delighted in a gentlemanly address and deportment and he often used words unsuited to the case, that caused much fun for the fun-loving. Many of his expressions have outlived him and are still remembered. He was a good singer and for years led the choir in the Baptist church on the Flat. His majestic bearing in the choir is well remembered by the writer. He left Cornish about 1850 (?) and lived in Claremont (?) until his death 16 April 1858. His death was caused by falling off a load of hay, breaking his neck."

In 1836 the mission and Indians were removed to Gull Prairie. The next year after their removal, 1837, the first Baptist Church was organized in Grand Rapids, composed of immigrants to the Territory. It was gathered by the efforts of Rev. S. D. Wooster, and contained seven members. Their names should be preserved: Dea. Henry Stone, Thomas Davis, Ezekiel W. Davis, Abram Randall and wife, Zelotes Bemis and Mr. Streeter, all of whom have passed away. Mr. Wooster remained with the Church but a short time, and for the next four or five years they were without a pastor. Several of the members moved away, and the Church virtually became extinct.

EARLY SETTLERS OF WALKER

The first settler of Walker was Samuel White, who, with his family, settled on sec. 23, in 1836. He erected the first log house within the township, built the first frame barn, and erected the second saw-mill on Indian creek, on the north side of section 15. The earliest inhabitants of what was organized as Walker township in 1838, were among the early settlers of the city of Grand Rapids, and for the first few years had one voting precinct, one common township, with its headquarters in the village, Division street being the eastern boundary of what was afterward known as Walker township. Of those settling outside the city limits were Samuel White and a numerous family, in the year 1836. In the same year came Jesse Smith and family, John J. Nardin and family and Robert Hilton and Zelotes Bemis...

Silas Bemis (6), {John (5), John (4), John (3), John (2), Joseph (1), was born in Winchendon, Mass., 4 Oct., 1761. He m. 1st in Springfield, 27 Jan., 1785, Olive Spencer (b. 1762, dau. of Timothy & Lois (Hill) Spencer of Springfield, Vt.) Olive d. ---. Silas m. 2nd at Springfield, 3 Feb., 1803, Beulah Sartwell. He m. 3rd at Springfield, 7 March, 1822, Judith Mannuel.

Silas left Springfield in June of 1848 and moved to Haverhill, NH where he was living at the age of 88 years.

Pension Declaration dated 2 Oct., 1848: "I, Silas Bemis of Haverhill, in the County of Grafton, and State of New Hampshire, late of Springfield in the County of Windsor and State of Vermont, aged 88 years, testify and say that my father, John Bemis, at the commencement of the Revolutionary war, resided with his family, consisting of the following named children, in the town of Sudbury, County of Worcester, and State of Massachusetts, to wit: John, Isaac, Jonas, Jason, Silas, Amos, Reuben, Abigail, Sarah, Abel and Joel; they were all born in said town of Sudbury. I have understood that my brother, Amos drew for pension of $20 per annum and it was said that Jonas has drawn a year or so but an amount of his having considerable property he was dropped from the rolls. After the said war commenced, my father removed with his family from said town of Sudbury about 40 miles to the town of Winchendon in said County of Worcester. My said father John Bemis never was out in the United States military service during said Revolutionary War but four of his sons were to wit: John, Jonas, Amos and myself, but I have never obtained a pension

At the commencement of the war in 1775, my said brother John Bemis enlisted from the town of Sudbury in the company commanded by Capt. Aaron Haynes' Company of said Sudbury, Colonel Jonathan Brewer's (?) Regiment for the term of eight months as a private or corporal and I believe he served as Corporal the full term of the eight months and was discharged. My father aforesaid having removed to Winchendon, then my said brother John having returned home to said Winchendon and married Lucy Bates of said town. He then enlisted a second time at Winchendon in Capt. --- for Boynton's Company called -- Massachusetts Regiment. but was discharged after serving three months and returned home and his wife lived in my father's family during my brother's absence. After my brother John and myself removed from said Winchendon to Springfield Vermont about the year 1780, when I have resided until June, 1848, when I removed to this town, but my brother John removed to the State of New York about the year 1808 where he died and his widow now lives with his son James as I am informed, in the town of Rochester, Vermont. At the time of my father and I lived in Winchendon aforesaid, there was no other person living in said town by the name of Bemis except my father's family, or that was named John, but the two above named, to wit my father John and my brother John; And my father was never in the United States service. My brother John, if now living, would be 93 years of age.

All of the above is in accordance with my best recollection. State of New Hampshire, Grafton County, ss. Silas Bemis, Before Newall, Dike, Justice of the Peace."

Silas Bemis d. in Haverhill (Grafton Co) NH, 18 June, 1850.

Abel probably is the son of John and Abigail. If I were you, I would try to get a look at a microfilm copy of the Winchendon records. It's unusual for a birth to be listed without parents.

It's also possible that Abel was b. in Sudbury. Following is from the pension application for Silas Bemis (son of John/Abigail):

"...my father John Bemis at the commencement of the Revolutionary War was reside? with his family consisting of the following named children in the town of Sudbury County of Worcester amd State of Mass to wit John, Isaac, James, Jason, Silas, Amos, Reuben, Abigail, Sarah, Abel and Jacob. They were all born in the town of Sudbury.... After the said war commenced, my father removed with his family ... to the town of Winchendon"

I'm decended from the oldest son John who was b. around 1755 (he was baptised in Weston Jan 18, 1756). Isaac was the next baptised (in March 1756), so it looks like the children are listed in order in the pension application. If that's true, Abel's birth could easily be in 1772.

Paul

Ida,

It would seem that your Abel is a little old. I received the name of Abel Bemis, son of John Bemis and Abigail Sanderson from Paul Wattenberger (paulw@mediaone.net). I also received some information on his brother, Silas Bemis from Stephan Cheney (Cheney@Home.Com). Perhaps they can shed some light on this.

Finally, I have one reference to older brother Reuben:

Donald Lines Jacobus, M.A., comp., "The Four Spencer Brothers - Their Ancestors and Descendants," The American Genealogist, 27 (April 1951), pp. 79-87.

I have an Abel Bemis married to Susanna Edson in Winchendon Mass., and I believe that he is the son of John Bemis and Abigail Sanderson based on the location; Winchendon; and the names of the children he had; he had sons named Reubin... two at least... Winchendon lists his birth as 10 May 1772... but no parents.... seems a little old for John but not impossible...

Any comments? Corrections? Help??? Flames?

James Lewis raised another Comp. in the neighborhood of Marlborough, in which James Bemis was also a private."

More About Eli Bemis:

Date born 2: 30 Apr 1800⁴¹¹⁴

Notes for Roxana McCollester:

First off; "my suggestion" that Eli and Roxanna were married is partially backed by the fact that on the 'marriage certification', that I got a copy of from City Hall in Keene, of the marriage of Roxanna to Jason Phelps, reads as follows:

"State of New Hampshire
Cheshire SS

I hereby certify that Mr Jason Phelps of Lowell, Mass and Mrs Roxana Bemis of Marlborough, NH were lawfully joined in marriage by me this twenty-third day of April A.D.1838.

Attest: A A Livermore

Recorded by George W. Sturtevant, Town Clerk"

The "SS" after Cheshire was written with the old "esses" which resemble the English pound sign.

The idea that Jason and Roxana (new spelling as per Marriage cert. above) got married came to me from a book titled "One Branch Of Edward Phelps Descendants", which was just published by my wife's uncle, John Edward Phelps, of Springfield, Mass, who has been researching Phelps ancestry for many years. It states as follows:

"M2. 23 Apr, 1838, Wid. Roxanna McCollester- BEMIS, Keene, N. H., he of Lowell, Mass., by Rev. A.A. Livermore, at Keene, N.H. VR d/o Samuel McCollester and wife Silence Belknap, of Marlborough, N. H.: (Roxana) b. 15 Mar. 1807, Dublin, N. H. ; d. 04 Mar. 1840. Bur. at Marlborough, N. H. (Prob. with first husband Eli Bemis.)"

I have no idea what the "VR" stands for above where I would have said "dau. of". John lists as reference to above as "History of Marlborough, NH", p. 575, 20-111.

I will double check that next time I get to Marlborough, Dublin, or Concord. If I remember correctly, the Census shows Jason and family living not too far from the lot you gave for Eli in Chesham.

[History of Marlborough:417]

Timothy Bemis purchased a tract of wild land in Malone, built a saw-mill, and soon acquired quite a fortune for those times. In 1840, he became blind, and remained so until his death, which took place May 24, 1848. His wid. d. Aug. 2, 1856.

From Frederick J. Seaver, Historical Sketches of Franklin County N. Y. & Its Several Towns, with Many Short Biographies, (1918):

In the 1813 assessment roll it listed Timothy Bemis 130 acres in the Gleason District, value $227.00

Page 415:

Paragraph, "Some Early Industries" mention is made of "Three men, Elijah Keeler, Timothy Bemis, Lucius A. Simons as having saw mills on Branch Stream"

Page 626:

Lists Timothy Bemis as a private in Captain Stephen D. Hickok's company, War of 1812, in their march to Plattsburg, September 11 to September 20, 1814. Pay as a private $2.66 each.

[Franklin (County, New York) Telegraph, about March 9, 1826]

The annual meeting of the different towns in this county (Franklin), occurred on the Tuesday last, for the choice of officers and the transaction of other business. At the meeting, Timothy Bemis, along with several others, was appointed "Fence Viewer". The job of fence viewer, or hayward, was to see that all fences were in good repair. If they were not, it was his job to notify the property owners on each side that repairs must be made and if necessary, to adjudicate a fair and equitable settlement of repair costs. The fence viewer, with the assistance of the city surveyor, could also settle questions of legal property boundaries for fence placement.

Notes for Lois Rhodes:

The spelling of Lois' last name appears in many forms. In the History of Marlborough, by Charles Bemis, she is referred to as "Lois, b. May 1, 1775; m. Timothy Bemis, q. v." daughter of Ebenezer and Sarah (Page) Rhodes. This spelling can also be found on page 80 of the "Bemis History" by Thomas Draper.

The Town Clerks book in Marlborough, New Hampshire lists her marriage to Timothy Bemis in the following manner: "This certify that Mr. Timothy Bemis and Miss Louis Rhoades both of Marlborough formally appeared before me on June 3 - 1795 and were lawfully married - Holloway Fish ..."

There are several gravestones in Marlborough representing brothers and sisters of Lois. For example, one reads: "In Memory of A Son of Mr. Ebenezer Rhoads and Mrs. Sarah his wife still born in August 1778".

Finally, the vital records of Walpole record the marriage of her parents in this way, "ROADS - Ebenezer [int. Roades of Stoughtonham] and Sarah Page, Mar. 12, 1767"

From this, a case can be made of any of the following spellings: Rhodes/Rhoades/Rhoads/Roads/Roades

I have chosen to use Rhodes as presented by Charles Bemis, a relative and historian of Marlborough.

Notes for John Bemis:

[History of Dublin, Vol. 1, p. 258]

John Bemis and Jonathan Wheeler then lived on the Luther B. Town farm, and their cornfield was in danger of being stripped by a bear which found the milky ears just to his taste. With the assistance of Levi Hildreth and Noah Farr, they started on a hunt early on the morning of the 9th of September, 1806 [The year is uncertain, on authority stating it to have been in 1808]. They found Bruin busy with his breakfast in the cornfield, and when interrupted started to cross Black Mountain into Dalton. The hunters followed him rapidly; and Bemis, who had a deformed foot, could not make the pace, as his companions supposed, had returned home. The others continued the chase, and when over the mountain, the dogs headed the bear and drove him back among the three hunters, who were so surprised at the turn of affairs that they failed to terminate then and there by the slaughter of Bruin. It would seem that his bearship also lost his head, for he made a dash for liberty by rushing past Noah Farr, passing so near him that it is said he brushed Farr's legs. The hunter was armed with an ax only, but in the confusion of the moment made no attempt to strike the bear. Wheeler and Hildreth had discharged their guns, but without effect then. While Wheeler was reloading, Hildreth set upon the bear with empty gun, and succeeded in bending the barrel and doing much damage to the stock. Before Wheeler had finished reloading, the bear made his escape.

A severe snowstorm came on early in the forenoon, and during the day some six or eight inches fell, but the hunters continued their search until nearly nightfall, when they found themselves on the banks of the Ammonoosuc, some little distance below the mouth of Alder Brook. They concluded to return by the way of the village and started down the river. In getting over a fallen log, Hildreth had injured his ankle, and, being unable to keep up with his companions, fell behind, and did not reach the village until a late hour the following day. The others remained at the village over night and journeyed home the next day. There they learned that Bemis had not returned. All were alarmed for his safety, and a rescuing party was at once organized, and started to search for the missing man. Before night they found traces of his presence which indicated that he had become bewildered and lost his way. He had attempted to start a fire by discharging his gun into a dead tree, and they soon came to the place where he had passed the night on a scant bead of boughs beside a prostrate pine-tree. Here they also found the mutilated remains of his faithful dog, which hunger had compelled him to slay. The following day the party, which had been reinforced by men from the village, found Bemis on the Cole farm, about a mile beyond Alder Brook. He was in a perishing condition, and unable to tell the story of his wanderings. Tucked securely within the ample folds of his blue frock was found a part of one of the hindquarters of his dog. He had made his supper on the night before from the uncooked tongue of that animal. A hasty litter was constructed, and he was borne by relays to the village, and the succeeding day he reached his home. The journey from the village was made under the direction of Joseph W. Morse, and was organized with military precision.

Mr. Bemis never recovered from the effects of this hunt. Confined to the house during the winter, he sold his famr in the spring and passed the remaining years of his life an inmate of his father's family.

"He was lost while hunting for a bear that had been caught in a trap, and the third day after was found in an exhausted condition near Alder Brook. He started on the hunt Oct. 9, 1804. He never fully recovered, and d.

Notes for Zenas Le Borreau Bemis:

[History of Littleton, vol. 1, p. 263]

His neighbors are described as follows:

On the first place west of his father's farm lived John and David Wallace. To the right, in the valley of Cow Brook, lived Joel Wilder, and farther on they passed the home of Aaron Palmer, now the property of John G. Elliott. As they drove on down the hill, they passed by the place then occupied by Barney Palmer, now the house of the widow of the late William C. Nourse. The last place on this road, the Mann's Hill and North Littleton highway, was owned by Zenas L. Bemis.

In 1840, we find Zenas, sons Ralph S., Horace and George W. also living next to each other. Zenas L. is spelled "Zinas L." and "Bemis" is screwed up as "Bemus".

In 1850, we find Daniel Bemis and family, with son Jotham S. Bemis and his family, in Conewango, Cattaraugus County, NY and, three Bemis families living next to each other in Ellington, Chautauqua County, one of which is "Senath" Bemis. I believe "Senath" is the Census Enumerators screwup for "Zenas". Age of 71 is correct and birthplace in NH is correct. Note that the preceeding family living next door, Horace Bemis, age 46, has a son named "Zenas", spelled correctly by the enumerator. The towns of Ellington in Chautauqua County and Conewango in Cattaraugus County are less than 10 miles apart with Conewango Valley right on the county boundary line. I believe "Horace" is "Harris Nurse" Bemis, b. Littleton, NH, Oct. 21, 1804 and 4th b. child of Zenas LeBourreau Bemis and his first wife Sally Symonds. Sally Symonds Bemis d. Aug. 28, 1808 and Zenas m. 2nd, Millie Wheeler on Feb. 12, 1809. Although not listed in "The History of Littleton, NH", Vol. III, I believe George W. Bemis to be a child of Zenas and Millie, b. abt. 1812 in Littleton, NH.

Zenas appears to have been a resident of Littleton to about 1818 according to "The History of Littleton, NH", Vol. III, p. 53.

First, Brigham Pike and siblings and line.
I have Benjamin, son of Henry, b. June 23, 1788 in Charlestown, NH, m. Ester Ballou in 1807. Benjamin d. Sept. 17, 1847 in Littleton, NH. Children of Benjamin and Ester are:

James Ballou Bemis, b. March 31, 1808 in Littleton, NH, d. in Illinois
Laura Bemis, b. Feb. 1810 in Littleton, d. April 2, 1812 in Littleton
Sanford Madison Bemis, b. Dec. 28, 1811 in Littleton, d. Aug. 21, 1813 in Littleton
Laura Bemis, b. Jan. 1814 in Littleton, d. Aug. 21, 1815 in Littleton
Benjamin Franklin Bemis, b. April 17, 1816 in Littleton, m. Eluthera Woods
Francis Wyman Bemis, b. December 2, 1823 in Littleton, m. Sarah Farr, June 7, 1848; she was b. 1816 in Littleton; he d. in Illinois.
Brigham Pike Bemis, b. May 13, 1829 in Littleton, d. in Illinois

I lose track of them after about 1848-1850 as all siblings migrated to Illinois. All were farmers and I guess living in northern NH and farming was a lot worse than moving to Illinois and farming. I don't see Moses S. Do you have access to "The History of Littleton, NH", Vol. 3 ??

Aaron Ballou settled awhile on a farm near his father in Richmond, N. H., prob. a paternal gift wholly or in part. There all his chn. were b., as we have understood--though we are not quite certain about one or two of the youngest. As nearly as we can judge from certain documents, he sold out his homestead in the Spring of 1801, and removed to Grafton Co., N. H., to a town then called Concord, but afterwards Lisbon, its present name. He there engaged in merchandize for several years. The only characterization of Aaron that has reached us came from Russell Whipple, his nephew, to Mr. Peck, in 1873. He wrote briefly thus.--"Uncle Aaron Ballou was a lively, cheerful man, very well disposed." This scanty morsel indicates that much has gone down to oblivion which might have done honor to his memory. We will presume that both he and his wife deserved a reputable record. He d. in 1807. Mrs. Catherine afterward deserved a reputable record. He d. in 1807. Mrs. Catherine afterward m. successively Henry Gale and John Bley. Her death-date is unknown to us.

ESTHER BALLOU, [Aaron, James, James, James, Maturin]; b. in Richmond, N. H., Dec. 22, 1788; m. Benjamin Bemis, pedigree, birth-date, mge.-date, &c., not ascertained. Issue, said to have been b. in Littleton, N. H.--

1. James Bemis, b.
2. Franklin Bemis, b.
3. Moses Bemis, b.
4. Francis Bemis, b.
5. Brigham Bemis, b.

We waited long to learn something more of this family but in vain. No echo returned from out the thick darkness, and we can say no more. Closed.

David--

Luther Bemis is the son of Daniel Bemis and Patty Winch. Luther's name seems to make its first appearance in the Weston, Mass. tax lists in 1816 when he is listed as "poll only", which is interpreted as he had just turned 21 years, and he did not own any property. That would put his birth at approx. 1795. This seems to correspond with the age and the date of his death recorded in the Wayland VR, p129. of 18 Dec. 1843 aged 49.

There is a deed, at the Middlesex County Registry of Deeds, Book 273, page 43 dated 28 March 1820 but not recorded until 1827 of Luther Bemis, grantor to Daniel Bemis, Grantee. Luther Bemis of Weston, Yeoman, conveys to Daniel Bemis of Weston, Yeoman, several parcels of land in Weston, and East Sudbury (now called Wayland). These particular parcels have a long history of being mortgaged quite a few times by Daniel Bemis to various townspeople from as early as 1809 and onwards, and by 1817 they had been conveyed to Luther Bemis. Luther has now returned the land to Daniel. The deed is witnessed by Rachel Moulton (his future wife) and Leonard Bemis (probably one of his brothers). Within a week of the signing of the deed, the intention of marriage is published (Weston VR, page 204), between Mr. Luther Bemis and Miss Rachel Moulton, both of Weston, 2 April 1820.

Daniel Bemis b. 5 Mar 1757/58 at Weston was the son of John and Hannah (Warren) Bemis. He m. at Weston 18 Nov. 1784 Patty Winch, dau. of Capt. Joseph and Mary (Beals) Winch of Wayland and Framingham. She had a brother named Luther. Rachel Moulton may be the dau. of Daniel and Rachel (--) Moulton of Wayland and Framingham.

I have just recently found this information on Luther and am still researching this part of the Bemis family so the story is not complete but I do have much more information than shown here. I would hope that you can share some information on your family with me. Please contact me at:

Notes for Rev. George Pickering:

[Draper:92]: The Rev. George Pickering, was, at his death, the oldest effective Methodist minister in the world, having been a preacher for Fifty-seven years. Inheriting from his father a considerable fortune, principally in slaves, he refused to receive them, or any profit from their sale or labor, and the were freed. He also declined to be made a Bishop. He was one of the pioneers of Methodism in New England. At his death there were but two members of American Conferences who had preceeded him in the ministry, and but fourteen in England. Born in Talbot Co., Md. brought up in Philadelphia, and converted in that city at St. George's Church, at the age of eighteen; he began preaching immediately and continued to do so almost till he died, a period of fifty-nine years. When he entered the ministry there were but eighteen Methodist preachers in the New England conference, when he died, he was at the head of six hundred and thirty-six, most of whom had been raised up by the instrumentality of his colleagues and himself. The church had risen from a membership of 500 to 66,000.

His wife Mary Bemis was converted in her seventeenth year. His marriage gave to the Rev. Mr. Pickering a home with his wife's father at Waltham, such as few Methodist ministers enjoyed, and free from the financial cares of life, he was at liberty to pursue his vocation as a minister of the Gospel. The old house descended to him at Abraham Bemis's death.

born 18 Sep 1807 in Waltham, Middlesex, Massachusetts^{4841,4842}, and died 10 Mar 1887 in Cambridge, Middlesex, Massachusetts⁴⁸⁴³.

Notes for Emory Bemis:

[Draper:102-4] Of Emery Bemis the Cambridge Mass. Tribune of Dec. 1st 1882, said: -- "A Boston merchant for more than fifty years, for twenty-five years an honored citizen of Cambridge, where his last days were spent. Such is the meager outline of a large life. Yet I deem it only fitting that one who has long known and loved him should add a word to this brief record of earthly years. There are many to whom this and the simple notice of death in another column will bring a shock of sad surprise. Not that death at an age so advanced was unlooked for or singular, but to those who knew him well, and were wont to meet him at his place of business, and in the streets of the neighboring city, he may well have seemed, up to the time of his enforced retirement from the scenes of active life, some six years since, the very embodiment of vitality and manly energy. It was impossible to look into the face of this man and not believe in him at once and completely, nor was such confidence ever misplaced. I have known and have had close business relations with many men, and can say with absolute truth, with neither exaggeration nor the fulsome eulogy that gushes so easily when death has closed a life record, that I never met his superior, scarcely his equal, for perfect integrity and unsullied and undoubted honor. As to a generosity, ever too free for his means, let the poor, to whom he was a providence; let the families of our soldiers absent in our defense, tell the story. For the last six or seven years Mr. Bemis has been confined at home, a victim of progressive paralysis, yet, despite the weakness and irritability consequent on such a complaint, his mind remained clear almost to the end.

Why weep ye, then, for him, who having won
The bound of man's appointed years, at last,
Life's blessing all enjoyed, life's labors done,
Serenely to his final rest has passed;
While the soft memory of his virtues yet
Lingers like twilight hues when the bright sun is set?"

LINES WRITTEN TO MRS. SUSAN P. BEMIS

By George Francis Train
On the Death of Her Husband, Emery Bemis, Esq., of Cambridge, Mass.

MADISON SQUARE, New York
Thanksgiving Day, 1882

Dear Aunt Susan:

Yes! sad indeed Thanksgiving Day
To you? As winter, cold and drear,
As autumn leaves drop on the way,
Your life-long love has left you here!
For six decades so true to you
As you to him were always true!
Kind father, husband, and true
To friends', still friendly to the end!
('Tis two and forty years ago,
Do you remember, in the snow
You called for me when school was done,
At burning of the Lexington?)
Through all these years a friend more kind
Than "Uncle Em." 'tis hard to find.
(Through life's changes on land and sea
He had the kindest love for me.)
Long lived our race (though desolate)
There still remains three out of eight!
How many generations gone
Yet Homestead still survives life storm?

(Hundred seventy years ago
 Ancestral deeds were signed, you know.)
 Death-stricken with Time's occult hand
 For long he gazed on "Shadow Land!"
 (That life-death none can understand?)
 He lived to love and loved to live
 And shared all that he had to give!
 For four-score years (deny who can)
 He never injured any man?
 His joyous laugh and gentle words
 Were pure as song of summer birds!
 His "Honor Bright" is free from stain,
 As is his character and name!
 I wish that all my countrymen
 Were "Simon Pure" like "Uncle Em!"
 With kind regards these words I send
 To souvenir my kind old friend.

He married (2) Huldah Tucker⁴⁹³⁷ 28 Jun 1820 in Spencer, Worcester, Massachusetts⁴⁹³⁸, daughter of Ezekiel Tucker. She was born 22 May 1793 in Spencer, Worcester, Massachusetts⁴⁹³⁹.

Notes for Amos Bemis:

There is some confusion about the parents of Edwin P. and William Otis Bemis. [Draper:109] concludes that

Amos Bemis was married 1st to an unnamed woman. He then states that he m. 2d, June 28, 1830 Huldah (b. Spencer May 22, 1793.) dau. of Ezekial Tucker. (b. Leicester, Mass. Aug. 29, 1757. d. Jan. 29, 1814.) and his 2d wife, Elizabeth Phelps of Brookfield. However, [VR:Spencer:133] show the date as June 28, 1820. Also, [VR:Spencer:16] shows the birth of Edwin as "BEMIS - Edwin P., s. Amos and Huldah, March 26, 1815. At Paxton." and [VR:Spencer:19] shows the birth of William Otis as "BEMIS - William Otis, s. Amos and Huldah, Jan. 1, 1819. At Leicester."

Therefore, I have shown these two as children of Amos and Huldah. [Steve Dahlstrom:02/10/2002]

Notes for Thomas Clarke Wells:

[Kansas Historical Quarterly, "Letters of a Kansas Pioneer", May 1936 (Vol. 5, No. 2), pages 143 to 179]

Thomas Clarke Wells, the son of Thomas Potter Wells and Sarah Elizabeth Clarke, was the eighth and last Thomas Wells born in direct line, descendants of Nathaniel Wells who emigrated to this country in 1629 from Essex County, England. His mother died in 1834 and his father made two subsequent marriages, the first to Clarissa Sherman in 1836, who died in 1846, and the second to Julia Esther Johnson in 1848. Two children were born of each marriage. They were: (1st) Thomas Clarke, 1832, and Frances Elizabeth, 1834; (2nd) George Henry, 1837, and Theodore Backus, 1840; (3rd) Herbert Johnson, 1850, and Helen May, 1861.

Mr. Wells was born April 26, 1832, in Hopkinton, R.I., spent his early life in Kingston and Wakefield and at the academy of East Greenwich, and as a young man planned to enter his father's bank. Ill health, however, forced him to leave the Atlantic coast and in 1855 he came West, taking a claim near Juanita, and subsequently one near Manhattan. On October 30, 1856, he was married to Miss Eleanor Bemis of Holliston, Mass., who lived on a near-by claim. As the accompanying letters, written to his father, stepmother, and half brothers show, Mr. Wells was a Free-State man, on one occasion joining a party which started to the defense of Lawrence, and was active in the affairs of his community, particularly in the work of the Congregational church in Manhattan where he was a charter member. He died in Manhattan, January 9, 1907.

The originals of the letters published here are preserved in the Manuscript division of the Kansas State Historical Society. They were presented by Elizabeth J. and Emily P. Wells, of Kingston, R.I., nieces of Herbert J. Wells, who is mentioned in the letters. Included in the series are several letters written by Eleanor Bemis Wells to her new relatives. Spelling and punctuation as contained in the original letters have been followed throughout.

Notes for Captain Simeon Draper:

[Draper:126] Captain Simeon was one of those typical Yankees that have made the country what it is. He enlisted in the Revolutionary Army, when but a lad of sixteen, and was promoted Corporal, Sergeant, Lieutenant and Captain. He kept the well known "Brookfield Tavern" at West Brookfield, Mass. for many years. This was the half-way house between the east and west. He owned and operated that part of the stage line, from Worcester to Springfield, which ran in pre-railroad days, so regularly between New York and Boston. He was elected to represent Brookfield in the General Court 1809-12-15-16-17-18-19-29-30; and was a member of the constitutional Convention of 1820. He held many offices in West and South Brookfield, such as Justice and Selectman. In 1800 he was given a commission in the regular Army by President John Adams, and served till the standing Army was abolished. General Lafayette was his guest over night at his house in Brookfield, on his second visit to America. He was an active Freemason, belonged to, and presided over Meriden Sun Lodge of Brookfield. He received a pension from the government, which his widow enjoyed till her death.

[the following from Curtis Bemis:18Mar2001]

The History of Dublin is quite ambiguous about Dr. Samuel Hamilton. In the genealogy section it states that he died in 1805 (see the above). However, we see on pp. 474-475 in the Political and Municipal History section that he was a Selectman, beginning in 1804, for 1804-1806, 1808-1809, a representative in the years 1810-1811, 1813-1815. In Chapter XVI, Physicians, Sickness and Mortality, p.597, we have the following-- "Dr. Samuel Hamilton was clerk of the Dublin Social Library in 1794, and he appears to have been the principal physician in the town till his removal in 1815. He lived on the site of the Dr. Heald house, now French's Inn. He was a representative to the General Court, a selectman, a merchant, and, for many years, had much influence in managing the business of the town. He moved to Canandaigua, N.Y., and afterwards to Rochester, N.Y.. Dr. Moses Kidder succeeded to the home and the practice of Dr. Hamilton in 1815."

Notes for James Draper Bemis:

[Draper:133-136]:

"An autograph letter of Mr. James D. Bemis, bearing date November 17, 1846, in which he tells briefly the story of his early life in Canandaigua and refers to the struggles and labors through which he reached the distinguished position he held in the community. I let the letter tell its own story:

"I was born in Spencer, Mass. July 1, 1783. My father, Col. Benjamin Bemis, was a merchant and farmer, but failed in 1790. He removed to Worcester, where he kept tavern, &c. At ten years of age I went to Boston to learn printing. After ten months, left to go to school again, but being fond of my trade I became a journeyman, worked hard by day and studied nights. I never had but two years of school advantages, but taught myself in the printing office. I was a good printer and qualified myself as well as I could for editing, by close application, after coming to Canandaigua (I lived in Troy one year). In the fall of 1803 my employers in Albany, Backus & Whitney, proposed to furnish a bookstore, with a partner's interest, to be established at Little York (Toronto), Canada. I left Albany early in November for that place, but my goods were frozen in the Mohawk the first night of their shipment. I left Schenectady in the stage, and was six days reaching Utica, going half of the way on foot with ten other young men, all going West for the first time. My stock arrived six days after my arrival. I remained in Utica six weeks. With some merchants, situated like myself, two 8-horse wagons were chartered, and I got on one of them with my goods. The turnpike from Utica to Canandaigua was then new, and the mud so deep, that we could make but 8 to 12 miles per day, and at East Onondaga, the teamsters gave up. Here I remained two weeks, when, snow falling, I hired a 3-horse large sleigh to take me on the Canandaigua.

I arrived at Canandaigua, January 14, 1804, and was persuaded to open my store there, which I did, in the chambers over Wyvill's tailor shop, with a stock worth $4,000 or $5,000. So you see it was an accident that settled me in Canandaigua. After about ten months, finding it rather dull, I sold out to Myron Holley, intending to go into business in Albany, but was persuaded to remain and buy half of the printing office and old press and types, worth in all 1300 dollars, and I took the half at 700 dollars. It was then the only paper west of Utica. My partner, John K. Gould, died in 1808, a worthy man, but of habits that killed him.

In 1810 Mr. Holley wanted me to buy back the stock I sold him, and I did so for 1,200 dollars. I had put up a two-story building in the corner of Capt. Israel Chapin's garden--where E. Hale's stores now are (now Kinde's---N.T.C.), put my family below, and my office and store with a small bindery in the chambers; the next year I put on a wing and took the front lower rooms for the book store. My boys of the printing office slept in the garret. As business grew, I build where we now are (immediately below Anderson's store---N.T.C.), taking my old stand. Capt. Chapin offered me his whole lot, 60 acres, for 11,000 dollars, but I did not feel able to take it, but paid him 2,000 dollars for the acre on which I build my house and other buildings, which cost considerable more than the lot. Here I have lived since 1815, and from time to time spread my business over the country--to set up young men in business from Canandaigua to Detroit. In this way fifteen books stores were sent abroad. I established the first presses and book stores in Erie, Wayne, Livingston, and Onondaga counties at a pecuniary loss to myself from 20,000 to $25,000 but with the satisfaction of knowing that I had put a goodly number of young men in active and successful business.

'I was successful man for about thirty years, when my health began to give way under the great responsibilities I had assumed. In the fall of 1843 I went to Europe, accompanied by my daughter, and was absent 14 months. I returned with my health much improved, but it proved only a temporary relief, for on resuming my work again I found I was unfitted for any further severe work.'

'My only object in life was to do good and to help those who were in need. My weakness was I did not value money. I did value the reputation of an honest and independent editor. It was the ailment of my life, and have allowed its loss to disturb me. During my business career I had ten partners, and I am satisfied that I never was a good judge of character, and my devotion to the pleasures of editing ruined my business experience.

'In recurring to my youth and my manhood, up to 1833, when I was about 50 years old, and when I was beguiled to swing off from business, I hardly think there was much in my life worth relating. I can only say that I was a faithful apprentice, an efficient and painstaking journeyman, an indulgent master, yet a sovereign one, with a disposition somewhat spoiled by bringing up about 80 boys, with many journeymen, clerks, girls, and directing outdoor persons. For many years there were from 40 to 60 souls dependent in various ways on the "old establishment.'

'To allude to the numerous social or local positions in institutions would look like boasting. I have been engaged in almost every enterprise of my time--too many perhaps for my interest. I have always sought to help the poor and weak, and for many years was regarded as a medium person in society, who could communicate with the rich and poor. I was vain enough to think that I had the confidence of both classes, and this thought made a considerable portion of my contentment. The nature of my business made my store a sort of rendezvous and I was in the way of being in all that was going on.

'When in 1828 I sold out the Repository to my brother-in-law, Chauncey Morse, and my nephew, Samuel Ward, I was in excellent health and very happy in my growing prosperity. Up to that time nothing uncommon marked my career, except that the fame of an old and long-established concern was worth having. It was this, the business, the headquarters--not myself--that made up all the reputation and all my comfort. I had rather continue as I was to my end than to have been Governor of the State. My anxiety for its continuance was so great that under its pressure my health gave way and left me but a wreck upon the society I had so faithfully served, and by which I had been so often honored.

'I close the letter to you by an incident illustrating the pride of my old position. Five or six years ago a well-dressed, educated young man introduced himself to me in the old store. He said he had long desired to see Mr. James D. Bemis, and would hardly believe that it was me whom he saw. He expected to see a gray-haired old man, and wished to hear him talk, to get his maxims, so famous had he been for giving tone to public feeling, &c.

"Mr. Bemis adds: 'I confess it was the honest pride of such a reputation that formed all my comfort. It was as I said, my paper, my old position--not me--that was respected. I was so identified with all of it, that to lose it was fatal.'

'James D. Bemis.'

"After Mr. Bemis sold the paper to Morse & Ward he kept on with his book store; yet the vigor of his life was perceptibly weakening. This led him in 1843 to make a long visit to Europe, accompanied by his daughter Ann. On his return, after fourteen months abroad, he was welcomed by the citizens of Canandaigua probably with more magnificence and heartiness than has ever before or since been shown to any of our distinguished people. He was a grand man in every way, of large, stately form, a genial presence, and everybody's friend and helper. And his paper was the greatest of all the weekly papers of the country. The old Ontario Repository was a model--full of news as it was possible to be in those days, full of wisdom in the carefully written editorials, and full of those suggestions that comfort the old and stirred the enthusiasm of the young. It is safe to say that none of its successors, wither single or compounded, have ever reached the dignity or power of the old household paper, and no personality like that of old Mr. Bemis has ever since gone out of it to the homes in Western New York. Verily, he was "The Father of the Western New York Press" as he was the father of the boys and girls who once a week were cheered and encouraged by his gracious words."

Notes for Lieut. Frederick Augustus Bemis:

[Tower:V1:113-4] FREDERICK AUGUSTUS BEMIS, was born in Spencer, December 20, 1834, and enlisted August 23, 1861 as first sergeant in company C, twenty-first regiment, Massachusetts volunteers, February 28, 1862, he was promoted to second lieutenant, and July 28, 1862 to first-lieutenant. Four days later he was killed at the battle of Chantilly, Virginia. His first fight was at Roanoke Island, North Carolina, February 8, 1862. Subsequently he took part in the battles of Newbern, March 14, 1862, Camden Court House, April 19, 1862, second Bull Run, August 28, 29, 30, 1862 and Chantilly, September 1, 1862. The body of Lieutenant Bemis lies in an unknown grave notwithstanding much fruitless search for it. His service covers a period of one year and eight days, every day of which he was on duty and did his full duty. At the time of his death, he was expecting, and doubtless would have received it, if he had lived, a higher commission in one of the new companies then recruiting in his native State. He was brave, capable, patriotic and ambitious. No braver man ever carried a musket or wore a sword. This sketch has been outlined at the request of the compiler of these narratives, Erastus Jones, by the deceased friend and companion, Capt. William T. Harlow.

[Draper:170] k. Sep. 1, 1862, at the battle of Chantilly, Va. where his body lies in an unknown grave. He was an officer of the 21st Mass. Regiment.

The last paragraph of your article mentioned Jotham Bemis buried in Richardson, NE. His parents were Israel and Lydia Sumner, Isreal being the son of Jonas & Dorothy Wood.

Jothan was born in Halifax, Windham Co., VT and had a sister Asenath, and two brothers John and Isreal. I do not have anything else on this family but do have Jothan married 1st to Fanny Billings - son Henry and son Sumner, Chenango Co., NY and his 2nd wife was Martha Kingsley. child- John W., George F., Ezra (female) Helen M., and Harrison. I followed them to Brown Co., Walnut Creek Twp., KS and then to Richardson Co., NE. I never did find his grave records showed he was buried in Iliff Cem. but some graves were moved to Heim and Starr Cem. That's all I can tell you so far.

Notes for Hon. Stephen Chapin Bemis:

"The Bemis History and Genealogy" by Colonel Thomas Waln-Morgan Draper,1900, published San Francisco, California, copies in the Library of Congress

"The Hon Stephen C. Bemis was one of the best known men in Western Mass. When fourteen years old, he went to Chicopee Mass, and entered his uncle's store, where he showed such ability, that in four years he was made a partner; four years later he bought his uncle's share in the business. He later removed to Springfield, Mass., and became the Pioneer Hardware Manufacturer of the Connecticut Valley. He early and always, took a lively interest in politics and public affairs, holding many positions of Honor and Trust. He was postmaster of Chicopee in 1830; then Tax-Collector in Springfield, Selectman and a member of the Legislature. He was nominated for Congress, also candidate for the Lieutenant-Governorship. Several times delegate to Democratic National Conventions, and Mayor of Springfield in 1861-2. In this last position during the early years of the Rebellion, he bent all his energies and patriotism, which were great, to the furthering of the National Cause. A "War democrat", his whole soul, mind and heart were for the union. Soon after the expiration of his Mayoralty term, his health declined, in consequence of cares and overwork."

Well, I guess I've misled you without meaning to, so I'm sorry if what I have disappoints you.

Mostly I have Barney Pool & his 2nd wife's information & descendants. However, there is this one little tid bit that might go along with some information you might have laying around.

Barney Pool & his 2nd wife, Polly Martin had twins, Harriet & Harrison b. abt 1845 in Ellisburg, Jefferson Co., NY. Harrison Pool's grandson recounts this tale that colmunates saying: " Civil War Stories.

"He was with Sherman," Claude said. "His brother, Will Henry, was shot at Gettysburg and died there." he is buried at Gettysburg, Claude said. The Pool brothers enlisted in the Army at Syracuse, and the family resided in northern New York State. Harrison Pool was in the army three years.

Harrison Pool's brother, Lafe (short for Lafayette) came to Minnesota and settled in the West Concord area [Dodge Co. MN]. After Harrison was mustered out of the army, he joined his brother (because his parents had died while he was in the service), and that's where he met his future wife, Harriet.

I'm wondering if Lafayette isn't the child of Sally Dickinson & Barney Pool. He doesn't turn up on any of the census for Barney and Polly Martin Pool so far.

Also I've been told that one of Barney Pool's sisters, Hannah Pool, married a Willard Bemis/Beemus/whatever. Do you know anything about that?

Sorry, I didn't have all of the children of Barney & Sally Dickinson. I just have Asa. He is on the 1850 NY census right after his father and 2nd family.

As a citizen and neighbor he was very generous, kind and obliging. He was a thorough farmer and quite a mechanic. Whatever he did was done on the principle that "whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well". He united early in life with the Methodist church, then in Wardwell Settlement, but afterward removed to Belleville and lived a consistent Christian life until his death. He was a strong advocate of Christian union and fellowship, believing that all true Christians should worship and commune together with brotherly love. He was one of the founders of the Union Church at Pierpont Manor, giving liberally toward its erection and support. In his last sickness he was a great sufferer having a disease of the heart, but during all his suffering his mind seemed full of love of his Savior beseeching those who cared for him who were without a Christian hope, to seek Jesus. At times when his sufferings seemed almost unbearable he would raise his voice in prayer and ask God to relieve him from his pain in consistent to His will, and almost the last words he uttered was to sing a verse of a hymn which was a great favorite of his.

Strengthen my arm of faith Stay near me while my way worn feet Press through the stream of death.

In the last few days of his life he was delirious most of the time, and for a few hours before his death did not seem to realize his suffering and passed quietly away. His funeral was held from his late residence on Friday, the 26th where a large concourse of relatives and friends assembled, The Rev. G.E.Farr of the Adams Baptist Church and the Rev. Dr. John Muir of Zion Church, Pierpont Manor conducting the services. Rev. Farr preached an able discourse taking his text from Numbers 23:10.

"Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his". Rev. Muir read the solemn and impressive burial service of the Episcopal Church at the grave. He was buried in Elmwood Cemetery at Adams, New York. Surely Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; even so saith the spirit, for they rest from their labors.

Notes for Samuel Nines Bemis:
[The Mormons in San Bernadino:470]

Samuel N. Bemis was another member of this pioneer family to meet a tragic death. One day he went into the mountains near San Bernadino with his brothers, Charles and Edwin. They camped not far from Talmadge's sawmill, in Little Bear Valley, now covered by the waters of Lake Arrowhead. Sam took his gun and left camp, saying he would return before night. The other boys continued to load their wagon with lumber and after waiting several hours for Sam's return decided to go on home. Becoming worried when they found he was not there, Charles and Harrison Bemis, Joseph Hancock and son Alvin started for the mountains. They made camp near a mill and then began searching. Charles followed his brother's tracks until he came upon the body of Sam who had been killed by a she bear defending her two cubs. The members of the party wrapped Sam's body in blankets and carried it down to the wagon. His remains were then taken to San Bernadino where he was laid to rest beside his brother Nephi who had been killed by Indians two years before.

Thought this may be of interest to the list. Following is a verbatim copy of a story told by Jerusha Hancock Tyler. (Daughter of Joseph Hancock and Nancy Augusta Bemis (1829-1908). It was told to and written by her daughter, Mary Tyler Bright in 1951.

.....QUOTE.....

THE DEATH OF SAMUEL BEMIS

This story was told to her children, Mollie Tyler-Bright and Don Charles Tyler, by Mrs. Jerusha Hancock-Tyler (Mrs. Charles H. Tyler).

Uncle Sam Bemis came to my Father's, Joseph Hancock Sr.'s home, and said: "Joe, are the tires tight on your little wagon, so that Alvin, Sol and I can go up to Devil's Canyon and get a deer?" (Alvin and Solomon Hancock were Sam's nephews). He felt the tires, but they were not tight enough, so he did not take the wagon.

Later, Sam went to the San Bernardino mountains with his brothers, Charley and Ed. They camped not far from the Talmadge's saw mill, in Little Bear Valley. (Now covered by the water of Lake Arrowhead). Sam took his gun and left, saying, "I may go and see Mr. Armstark, and I'll be back to camp with you tonight." The Bemis brothers proceeded to load their wagon with lumber.

Sam did not return that night, so the brothers said: "oh, Sam must have gotten tired of waiting for us, and has gone home to the Valley, " (San Bernardino) so they took their load of lumber to the Valley.

When they arrived home, Grandmother Jerusha Gurnsey Bemis said: "Where is Sam?" The boys replied, "Why Sam is here, isn't he?" Grandma Bemis exclaimed, "No, I'll never see Sam again -- only his hat."

Nora Hancock made dozens of fresh biscuits and put them in a cloth bag, and Alvin Hancock (age 17 or 18 years), Charles and Harrison Bemis and Joseph Hancock Senior, started for the mountains. My father, Joseph Hancock, was not home at the time, as he was out on the plains looking for his cattle, but joined the party when they came for him.

They made their camp near the Talmadge saw mill, then set out to look for Sam. Charles Bemis found Sam's tracks and followed them until he found his brother who had been killed by a female grizzly bear that had two cubs (according to the bear tracks). Sam had gone down a small canyon to get a drink of water when he was attacked. His gun was cocked, but the bear had grabbed the gun, bit it, and threw it to the ground, then struck the fatal blow causing Sam's death. She did not mutilate the body. The crown of his black felt hat was torn, either by the teeth or the claws of the ferocious beast, but lay some distance from the body that had lain in the hot August sun for two or three days. (The hat was returned to Grandmother Bemis).

The Bemis family hired Steve St. John to drive up the Cajon Pass to the desert side of the San Bernardino mountains. The rest of the party (Hancocks and Bemises) wrapped Sam's body in blankets, hung it on a pole, and it was carried to the desert where Mr. St. John's wagon awaited them. Then on to San Bernardino where Sam was laid to rest in the Pioneer Cemetery, near his brother Nephi, who had been killed by Indians two years before.

Samuel Bemis was born at Pierpont Manor, Jefferson County, New York, December 2, 1830 and died August 14, 1868.

Aunt Julia McCullough-Bemis, wife of Uncle Amos Bemis wrote the following epitaph:

Here lied poor Samuel,
Deprived of life so soon,
As o'er the mountains he did roam
A grizzly bears his life did take
As he was all alone.

Notes for Harriet B Bemis:

[The Mormons in San Bernadino:470]

Harriet Bemis became the wife of R. Thomas Roberds, January 23, 1859 in San Bernadino, California. He was born April 3, 1837 in Monroe county, Mississippi, the son of John and Martha T. Roberds. In 1846 the family with other Latter-day Saint converts traveled northwest spending the winter at Pueblo, Colorado, where they remained until the fall of 1847 when they moved to a fort called Hardscrabble in Utah. Here they spent another winter and the following spring started for Salt Lake Valley in a part of twelve wagons and driving two hundred head of loose stock. They reached Salt Lake City in the fall of 1848, built log cabins, and spent the winter among the Mormons.

In the spring John Roberds put in crops and raised grain. The next year he decided to go to California with his family. En route the Roberds and others found a spring in the vicinity of Hangtown California, which they reached in July. This spring was later known as Diamond Spring because of the sparkling white crystal that surrounded it. After several years mining in the northern part of the state the Roberds went to Southern California settling near San Bernadino. After the marriage of Thomas and Harriet Bemis, the young couple established a home in San Bernadino. They became the parents of eight children. An accomplished violinist, Thomas played for many of the pioneer dances.

By SYBEL ALGER, THE PRESS-ENTERPRISE- 02/07/2002

Joanne Bartley has an old picture of her great-great-grandmother, sitting proudly on her front porch in San Bernardino, surrounded by family members. And the Riverside woman knows the story of how Harriet Roberds, whose maiden name was Harriet Bemis, traveled from Salt Lake City to San Bernardino in the middle of the 19th century.

Bartley's fascination with history and desire to learn about her relatives is what brought her to the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers, a 101-year-old group that preserves the history of the people who settled Utah.

Organized like the wagon trains that followed the Mormon Trail from Nebraska to the Salt Lake Valley, "camps" or chapters of women gather monthly to share stories of the pioneers. The camps belong to "companies," regional groups.

There are 13 camps in Riverside and San Bernardino counties. Even though its emphasis is on Utah, the organization has members worldwide.

Potential members must prove that their ancestors made it to Utah before May 10, 1869, the date that the Transcontinental Railroad was joined at Promontory, Utah.

Nearly 70,000 members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints rode covered wagons, pulled handcarts or walked the plains from Nauvoo, Ill., to Utah from 1847 to 1867. Commonly known as Mormons, they were fleeing persecution after church founder Joseph Smith Jr. was murdered in Carthage, Ill.

Brigham Young took over leadership of the church and ordered an exodus to a barren land where he hoped to establish the state of Deseret, the word for honeybee in the Book of Mormon, a book of church scripture.

Mormon men were assured their place in history, but the women who came with them were often overlooked.

"What about all those sweet sisters who worked so hard as they crossed the plains?" asked Wilma Reaser, 75, a longtime DUP member who lives in San Jacinto. "Some stories are so heart-wrenching. It makes us appreciate what we have."

Many pioneers kept diaries and journals of the long trek. Daughters of the Utah Pioneers records those stories and publishes some of them in multivolume collections. It also places markers at historical sites, like the San Bernardino County Courthouse, where Mormons who founded the city built a fort in 1851.

Migration of settlers

The Bemis family started out in the 1847 migration to Utah. Harriet walked across the plains, keeping a detailed journal of the trek. She told of eating dirt to stave off hunger. A brother who often carried her when she tired died at Ft. Laramie, Wyo.

Her father died in Iowa. Her mother eventually got the remaining 10 children to Ogden, Utah.

Brigham Young sent colonizers into Southern Utah, Nevada, Arizona and California.

The first company that left for San Bernardino arrived in 1851 with about 500 Mormons and two dozen African-Americans. They bought the 35,000-acre San Bernardino Rancho from the Antonio Lugo family. A fort, a 12-foot-high stockade of cottonwood and willow logs, was built at what are now Third Street and Arrowhead Avenue. A DUP marker tells the fort's history and lists the first settlers.

San Bernardino County, including a large part of what is now Riverside County, was formed in 1853.

The Bemis family arrived in 1857, settling on 240 acres near Lytle Creek and what became Route 66.

Harriet Bemis met R.T. (Richard Thomas) Roberds in her new community. They married in 1859 and had 12 children, Bartley said. They and many of their descendants are buried in the Pioneer Memorial Cemetery in San Bernardino.

In 1857, Young called back the settlers to fight off a feared attack by the U.S. Army, reportedly moving west to bring an end to territorial government. About two-thirds of the Mormons in San Bernardino returned to Utah.

Following family lineage

Such pioneer stories are treasured by families. Several of Bartley's grandchildren have written school reports based on Roberds' journal. A granddaughter named her first daughter Harriet after Roberds.

Family lineage is important to Mormons because they do proxy marriages and baptisms for people who have died. They believe that those people can choose whether to accept those rituals in the next life.

Possessions that survived the trail are now cherished heirlooms, like the plaid shawl that Adele Lambert, DUP company leader for Riverside County, carefully stores in her cedar chest. Her great-grandfather bought it for his first wife while serving a church mission in England in 1863. He had a total of five wives.

Polygamy, one of the touchiest subjects in the Mormon church today, can't be avoided in genealogical research. Bartley said that none of her relatives were polygamists, but many pioneers were. They believed that men needed to take multiple wives to qualify for eternal life. Sorting out the various wives and children makes research challenging.

The LDS church disavowed polygamy in 1890, but it teaches that worthy men will have many wives in the next life. It excommunicates anyone who participates in polygamy. Various fundamentalist groups in Utah and Arizona keep the practice alive, but are not associated with the church.

DUP members wish that younger women would join their camps. Derelene Spencer, a 66-year-old who is active in Colton, said the youngest woman in that group is 46. Spencer has tried to enlist her 18-year-old granddaughter.

Most women wait until their children are grown before they start doing genealogy, said Barbara Istre, 75, another Colton member.

"You get more involved as you get older. It takes a lot of time to do research. Working moms with children just don't have the time," she said.

Notes for Nephi Bemis:
[The Mormons in San Bernadino:471]

Nephi Bemis, son of Alvin and Jerusha Gurnsey Bemis, married Annie McGinnis. He met a tragic death at the hands of the Indians on the site of the present Las Flores Ranch, March 25, 1866. Together with his brother Samuel, H. E. Parish and Pratt Whiteside, accompanied by other men, Nephi went to the Mojave desert to round up cattle. Sam returned to camp after a time while some of the others went on. Later in the afternoon the Indians opened an attack on Nephi, Mr. Parish and Mr. Whiteside, killing the last two named after their ammunition was gone. Nephi, critically wounded, clung to the side of his saddle until so weak from the loss of blood he fell from his horse. He was killed, clothing stripped from his body and his boots taken. Nephi's body was found shortly after he was killed but the other bodies were not recovered until the following day. The three men were brought to San Bernadino for burial. A joint service was held and all were laid to rest in the Pioneer Cemetery.

Thought this may be of interest to the list. Following is a verbatim copy of a story told by Jerusha Hancock Tyler. (Daughter of Joseph Hancock and Nancy Augusta Bemis (1829-1908). It was told to and written by her daughter, Mary Tyler Bright in 1951.

.....QUOTE.....

THE DEATH OF NEPHI BEMIS
(An Uncle of Mrs. Jerusha Hancock-Tyler)

This story was told by Mrs. Tyler to her children, Mollie Tyler-Bright and Charles Tyler February 28, 1951, when she was 96 years of age.

Nephi Bemis, Sam Bemis, Mr. Parish and Mr. Whiteside, with several other men, went to the Mojave Desert to round up their cattle. Some of the cattle had strayed, so the two Bemis brothers, Messrs. Parish and Whiteside started after them. Sam Bemis' mule was too slow to keep up with the horses, so he said, "Nephi, my mule is too slow, and I am only holding you back, so I'll go back to camp." Nephi said, "Sam, I have a five dollar gold piece in my pocket, and there is a hole in the pocket and I am afraid I'll lose it--you take it and keep it for me."

Sam returned to camp and the others went on. Later in the afternoon the Indians set upon Nephi Bemis, Mr. Parish and Mr. Whiteside, and all three were killed by arrows shot from bows. Nephi was shot through the jugular vein. His horse turned and headed for camp. Bemis clung to the saddle until weak from loss of blood. He then fell from the horse, leaving bloody finger marks upon the saddle. The Indians stripped him of his clothing, using a dull knife to slit the leather boots, looking for socks which the Indians could wear. The boots were not taken, as their feet were too large to wear them.

Parish and Whiteside fought until their ammunition was gone. Parish was killed and Whiteside retreated to a clump of wild squaw-plum-bush, shooting until all loads were exhausted, then fought by throwing rocks. He fell dead while trying to defend himself.

Nephi Bemis' body was found shortly after he was killed, but, as darkness was approaching, the bodies of Mr. Parish and Mr. Whiteside were not found until the following day.

The three men were brought to San Bernardino, a joint funeral was held and the three were laid to rest in Pioneer Cemetery.

Nephi Bemis left a young wife, Annie McGinnis-Bemis, and later she gave birth to a baby boy who was born dead.

Jurusha and Lucina Hancock and their cousin, Frances Bemis, went with Joseph Hancock, Senior, several years later to Holton's Ranch and visited the spot where the three men were killed. Mrs. Holton acted as a guide. Holton's Ranch is now known as Las Flores Ranch.

Nephi Bemis was born at Kirkland, Ohio, April 25, 1842, and was killed by the Indians on the sight of the present Las Flores Ranch, March 25, 1866, age 23 years, 11 months."

Notes for Samuel Case Barney:

[John_Terry.FTW]

His mother, Abigail Winship, died within 5 days of his birth. He was cared for by Deacon Ephraim Case and his wife; they were neighbors. In 1826 he moved with this family to Chautauqua County. In January of 1827 he married Eliza Bemus. The next year they settled on a farm at the east side of Chautauqua Lake one mile above the narrows. In his business he was prompt and decisive and at his death all who knew him were ready to accord him the tribute of an honest man and a Christian. His children have a pleasant recollection of a family altar where mother as well as father join in the service. (Per the Barney Family History this was taken from a handwritten brief by Betsey Barney Losse, copied by Lewis Bouton 12-5-43)

The following recollections are from Alice Terry - At the time of his death Samuel Case Barney was living at his old home. Luther Barney, his son, was living at home and apparently taking care of the farm. Early in February Luther made a trip somewhere and did not get home in time to do the chores, so his father went out to the barn to feed and milk the cows. The weather was stormy and Samuel caught a cold which developed into pneumonia and resulted in his death.

Drowned While skating on Chautauqua Lake."

Recollection of C. A. Hildum (husband of Loretta Barney, daughter of Zee Barney) in a statement made to Lewis Bouton as noted in Barney Family History - "He (Thomas Barney) came back from the war, found the beds to soft; they had been such hard ones in the Confederate prisons. Thomas went skating with a man named Johnson. He was skating towards a spring hole near Long Point. Johnson yelled but Thomas went on and was drowned."

[Draper:52] Few men have been more universally beloved and honored in the community in which they lived than Dr. Bemus. He received his medical education, at the Berkshire Medical Institute; prefacing it by a course of study at Oberlin College. He first settled at Ashville, N.Y. but soon removed to Jamestown, and was in the active practice of his profession for 43 years. His natural adaptation to his calling and his wide reading made him remarkably successful, and his practice at all times was large. His kind heart, cheerful disposition and great skill made him an ideal physician.

(IV) Dr. William Prendergast Bemus, seventh child of Charles and Relepha (Boyd) Bemus, was born at Bemus Point, Chautauqua county, New York, October 4, 1827, died at Buffalo, September 18, 1890, where he practiced his profession for thirty-eight years, without interruption. He was educated in the Ellery public schools, Fredonia high school, and under private tutors. He studied medicine with Dr. Shanahan, of Warren, Pennsylvania, attended lectures at Oberlin College, and was graduated, M. D., from the Berkshire Medical Institute, of Springfield, Massachusetts. He began the practice of his profession at Ashville, New York, four years later removing to Jamestown, continuing there in practice until his death. He was a skillful physician and held a commanding position among the practitioners of Chautauqua county. He was ever ready to respond to any appeal for medical assistance, and the amount of his free practice was immense. It is known of him that he never went to law to collect a bill for professional service. He was gentle and sympathetic in the sick room, and so constantly mindful of the comfort of his patients that they came to regard him with sincere and deep affection. He died deeply regretted and the exceptionally large number of persons that attended his funeral demonstrated the respect and love in which Dr. Bemus was held by his community. He was a member of the St. Luke's Episcopal Church, of Jamestown, and an ardent Democrat in politics. He was president of the Cleveland Democratic Club, and, though active in the Democratic party, never aspired to or held any political office. He was secretary of the board of pensions at Jamestown, a non-political office. He was a member of the Chautauqua County Medical Society, the members of which attended the funeral in a body.

He married (first), in 1855, Helen O. Norton, who died March 7, 1874, daughter of Squire Morris Norton, of Ashville, New York. He married (second), June 3, 1875, Sarah Elizabeth Prather, born in Venango county, Pennsylvania, August 31, 1838, daughter of Abraham C. and Sarah (McCalmont) Prather (see Prather IV). She survives her husband and resides in Jamestown, in which city she has made her residence since October 11, 1873. Early in life she became a member of the United Presbyterian Church, but, after her marriage to Dr. Bemus, became a member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, of Jamestown. Children of first marriage: Helen L., married Fred E. Hatch, of Jamestown (see Hatch V): Dr. Morris N. Bemus, of Jamestown. Child of second marriage: A daughter who died in infancy.

Notes for Dexter Josiah Cutter:

[Boston of to-day:201]

CUTTER, DEXTER JOSIAH, son of Joseph and Lucy Stone (Richardson) Cutter, was born in Sudbury, Mass., Sept. 21, 1827. His father was a farmer, and the son worked on the farm and attended the public schools in Sudbury until he was fourteen years old. Afterwards he pursued a course of studies in the Wayland Seminary, and also at the Northfield Seminary, N. H. He began his business career as a clerk in the Boston market for three years. Removing to Waltham at the age of twenty, he engaged with the Boston Manufacturing Company there. After serving a year he was promoted to the position of overseer, which he held for nearly three years, when he was made book-keeper and paymaster of the company. He held this position for twenty-two years, being in the employ of the company twenty-five years. Impaired health compelled him to engage in more active duties outside of an office, and, resigning his position, he removed to Boston in January, 1882, when he purchased of Messrs. Castner, Stickney, & Wellington the coal wharf and business at Commercial point, Dorchester district, formerly owned and operated by William H. Floyd. Mr. Cutter has since continued in the coal and wood business, increasing the trade over four hundred per cent, in a few years. On June 12, 1851, he married Miss Sarah Bemis Stearns, daughter of Ephraim Stearns, of Waltham. They have had five children, four of whom are now living: Frank Ware, the eldest, Lucy Richardson, Elizabeth Learoyd (deceased), Walter Hill, and Ann Eliza Cutter. Frank W. married Miss Carrie Carr, and Ann E. married Carlton Blanchard. All reside in the Dorchester district. Mr. Cutter is a Republican. He never held or aspired to public office. 1599. Elias⁷ Howe, Jr. (Elias⁶, Fanny⁵ Bemis, Joshua⁴, Samuel³, John², Joseph¹)⁷³⁰⁸ was born 09 Jul 1819 in Spencer, Worcester, Massachusetts⁷³⁰⁹, and died 03 Oct 1867 in Brooklyn, N.Y.^{7310,7311}. He married Elizabeth J. Ames^{7312,7313} 03 Mar 1841 in Boston, Mass.⁷³¹³, daughter of Simon Ames. She was born 1827⁷³¹⁴, and died 30 Apr 1849 in Cambridge, Middlesex, Massachusetts, aged 31 years, 8 months⁷³¹⁴.

Notes for Elias Howe, Jr.:

Descendant of John Howe, of Sudbury, who became a freeman of Massachusetts Bay Colony in May 1640 and died at Marlboro in 1680. Elias Howe went to school occasionally in the winter time and worked on the farm and in the mills. The machinery of the latter interested him particularly, and he liked nothing better than to tinker with it and make repairs. When he was twelve years old his father could not afford to keep him in clothes any longer and hired him out to a neighboring farmer. Poor health and lameness prevented him from doing heavy farm work, and a year later he returned home to help in the saw and grist-mills. Ambitious to learn more about machinery, he went to Lowell, Mass., in 1835 and became an apprentice in an establishment that manufactured cotton machinery. The panic of 1837 severed this connection and Howe went to Cambridge, Mass. Here he found work in a machine-shop where he operated a newly invented hemp-carding machine. After a few months he went to Boston and became an apprentice of Ari Davis, a watch-maker primarily, but also a maker of surveying instruments and scientific apparatus for Harvard professors. Davis was an ingenious mechanic and, in spite of his eccentricities, was much consulted by both inventors and capitalists. In this ideal environment, with the finest of mechanical devices upon which to practice, Howe became both skilled and deft as a machinist. One day he overheard Davis suggest to a would-be inventor that he make a sewing machine, and from that moment he brooded over the possibility of devising a machine which would sew with the same motions as the human hand. In the meantime, Mar. 3, 1841, he married Elizabeth J. Ames of Boston. He at length constructed a machine with a double-pointed needle and eye in the middle, but it proved an utter failure. In 1844, however, he made another attempt, this time having in mind a lock-stitch and an eye-pointed needled united with a shuttle, an idea derived from the looms he had been familiar with all his life and had helped to make in the factory at Lowell. While the idea in the end proved a good one, he had first to devise a shuttle loaded with a lower thread and the means of throwing the shuttle at the proper intervals through loops of the upper thread. Soon after beginning this second machine, he gave up his nine-dollar-a-week job with Davis in order to devote his whole time to the task he had set himself. His father helped him by boarding him and his family in Cambridge, where he was then living. Howe later prevailed upon a friend, George Fisher, to become his partner, Fisher receiving the Howe family into his home as guests and advancing five hundred dollars toward buying materials and tools. Throughout the winter of 1844-45 Howe labored steadily at his machine and by April 1845 he had completed it to a point where it sewed with evenness and smoothness. In a public demonstration it exceeded in speed five of the swiftest hand sewers, for it could make 250 stitches a minute. Notwithstanding its success, however Howe met with financial discouragement. In 1846 he completed a second machine, and after inducing Fisher to advance the necessary money, he took it to Washington, where he deposited it in the Patent office with his application for a patent. This was granted Sept. 10, 1846, patent No. 4750 (House Executive Document 52, 29 Cong., 2 Sess., pp. 125, 308-09). Since he could arouse no interest in his machine in the United States, he decided to offer it in England. Accordingly, in October 1846, his brother Amasa went to London with a third machine and succeeded in selling it for 250 pounds to William Thomas, a large manufacturer of corsets, shoes, and umbrellas. This transaction also gave to Thomas the entire rights of the machine for Great Britain. Seeing the possibilities of adapting it to sewing leather, Thomas induced Howe, through his brother, to come to London, and advanced the passage money. After working eight months for fifteen dollars a week, Howe quarreled with Thomas and found himself stranded. By pawning his model and patent papers he raised enough money to send his family home, and a few months later he returned in a sailing vessel, paying his way by cooking for the steerage. He arrived in Cambridge in time to reach the bedside of his dying wife. Meanwhile knowledge of the favor with which his machine had been received in England had reached the United States, and some manufacturers had already begun to make and sell sewing machines like Howe's in design. With a hopeless feeling, at first, he sued these manufacturers for infringement, using money advanced by George W. Bliss who had become his partner through the purchase of Fisher's half interest in the patent. One of the longest fights in American patent law followed, continuing from 1849 to 1854. With the proceeds of one or two successful suits, Howe made and marketed a number of sewing machines in New York, and thus kept himself alive. Finally his patent was declared basic and a judgment for a royalty was granted to him on every machine that infringed his patent (Howe vs. Underwood, 12 Federal Cases, 678). Shortly after this Bliss died and Howe for a nominal sum acquired full ownership of his patent. It expired in 1860 but was extended for seven years in March 1861, and in these years Howe's royalties often reached $4.00 a week. During the Civil War he organized and equipped an infantry regiment in Connecticut, and though he placed his means at its disposal he served in it as a private. In 1865 he organized the Howe Machine Company of Bridgeport, Conn., and the perfected machine which he there produced won the gold medal at the Paris Exhibition of 1867. After the death of this first wife, he married again (Howe Genealogies). He died in Brooklyn, N.Y. (Howe's own account of his invention and development of the sewing machine, including the litigation, is printed in Before then. Philip F. Thomas, Commissioner of Patents, in the Matter of the Application of Elias Howe, Jr., for an Extension of his Sewing Machine Patent (1860). ELIAS HOWE, Inventor of the Sewing Machine

"He almost beggared himself before he discovered where the eye of the needle of the sewing machine should be located. His original idea was to follow the model of the ordinary needle, and have the eye at the heel. It never occurred to him that it should be placed at the point, and he might have failed altogether if he had not dreamed he was building a sewing machine for a savage king in a strange country. Just as in his actual experience he was perplexed about the needle's eye. He thought the king gave him 24 hours in which to complete the machine and make it sew, or suffer death as a punishment. Howe worked and worked, and puzzled, and finally gave it up. Then he thought he was taken out to be executed. He noticed that the warriors carried spears that were pierced near the head. Instantly came the solution, and while the inventor was begging for time he awoke. It was 4 o'clock in the morning. He jumped out of bed, ran to his workshop, and by 9, a needle with an eye at the point had been rudely modeled. After that, it was easy. That is the true story of an important incident in the invention of the sewing machine."

"Howe Genealogies" by Daniel Wait Howe, Revised & Edited by Gilman Bigelow Howe, 1929:

In early life he was employed at home in the making of cards used in the manufacture of cotton cloth, and thus acquired some of the ideas of machinery which he afterwards applied in the invention of the sewing machine. He lived with his father until 1835, when he went to Lowell, Massachusetts, and obtained a situation in a manufactory of cotton machinery, where he stayed for a couple of years, and then went to Cambridge, Massachusetts, and got employment in a machine shop. In a few months he went to Boston, and obtained employment in a shop kept by one Ori Davis for the manufacture of nautical and philosophical instruments, and it was while there, that he first conceived the idea of inventing the sewing machine, and he began work upon it about the year 1843. He received some pecuniary assistance from a former school mate, George Fisher, and in 1845 he produced a machine for which he afterwards secured a patent.

He vainly endeavored to interest the tailors of Boston in the invention, but they would have nothing to do with it and becoming discouraged, he took employment for several months as a railroad engineer. In 1847 he and his brother Amasa B. Howe, went to England to endeavor to introduce the invention there. Soon after, his wife and three children joined him in London. While there, he obtained employment in the establishment of William Thomas, who contracted with Elias to adapt his machine to the manufacture of corsets. After a few months, in consequence of some disagreement with his employer he was discharged. This seemed to have been the darkest period of his life; his invention appeared to be a failure, and all his years of labor upon it to have gone for naught. He was out of employment and out of means, his wife was in failing health and he was in a strange land, and far from home and kindred.

By extraordinary exertions and economy, and the help of a few friends, he managed to raise money to send his wife and children back to America, and in 1849 he followed, landing in New York with only half a crown in his pocket. He soon found employment in a machine shop, but soon received news that his wife was dying in Cambridge. He was so poor that he was compelled to borrow money to go to Cambridge, and was obliged to attend the funeral of his wife in his daily working clothes. Soon after, the news came that all his household goods had been lost in the wreck of the vessel in which they were shipped. He spent several years trying to re-purchase the rights which he had sold in the years of adversity, and in lawsuits with infringers upon his patent.

At last, in 1854, the validity of his patent was established and this was the turning point in his fortunes. He was recognized as the real inventor of the sewing machine, his invention containing the essential features of all other machines, and his income soon reached an enormous sum, it being estimated that at the expiration of his patent, he had realized about $2,000,000. He received many medals and other marks of appreciation of his invention, including a gold medal and a Cross of the Legion of Honor at the Paris Exposition in 1867.

During the Civil War, Mr. Howe was a zealous supporter of the Government, being largely instrumental in recruiting the 17th Regt. Conn. Vols., in which he enlisted as a private, and in which he served until he was compelled to leave the service by reason of failing health. At one time while he was in the service and the government was in financial straits, Mr. Howe advanced the money with which to pay the soldiers of the regiment.

Notes for Hamilton Henry Edminster:
[The Edminster Family In America]

Hamilton Henry, born 7 June 1843 in Cornish. Nothing further is known of him by that name. However, it seems probable that records of John H. Edminster refer to the same man. John H. lived with the Daniel G. Deming family in Cornish in 1850, when 6; with the Hiram Sargent family in Cornish in 1860 when 17. Apparently he was orphaned before 1850. He was a soldier in the Civil War, serving in Co. B, 3rd Regt. New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry. He resided at Sunapee, New Hampshire when he enlisted on 13 August 1861 as a Private. His service record gives his age as 18 which checks with the age of Hamilton Henry. He became Corporal 18 October 1862, Sergeant on 6 April 1864 and was mustered out at Bermuda Hundred, Virginia on 23 August 1864 (54). He later received an invalid pension on account of rheumatism and heart disease and his pension records reveal most all we know of his later life. He married, first Lottee E. Shoales (or Sholes) in 1869 at Delavan, Wisconsin. They were divorced at Chicago, 14 July 1882 (?), apparently had no children. He married, second, 25 October 1884, at Chicago, Ida M. Shepherd, born 8 April 1865 at Keswick, New Brunswick. They lived at Chicago but later separated. He was a sewing machine solicitor, was 5'7" tall, dark complexion, brown hair and gray eyes. He was listed in Chicago city directories from 1867 to 1917 at 12 different addresses. He died 1 February 1919 at Chicago.

Notes for Phillip Henry Edminster:
[The Edminster Family In America]

Philip Henry Edminster (Zebedee²⁻¹), born 31 July 1819 at Cornish, New Hampshire, son of Zebedee, Jr. and Tirzah (York). He graduated from Castleton, Vermont Medical School in 1842 and practiced medicine in Newfane, Vermont beginning in 1844. He married 26 February 1845, Mary Lovell Shafter of Townshend, Vermont, born 1824. She was an aunt of General Shafter of Spanish American War fame.

Philip Henry died 28 July 1856 at Newfane. His residence there, near the museum, was still in good repair in 1956. He is buried in the cemetery across the tracks from the railroad station. Soon after his death, his widow and three children sailed around the Horn to California where some of her family had recently settled in Sonoma County, near Petaluma, north of San Francisco. This move established the largest branch of Zebedee's descendents and is probably the next most populous clan of the family in this country (most populous is the Wisconsin clan descended from Noah of Maine). Mary Lovell died 9 April 1892, is buried at Petaluma (91).

(Much of the information on the descendents of Philip Henry in California I have obtained from conversations and correspondence with his granddaughters Adelia, Jessie Marie, and Juanita between 1950 and 1963).

Notes for Asaph Bemis Child:

[Genealogy of the Child, Childs and Childe Families; Of the Past and Present in the United States and Canada, from 1630 to 1881:159-160]

Soon after the birth of Asaph Bemis Child, his parents moved into Bethel, Vt., then comparatively new and wild, where he led a truly pioneer life. Asaph Bemis grew to be a stalwart boy by the exercise of his muscular powers in helping to bring into culture the new home. He came to be a power, ere he had reached the age of twenty-one, in clearing the farm and sustaining the household. At an early day the elements of a strong mind, and a robust constitution, began to be developed. While his hands were industriously and efficiently employed in the field, his leisure hours were spent in reading and study, till his knowledge of the primary branches of education was sufficient to qualify him to teach a common school. For several winters, while in his minority, he taught school, and returned to work on his father's farm in the summer. After reaching his majority, he spent two winters at the Academy in Randolph, Vt., boarding with his uncle, Judge Chase, Chief Justice of the State of Vermont; working for his board. So faithful and efficient was he, that his uncle declared he accomplished more than any other laborer on the farm, and that he was so studious he kept his standing in his class. Such was the force of character, and the unflagging mental application exhibited at this period, forshadowing what the future would be in attainments and efficiency.

Having passed his twenty-second year, and acquired such knowledge as his limited means would allow, he commenced the study of medicine, and attended a course of medical lectures at Dartmouth College, N. H. Afterwards he attended a medical course in Boston, Mass., when he returned to Bethel, Vt., and read and practiced with Dr. Alfred Page of that town, and gained much favor among the people for skill and urbanity. To complete his medical studies he went to Burlington, Vt., and graduated, receiving his medical diploma from that institution. His thoroughness as a student cannot be questioned. But he was not satisfied with the medical practice. He went to Boston and connected himself with the office of Messrs. Ellis & Dana, leading dentists in that city. For two years he industriously applied himself, and became a skilled dentist. He then opened an office of his own, and proved himself to be one of the most popular dentists of the city. Naturally of a speculative turn of mind, he began at this period to write and publish articles on questions of public interest. His first dissertation was a treatise on the "Care and Preservation of the Teeth." These literary efforts led to the publication of a monthly magazine called The Athenaeum. He was much interested in the subject of education, and for some time was an active member of the Public School committee in Boston. He finally became much interested in the new philosophies and spiritualistic manifestations, so called. In support of these he was very earnest, and is thought to have made many converts.

The development of his philosophies is before the public, and the fruits will be judged of variously, as the opinions of men approximate to or diverge from his own.

from Draper, p. 213 on Malinda Bemis- "dau. of Silas Bemis and ____ Spencer, d. Exeter, Wis., a widow, Jan. 11, 1872"

"Malinda Bemis had sisters, Theodorah, who m. Amos Lockwood, Sarah and Rugy, half sister Olive. Her brothers were Silas, Daniel, Asahel, and a half brother, Ezekial" from Don Bemus, August, 2003 (with .jpg of 1835 Cenus for Philadelphia, Jefferson County, New York)

"I got access to the 1835 NYS Jefferson County census through the LDS Church. In going through the census this morning I was able to locate Asahel and an Abel that I believe is likely Asahel's older brother. They were both in the town/town ship of Philadelphia. Asahel appears on line 6 of page 6. It does appear that Asahel in fact had 14 children (living) as was indicated on the Wisconsin Land Patent affidavit, 8 apparently with Betsey and 6 with Emeline H. (Harriet). The 1835 census shows 6 boys and 2 girls. If one accepts the idea that 2 older sons left the household between 1835 and 1840 the family makeup is identical to the Asel Bamans family in the 1840 census in Clayton, NY. With the combination of established linkages and my circumstantial linkages for Erastus and Martin I would have the boys being John (b. 1819/1820), William (b. 1821), Erastus (b. 1824), Silas J. (b. 1827), Jason (b. 1833), Martin (b. 1834/1835). The 2 girls I have no clue on yet. With the large gap between Silas J's birth and Jason's birth I would guess that's probably where they fit. Additionally, I believe that 1 of the 2 boys appearing in the 1820 NY/Saratoga/Charlton (Galway) census apparently died young, prior to the 1835 census."

More About Merrick Bemis and Belinda Hadley:

Children of Merrick Bemis and Belinda Hadley are:

- 3111 i. George⁸ Bemis⁷⁶³⁹, born Abt. Feb 1845 in Winchendon, Worcester, Massachusetts⁷⁶³⁹; died 15 Aug 1848 in Ashburnham, Worcester, Massachusetts⁷⁶⁴⁰.
- 3112 ii. <Unnamed>, born Abt. Jul 1847 in Ashburnham, Worcester, Massachusetts⁷⁶⁴¹; died 26 Sep 1847 in Ashburnham, Worcester, Massachusetts⁷⁶⁴².

1695. Jonathan⁷ Bemis (James⁶, Timothy⁵, John⁴, John³, John², Joseph¹)⁷⁶⁴³ was born 30 Dec 1785 in Marlborough, New Hampshire^{7644,7645}, and died 15 Nov 1826 in Windham, Vermont^{7646,7647}. He married Lavina Greenwood⁷⁶⁴⁷. She was born 25 Jun 1798^{7648,7649}, and died 28 Jul 1825^{7650,7651}.

Notes for Jonathan Bemis:
[Received from Curtis Bemis Jr.]

There is a conflict for the birth date of Jonathan. The History of Dublin, p. 717 lists Jonathan, son of James Bemis and Hannah (Leland) Frost with b. in 1785, d. in 1829. The History of Marlborough says b. in Marl., Dec. 30, 1780, and follows with "Mrs. Bemis (his mother) d. Feb. 9, 1785;" and clearly indicates that Jonathan is the son of Hannah Frost. If the death date is correct for Hannah, the birth date in the History of Dublin cannot be correct. A further conflict occurs from the Greenwood Genealogies where:

"Levina Greenwood (twin), b. June 25, 1798; m. Jonathan Bemis, b. Dec. 30, 1785, d. Nov. 15, 1826, a farmer in Windham, Vt. They had:

Jonathan (Bemis) b. 1815; d. 1819

Charles (Bemis) b. Sept. 29, 1817; d. Oct. 16, 1877, a farmer in Windham, Vt."

the date Dec. 30, 1785 reappears. I adopt the date from the History of Marlborough, Dec. 30, 1785 which conflicts with the death date for his mother, but avoids the marriage date conflict for his mother, Hannah, and his father James as 1783 from the History of Dublin.

Similarly, there is a conflict in the death date for Jonathan. The History of Dublin gives "d. in 1829", no death date in the History of Marlborough and the Greenwood Genealogies give "d. Nov. 15, 1826, a farmer in Windham, Vt." I adopt Nov. 15, 1826 from the Greenwood Genealogies.

Notes for Cyrus Bemis:

From the tombstone inscription of Elvira E. Chamberlain, we see that her husband was C.H. Bemis. In "The History of Dublin, New Hampshire", in the Genealogy section for the Chamberlain Family, p. 730-731, under James Chamberlain and wife Anna Marshall, we see that Elvira E. was their 2nd child.

"II. Elvira E., b. in D(ublin) Sept. 14, 1837; d. there Mar. 23, 1878; m. Cyrus H. Bemis, No ch."

No other mention for Cyrus H. in "The History of Dublin" but the proximity of the grave to that of Jeremiah and wife Sarah who died about 20 years earlier, and that of Sybil (Sibel) Emery, 2nd wife of Josiah Bemis, (b. 8/20/1795, d. Jaffery, 3/6/1852) suggests a family relationship. We find a Cyrus, son of David (Individual 737, p. 79 in Draper) and Cyrus, Individual 791, was b. Sept. 3, 1802 from Draper). Cyrus would be the nephew of Jeremiah and the 1st cousin of Josiah. Based on this, I believe Draper Individual 791, Cyrus, to be the same as Cyrus H., husband of Elvira E. Chamberlain.

Eliphalet Dort, second son of Eli and Joanna Newton Dort, was born Mar. 19, 1790 and died Jan. 18, 1869. He married Lois Bemis of Dublin, N. H. She was born Jan. 30, 1792 and died Jan. 15, 1864. They were married Nov. 11, 1811 and lived in Surry on the old homestead. He succeeded to his father's place in the church and community. He was one of the first in the community to purchase the musical instrument known as the melodion, the predecessor of the parlor organ. This instrument was carefully loaded into the wagon every Sunday morning and taken to the church. Its first appearance caused quite a sensation and for years it was looked upon by the community as an item of interest and importance.

3228 xii. (_____) ⁷⁹⁸⁴, born 07 Jun 1847⁷⁹⁸⁴; died 07 Jun 1847.

1739. Rev. Varenes⁷ Bemis (Timothy⁶, Timothy⁵, John⁴, John³, John², Joseph¹)^{7985,7986} was born 09 Dec 1802 in Marlborough, Cheshire, New Hampshire^{7987,7988}, and died 1856. He married Mary Adelia Simonds⁷⁹⁸⁹ 18 Jan 1831 in Lebanon, Madison, New York⁷⁹⁹⁰, daughter of Luther Simonds and Asenath Lamb. She was born 18 Apr 1812 in Sturbridge, Worcester, Massachusetts^{7990,7991}.

Notes for Rev. Varenes Bemis:

Thanks to the dedication of the scribe of the First Baptist Church of Lebanon, Madison County, New York and the devoted efforts of the Monument Chapter (Daughters of the American Revolution), Minneapolis, Minnesota, a rare glimpse into the life of Reverend Varanes Bemis and his wife, Mary Simonds has emerged.

Shortly after his twenty-third birthday, Brother Bemis made his way from Malone, Franklin County, New York to Lebanon, Madison County, New York. Lebanon is southwest of Utica and southeast of Syracuse, about 215 miles southwest of Malone. Nearly two months elapsed between March 18 when he left his church in Malone and May 13, 1826, when he was received into the church in Lebanon.

Church records further note that on November 12 of the same year, fourteen-year-old Mary A. Simonds was baptized and received into the fellowship of the same Baptist Church. Mary's father had passed away when she was one year old and her mother later remarried to Simeon Shepard.

Brother Bemis was mentioned on several occasions when he was sent to represent the members of the congregation on various missions between 1826 and 1827. In May 1827 a vote was taken that "Brother Varanes Bemis should have a license to preach the Gospel Believing that he has a preaching gift." Thus his lifelong avocation began.

At that same meeting, he was asked to "labor with brother Isaac Niles". Apparently, Brother Niles had recently gained the attention of church leaders. Two months later, in July, Varanes had continued his effort with Isaac Niles, but apparently to no avail. The leaders voted to "withdraw the hand of fellowship from Brother Isaac Niles, because of his drinking to excess". Deacon S. Ostrom, Brother Bemis and G. G. Weeks were appointed to a committee to write a letter of Excommunication and deliver it to Brother Niles.

A year later, on May 25, 1828, the church received a request from Brother Bemis for a letter of recommendation to join another Baptist church. By July 24, 1828, he had united with the Church at Newfield, Tompkins County, New York, about 68 miles to the southwest, towards Watkins Glen.

Next we find Reverend Bemis in Almond, Allegany County, New York. As John S. Minard wrote "In 1830, Elder Bemis (who came to Almond as a missionary, preaching at the schoolhouse) became pastor for one year and a half; he was followed by Elder Randall, and he by Elder Bemis who became pastor a second time."

Colonel Thomas Draper reports that Rev. Bemis united in marriage with Mary Simonds on January 18, 1831. Although no mention is made in the church records of any marriage, this fact is supported by a vote on February 12, 1831, to provide to "May A. Simmonds (sic) (now Mary A. Beemus)" a letter of Recommendation. She had just passed her eighteenth birthday.

Later that year, on August 13, notation is made of receiving a letter "from the church in Almond, Allegany Co., N. Y. notifying us that Mary A. Bemis had united with that church." Reverend and Mrs. Bemis began their family and continued living in Almond through 1840. During this time, four sons were born to the couple: Henry Varanes, Simeon S., Samuel M. (who died in 1837, age 17 months) and Edward (Edwin) Coleman. Simeon S. died August 27, 1841 at the age of 7. This probably prompted the family to move to their next stop, sixteen miles west at Angelica, Allegany County, where, "In August, 1841, Rev. V. Bemis began his labors, and he was the first pastor to continue for more than a year. About this time the state convention aided the church by appropriating to it $100 per year. After Rev. Bemis' four years there was a vacancy of nearly a year...." Later, Rev. Bemis would serve as pastor of the Baptist Church in Friendship, Allegany County, New York; about 11 miles further west. He was also mentioned as serving a church in Andover, Allegany County, although it is unclear the order of that stop.

Finally, in 1855, the New York Census records the family living in Harmony, Chautauqua County, New York. Four of his seven sons were listed in the household: Coleman E. (b. October 14, 1838), George A. (b. April 17, 1843) and Luther N. (b. abt 1846) were born in Allegany County. However his youngest son, Dwight L. (b. October 17, 1851) was born in Chautauqua County, indicating a move between 1846 and 1852. When Varanes' father, Timothy Bemis, died in 1848, Varanes was said to be living in Franklinville, Cattaraugus County, New York. The family has not been located in the 1850 U. S. Census.

Reverend Bemis probably passed away between 1855 and 1860 as his widow Mary may be found living with her oldest son, Henry Bemis, 28 (b. October 11, 1832), a brewer in Chicago, Illinois, along with two other sons, Coleman and Dwight.

Finally, Mary married William Hales, himself a widower, on December 4, 1862. She was living in North Amherst, Ohio in 1896, but it is unclear when she passed away.

Biographical Sketch of William D. Strong

William D. Strong, a pioneer settler of Berlin of June, 1847, is the oldest surviving settler of that town. His brother, Nathan H. (now deceased) was the first settler and the only one that preceded him. On the 4th of July, 1847, our subject and his brother celebrated the Nation's birthday on the site of the present city and were the only white people present on the occasion. Indians were numerous in the vicinity but did not join in the festivities, which were very simple, consisting principally of a primitive lunch and a swim in the river. Mr. Strong embarked in farming in this wild and unsettled country and has since here made his home.

He was born in Grand Isle County, Vermont, on Isle La Mott in Lake Champlain, his birth occurring Aug. 20, 1808. His parents were Nathan and Sally Strong. His father was born in Massachusetts, May 2, 1782, and was born of English descent. He settled on Isle La Mott near the close of the eighteenth century and was married in Montreal, Canada, Aug. 7, 1805, to Sally Westover, a native of that city. Fourteen children were born unto them, six sons and eight daughters, of whom six are now living. The parents came to Wisconsin in its territorial days and passed their declining years in Berlin, in the cemetery of which city they now lie quietly sleeping. The father passed away Aug. 4, 1862, and the mother was called home Aug. 12, 1852. They were worthy people and were greatly respected by all who knew them.

In 1824, when our subject was a youth of sixteen years, the family removed to Franklin County, N. Y., where he engaged in farming. In his twenty-first year, he was united in marriage with Miss Eunice Bemis, celebrating Independence Day of 1829 by that important event. The parents of Mrs. Strong were Timothy and Lois Bemis. Ten children graced the union of our subject and his worthy wife, and the record is as follows: Phoebe M., the eldest, died in infancy; Judson also died in infancy; Harriet married Peter Gore and departed this life in December, 1878; Angeline died at the age of five years; Henry V., who served his country as a member of the 5th Regiment Wisconsin Infantry, married Sabrina Bailey, and is now living in Emmett County, Iowa; John W. died of smallpox when an infant; Ann Eliza, wife of Henry Bates, is living in Cooper County, Missouri; Cynthia A. died at the age of five years; Alice A. married Edgar Loper and is living in Madelia, Minn.; William A. died in infancy.

In the autumn of 1834, Mr. Strong first left the East and emigrated to Coldwater, Mich., but after two years went to La Grange County, Ind. The following year, 1837, he came to Wisconsin Territory, settling in Racine County, in that section which has since been called Kenosha County. He there resided until September, 1844, when he removed to Ceresco, Fond du Lac County, and in the summer of 1847, settled on the site of the present city of Berlin, where he has since made his home. Sorrow visited his household the following winter, occasioned by the death of his wife on the 2nd of December. Mr. Strong was in 1849 again married, the lady of his choice being Miss Tryphena Bignall, daughter of Henry and Aurelia (Bates) Bignall. Theirs was the first wedding celebrated in Berlin. Mrs. Strong was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, and taught the first school in Berlin. Mr. Strong's sister, Eliza, wife of Hiram Barnes, was the first white woman of that city, the date of her settlement being in the winter of 1847-8. Another sister, Cynthia, wife of Oscar Wilson, was the first white woman to die in Berlin, her death occurring Feb. 15, 1848.

One child was born of the second union of Mr. Strong, a daughter, Eunice C., who now resides with her father. He was one of the founders and is now a member of the Baptist Church, of Berlin, being the only surviving one of the original members of that society. He was first made a Deacon in the Baptist church in Kenosha County, March 12, 1838, and has been a Deacon of the church in Berlin since 1856. His first wife was also a faithful member of the same church and his second wife a consistent member of the Congregational Church. Her death occurred in Berlin Dec. 18, 1878. Her daughter, Eunice, is a member of the same church and various societies, and like her father delights in doing good, in lifting up the fallen, in relieving the wants of the poor and needy and speaking a word of kindness and sympathy to the distressed.

In early life Mr. Strong was a Whig in political sentiment but as he resided upon the frontier from 1834 until Wisconsin's admission as a State, had no opportunity for voting for a candidate of that party and his first vote for President was cast for Gen. John C. Fremont, in 1856, since which time he has been a Republican. Mr. Strong was one of the many who, in their zeal and public spirit, risked the mortgage on their farms to encourage building of a railroad into the county and like others lost his property for his pains. The road was built and the county has prospered by the advantages it has brought, but the individuals who suffered through the process find but little consolation in the general prosperity. Mr. Strong has lived an honorable life and is entitled to and enjoys the respect of all who know him.

Notes for Eli Emery Bemis:

[Received from Audrey Leary]

Eliza LEMAN m. 29 Oct. 1837 Eli Emery BEMIS. Eli was son of Charles and Betsey (Jones)Bemis. According to marr. certificate, ea. was residing in Weston Massachusetts at Time Of Marriage. No other information given. They lived in Weston and had 1)Emery Leman Bemis, 2)Eliza Leman Bemis, 3)Isadora Ophelia Bemis,4)John Leman Bemis, and 5)George Homer Bemis.

Eliza (LEMAN) BEMIS died of consumption 7 Mar 1861 in Weston Massachusetts Age 54 years, 1 mo., 26 days. Copy of Death rec. gives her birthplace as Boston, Massachusetts, and her parents as John Lemen birthpl. No. Reading and Elizabeth [no surname] birthplace North Chelsea.

Boston Marriages City Document #101 pg 92. gives a John Lemon and Elizabeth Tukesbury m. 7 Jun 1798. Their intentions read (Leeman) (Tewsbury). Big Question. Is this John and Elizabeth the parents of Eliza who married Eli Emery Bemis?

Eli Emery Bemis, married secondly, a widow, Eliza Simon Tewksbury. He was 46 and she 33. She was born in Somerville, Massachusetts to Abijah and Hannah Tewksbury.

As Eli E. Bemis's 2nd w. was a Tewksbury, it seems possible that his 1st wife Eliza Leman's mother Elizabeth might also be Tewksbury. Can any one proove or disprove that the John Leman and Elizabeth Tewksbury who were m. in Boston, were the parents of Eliza Leman who m. Eli Emery Bemis and lived in Weston Massachusetts?

Notes: * Eli's mother was Betsey Jones

If Eliza told the truth about her age, she would have been born in Somerville ca. 1829 ... I don't have the dates in front of me, but shortly before that, Somerville was a part of Chelsea, Mass. Eli and Eliza S. Tewksbury had at least one child, Frank Eugene, who died July 31, 1866, age 1year, 17 days.

[Received from Curtis Bemis Jr.]

In the History of Littleton, Vol. III, p. 58, Edwin E. Bickford is listed as a child of Thomas and Annis M. (Morse) Bickford. Annis d. 2/2/1845 but the DOB for son Edwin E. is given as April 25, 1848. His father remarried 2/11/1846 to Louisa Brown. It is unclear as to the correct DOB and birth mother.

Hi Curt
Yes Brigham Pike Bemis was my gggrandfather and yes he had a brother Moses.
I wonder how much interaction there ws between aunts and uncles, cousins and so on in the 1850s. Illinois was still a hard place to live in the 1850s especialy if you were a farmer. All those mentioned in my query except for Brigham and his brother Francis were gone by 1860 or so and Francis left by early 1870s. They all seemed to have arrived about the same time.
Brigham,Francis, and Moses from NH and the rest VT, NY etc. There were Bemises in Ogle County earlier but no close connection that I can find. Ogle County is the next county west. Roger C. has documented them. There are some who say James,another brother was here also but I have seen that yet.
Francis brought Esther neeBallou Bemis,their mother with them. I believe she died here here before he moved on but again no proof and there probably never will be.

Curt I don't have you in my database, what is your line
Happy New Year To All
Tom

I am tracing the death of my gggrandfather Brigham Pike Bemis in April of 1881. He was a small farmer in Northern Illinois. For some reason he was in Jacksonville, Florida in April of 1881. To the best of my knowledge he had no relation there.

The doctors in attendance were Dr. J.D. Mitchell and Dr. Neal Mitchell. Their offices were at the corners of Forsyth, Julia and Adams. The undertaker was Mr. Calvin Oak. There is no address listed for him but his bill also says he was a dealer in marble mantles. As part of his bill there was a $2.00 charge for a health certificate. I have contacted the county but there is no record for him. Maybe I was at the wrong facility. The bills were paid by his son Frank W. Bemis.

Does anyone have any ideas where I should try next?

Thanks in advance for any tips.

Tom Bemis

Census1: Jun 1860, DeKalb, DeKalb County, Illinois<sup>9230,9230,9231</sup>

Child of Brigham Bemis and Elizabeth Duffy is:

+ 3411 i. Frank W.<sup>8</sup> Bemis, born Oct 1857 in Illinois; died 1941.

1805. John Daniel<sup>7</sup> Bemis (Luther<sup>6</sup>, Daniel<sup>5</sup>, John<sup>4</sup>, John<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Joseph<sup>1</sup>)<sup>9232</sup> was born 28 Sep 1827 in Sherborn, Middlesex, Massachusetts<sup>9233</sup>, and died 02 Sep 1915 in Holliston, Middlesex, Massachusetts<sup>9234</sup>. He married Mary Ann Rose<sup>9235</sup> 18 Apr 1847 in Waltham, Middlesex, Massachusetts<sup>9236</sup>, daughter of Alexander Rose and Ellen. She was born 22 Apr 1822 in Liverpool, England<sup>9237,9238</sup>, and died 12 Jul 1887 in Sherborn, Middlesex, Massachusetts<sup>9238</sup>.

Notes for John Daniel Bemis:

[Received from David Bemis]

Mary, Ann, his wife was born July 22, 1822 in Liverpool, England, who died July 12, 1887 in Sherborn, MA at age 64 of a weak heart and malarial fever. Her parents: father, Alexander, mother Ellen F; Rose, residence, Liverpool England. F. E. Hooker Undertaker, attending physician, Blanchard, MD

John, at Mary Ann's death, purchased eight plots in the Pine Hill Cemetery, Sherborn, MA, (GR2) and buried his wife in one of the plots.

On September 2, 1915 John dies and was also buried there. I spoke with Chucky Blaney, Graves Registrar for Sherborn and she said that John purchased a total of 8 lots, 6 of which are unused and available to the Bemis family descendants. John had 6 children and apparently the lots were for them. None of them ever used the lots. The lot is # 96

In 1910, John D, is a widower at age 82, He lives as a border, at the Stewart's residence at # 56 Central Street, Holliston, MA.

Both John D. and Mary A are buried in the Pine Hill Cemetery "GR2" Sherborn, MA. Visited the grave on March 12, 2001, stone looked new.

John was a shoemaker, which is a cordwainer and probably made boots, as did his son John F. Bemis. The boots may have been for the slave trade in the South.

John joined the Union Army, (Massachusetts Infantry) Company K, 33 Regiment, with the rank of Private. He joined the Army in 1862 for a 3 year man (term), but was discharged on 27, 1863 for expiration of term of service. His regiment was part of the Army of the Potomac and Cumberland's. He apparently contracted dysentery while in the Army. John also had a Civil War Pension certificate # 38592, applicant # 60062, K 33, Massachusetts Infantry. On June 27 1886 applied for state aid due to this condition. His physician was Dr. Albert H. Blanchard of Sherborn, MA. Note, Loralyn Bemis, a GGGG granddaughter joined the Army and is in the 33 Regiment, the same regiment as John.

He was married to an Alice Barrows for 50 years, and was 79 when he died. He was a Yard Forman for a coal company for 50 years, having last worked on April 1935. At his death his wife informed them that he died, the cause of death was chronic myocarditis, and his physician was Clarence D. Burill. He is buried at the Edgell Grove Cemetery, Framingham, undertaker, F.A. Cookson. The records say his parents were John D. and Mary A. Bemis. On April 22, 2001 I visited Luther's grave, prayed and took some pictures. He and His wife Alice are buried together, in lot 2073, on Edgell Ave of the Edgell cemetery. The graves site has a separate headstone and separate plot markers with their individual names on the plot markers. The head stone reads Luther Bemis, 1858-1937, Alice Bemis, 1862-1952. Alice's name as listed on the grave registration form is Alice, Almira Bemis, who purchased the plots (2) on August 25, 1937, some two weeks after Luther died.

Notes for Emory Bemis:

[Draper:102-4] Of Emery Bemis the Cambridge Mass. Tribune of Dec. 1st 1882, said: -- "A Boston merchant for more than fifty years, for twenty-five years an honored citizen of Cambridge, where his last days were spent. Such is the meager outline of a large life. Yet I deem it only fitting that one who has long known and loved him should add a word to this brief record of earthly years. There are many to whom this and the simple notice of death in another column will bring a shock of sad surprise. Not that death at an age so advanced was unlooked for or singular, but to those who knew him well, and were wont to meet him at his place of business, and in the streets of the neighboring city, he may well have seemed, up to the time of his enforced retirement from the scenes of active life, some six years since, the very embodiment of vitality and manly energy. It was impossible to look into the face of this man and not believe in him at once and completely, nor was such confidence ever misplaced. I have known and have had close business relations with many men, and can say with absolute truth, with neither exaggeration nor the fulsome eulogy that gushes so easily when death has closed a life record, that I never met his superior, scarcely his equal, for perfect integrity and unsullied and undoubted honor. As to a generosity, ever too free for his means, let the poor, to whom he was a providence; let the families of our soldiers absent in our defense, tell the story. For the last six or seven years Mr. Bemis has been confined at home, a victim of progressive paralysis, yet, despite the weakness and irritability consequent on such a complaint, his mind remained clear almost to the end.

Why weep ye, then, for him, who having won
The bound of man's appointed years, at last,
Life's blessing all enjoyed, life's labors done,
Serenely to his final rest has passed;
While the soft memory of his virtues yet
Lingers like twilight hues when the bright sun is set?"

LINES WRITTEN TO MRS. SUSAN P. BEMIS

By George Francis Train
On the Death of Her Husband, Emery Bemis, Esq., of Cambridge, Mass.

MADISON SQUARE, New York
Thanksgiving Day, 1882

Dear Aunt Susan:

Yes! sad indeed Thanksgiving Day
To you? As winter, cold and drear,
As autumn leaves drop on the way,
Your life-long love has left you here!
For six decades so true to you
As you to him were always true!
Kind father, husband, and true
To friends', still friendly to the end!
('Tis two and forty years ago,
Do you remember, in the snow
You called for me when school was done,
At burning of the Lexington?)
Through all these years a friend more kind
Than "Uncle Em." 'tis hard to find.
(Through life's changes on land and sea
He had the kindest love for me.)
Long lived our race (though desolate)
There still remains three out of eight!

How many generations gone
 Yet Homestead still survives life storm?
 (Hundred seventy years ago
 Ancestral deeds were signed, you know.)
 Death-stricken with Time's occult hand
 For long he gazed on "Shadow Land!"
 (That life-death none can understand?)
 He lived to love and loved to live
 And shared all that he had to give!
 For four-score years (deny who can)
 He never injured any man?
 His joyous laugh and gentle words
 Were pure as song of summer birds!
 His "Honor Bright" is free from stain,
 As is his character and name!
 I wish that all my countrymen
 Were "Simon Pure" like "Uncle Em!"
 With kind regards these words I send
 To souvenir my kind old friend.

Notes for John Howard Winchester:

[The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, 1847-1994, 1925:79:140]

We was graduated at the Maine Central Institute at Pittsfield, Me., in 1885, and engaged in the insurance and real-estate business at Corinna. He is a trustee of the local academy and library and a member of the Maine Library Commission. In 1924 he retired from business and now spends his winters at St. Petersburg, Fla., where his son has become a resident.

[Maine, a history, p. 284]

JOHN HOWARD WINCHESTER -- Among the best known representatives of the fire insurance interests of Corinna is the citizen whose name stands at the head of this article. For many years Mr. Winchester has been active in local politics and with fraternal affairs he is extensively and influentially associated.

John Howard Winchester was born April 13, 1865, in Corinna, Maine, and is a son of John and Elizabeth M. (Steward) Winchester. Mr. Winchester was a farmer, and during the civil war served as a member of the Fourth Maine Battery. The rudimentary education of John Howard Winchester was obtained in the common schools of his native town and he afterward attended, successfully, the Corinna Union Academy and the Maine Central Institute, Pittsfield, graduating from the latter in 1885.

The business career of Mr. Winchester began when he entered the service of the Maine Central, and Bangor & Aroostook Railroad Company. He remained four years, and then accepted a position entirely different from the one he relinquished, but one which was peculiarly suited to his tastes and temperament. It was that of librarian of the Steward Free Library and the fact that he retained it for fifteen years proves that it was in all respects highly suitable. He has been a member of the Maine Library Commission since 1911. He is treasurer of the Corinna Manufacturing Company, organized in 1912, and now doing quite an extensive business in shirtings and suitings. Since 1912 he has been engaged in the fire insurance business in Corinna and in this occupation has achieved marked success.

From his youth up Mr. Winchester has been a steadfast Republican and for several years he served faithfully and efficiently as the chairman of the Republican Town Committee. Since 1897 he has been affiliated with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and now holds the rank of Past Noble Grand, having also served two terms as District Deputy. He is a member of the Silver Lake Encampment of Dexter. Mr. Winchester also affiliates with Parian Lodge, No. 160, Free and Accepted Masons, St. John Chapter, Dexter, Mount Moriah Council and Delay Commandery, Skowhegan. For thirty-eight years he has belonged to the Grange.

Mr. Winchester married (first), September 5, 1886, at St. Albins, Maine, Sadie B., daughter of Daniel and Phoebe A. Dole, and they became the parents of two children both of whom were born in Corinna: Sidney Hodge, born July 17, 1887; and Jeannette, born April 15, 1889. Mr. Winchester married (second), January 1, 1913, at Dexter, Maine, Della M., daughter of Jacob and Lovina Bemis.

John Howard Winchester has exercised his energies along various lines of endeavor and in each sphere of action he has earned success and won many warm friends.

George Pickering<sup>7</sup> Bemis (Emory<sup>6</sup>, Jonas<sup>5</sup>, Abraham<sup>4</sup>, John<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Joseph<sup>1</sup>)<sup>9515</sup> was born 15 Mar 1838 in Boston, Massachusetts<sup>9515</sup>, and died 11 Dec 1916 in Omaha, Nebraska<sup>9516</sup>. He married Julia Frances Brown<sup>9517</sup>, daughter of Frederick Brown and Charlotte. She was born 15 Mar 1846 in Owego, New York<sup>9517</sup>.

Notes for Hon. George Pickering Bemis:

[Draper:105-6] Mr. Bemis when a boy of thirteen went with his parents from Boston to New York, and remained there till he rejoined his father, who had returned to the former city, in the business of leaf tobacco. In April 1861, he enlisted in the Second Battalion Light Inftry. Boston Tigers, expecting to be sent to the front, but the corps was ordered to garrison Fort Warren in Boston harbor, where they remained a month, and then did escort duty in Boston for six months. At this time, George Francis Train. who was in London, introducing street railways, sent for him, and on his arrival in that city, he took charge of Train's business, and at the same time became the Genrl-manager of the "London American," at the solicitation of George Peabody, Charlotte Cushman and other Americans who had raised money for the support of the paper. During 1861-62-63 the paper had a large circulation abroad, advocating the Union cause, whereas, located only a couple of doors away, the Rebel paper "Index" was published. Mr. Bemis returned to New York in 1863 and entered the Brokerage business. In 1864 he joined Train again and helped him to organize the "Credit Mobilier," and in 1865 the "Credit Foncier" of which he was Secretary and Train, president. In 1868 Mr. Bemis went to Omaha, Neb. where he has since resided, although he has constantly been with George Francis Train on his lecturing tours, and in 1870, went with him on his second tour around the world, reaching Marseilles in October, where Train organized a following of 80,000 of the "Commune", the "International," and the "Ligue du Midi," whilst in Paris was being besieged by the Germans, and for a short time, by a coupe de main, held possession of the city.

Returning to Omaha, Mr. Bemis devoted himself until 1887, to the Real Estate and Loan business in which he has very large interests. He was President of the Bemis Park Company that presented Bemis Park to the city of Omaha. On Oct. 17, 1891. Mr. Bemis was nominated by the Republican party for Mayor of Omaha and on Nov. 3rd following, he was elected over his democratic opponent, by the largest majority (4484 votes) ever given to a candidate for that office. A reform mayor was an urgent necessity at that time and he gave to Omaha for four years the best administration it has ever known, as it conclusively shows by the following from the Omaha Neb. "Bee" of Jan. 8th, 1896.

"The proudest title to which any many can aspire is that of an American citizen. George P. Bemis, who for four years past has served as mayor of Omaha, may now pride himself on the assumption of his title, 'Citizen.' His message as retiring mayor is a most creditable document. It is a clear cut and businesslike presentation of the situation of the municipal government. It affords a comprehensive review of the relations of the city to the various franchised corporations, and embodies recommendations for the promotion and protection of the city's interests in dealing with them in the future. It points out the imperative necessity of radical retrenchment in every branch of the municipal government and suggests appropriate remedies for existing abuses. While the message is dignified throughout and moderate in its tone. Mr. Bemis does not mince words in discussing questions that vitally concern the taxpayers. This is particularly true as regards public works contractors, tax shirkers and taxeaters.

"While the citizens of Omaha may not fully appreciate the difficulties under which Mr. Bemis has labored in their interests during the past four years, they must concede to him the merit of conscientious and faithful public service and fearless discharge of duty as he saw his duty. In the never-ceasing struggle with council combines dominated by boodling contractors and grasping corporations, Mr. Bemis never flinched from defending the public and never bartered away the rights of the taxpayers. Whatever the shortcomings of his administration may have been, they must be ascribed to conditions over which he had no control and the lack of honest co-operation on the part of subordinates and council.

"It will be many a year before Omaha secures another mayor who will be as devoted to its welfare and as courageous in the discharge of duty as George P. Bemis."

[Chicago Tribune (IL) - December 11, 1916]

GEORGE P. BEMIS, SOLDIER OF FORTUNE, DIES AT OMAHA.

Deceased Name: George P. Bemis

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 10. -- George P. Bemis, who, with his cousin, George Francis Train, built the first tramways in London, died here today. He had been twice elected mayor of Omaha. He was 78 years old.

The career of Bemis, who for many years was associated with his cousin, Train, was unusually spectacular. In 1870, when the Prussians were invading France, Bemis and Train attempted to found a French republic. They were condemned to be shot for "inciting to treason," but the order was countermanded. Train, it was reported, snapped his fingers at the firing squad, and he and Bemis wrapped the American flag about them.

Train and Bemis campaigned together for woman suffrage in Kansas in 1867. Frequently they were sent to prison for short terms. They financed The Revolution, a suffrage newspaper established in New York by Susan B. Anthony.

To the promotive genius of Train and Bemis his been credited the success of the campaign for the construction of the Union Pacific railroad. The former mayor celebrated his 75th birthday by fasting for fifteen days.

Charles Henry Chandler was educated in the public schools (including the high school) of Cambridge, and became an accountant. For many years he was treasurer of the firm of Smith, Hogg & Company, commission merchants, but retired from active business about eight years before his death. He lived most of his life in Cambridge, and was a member of the First Baptist Church there, superintendent of its Sunday School, its treasurer for twenty years, and a deacon for twelve years.

He was a member of the Boston Camera Club, of which he was treasurer, the Appalachian Mountain Club, and the Boston City Club, and was much interested in ornithology.

Mr. Chandler married 27 September 1870 Helen Louise Minot, who died about seven years before her husband, daughter of Albert Thomas and Sarah Elizabeth (Fuller) Minot. Of their six children the three eldest, Charles Minot, Grace Minot, and Alice Minot, died before their father, while the three youngest, Sarah Elizabeth of New York City, Albert Minot of Newton, Mass., A.B. (Harvard, 1900), L.L.B. (ib., 1903), and Frederick Allen of Winchester, Mass., survived him.

Notes for Rev. Lorin Cone Collins:

[Some Account of the Cone Family in America, Principally of the Descendants of Daniel Cone, Who Settled in Haddam, Connecticut in 1662. p. 86-7]

...Rev. Lorin C. Collins was brought up in the Methodist faith. He became a preacher at an early age, and was a member of the New England Conference. In 1853 he went to Minnesota and joined the Methodist Conference there. After years of doubt he states that he "drifted away from the faith in the doctrine of endless misery." He writes in 1892 as follows: "Though in my 80th year, I still enjoy fair health and take a good deal of interest in what is going on in the world." Res. at Norwood Park, Ill.

[The Journal-Times Thursday, December 28, 1922, issue]

[<http://ftp.rootsweb.com/pub/usgenweb/wa/adams/obits/1922-4.txt>]

Martha A. Bemis

Mrs. Martha A. Bemis, one of the pioneer settlers of Adams County, passed away at the home of her son, O. Bemis, on Rattlesnake Flat last Tuesday, December 19th. The immediate cause of her death was hardening of the arteries. She had been poorly for some months and the past two months had been bedfast. The funeral was held from the Presbyterian church at Ralston last Thursday conducted by her pastor, Rev. D. R. Russell of Washtucna, and interment was made in the Bemis cemetery of the flat.

Martha A. Watkins was born in Pike County, Illinois, Sept. 27, 1842. She grew up in that county and in 1862 was married to Albert F. Bemis. In 1889 the family removed to Adams County as this county was being developed by settlers into a rich wheat growing country. They located on Rattlesnake Flat, which continued to be the family home. Mr. Bemis passed away 17 years ago.

Mrs. Bemis is survived by four children, three sons and one daughter, and three daughters and a son preceded her in death. The children who are living and mourn the loss of a worthy mother are O. Bemis, Ralston; R. S. Bemis, Ritzville; C. H. Bemis, Spokane, and Mrs. M. A. Chapman of Spokane. Mrs. Bemis was a member of the Congregational church in Illinois. When the United Presbyterian church was organized on the flat she became one of its first members. The church was later moved to Wasthucna and she continued her fellowship with it.

Notes for James C. Bemis:
[Biographical review: containing life sketches of leading citizens of Worcester County, Massachusetts, p. 88-9]

James C. Bemis, the agent of the Boston & Albany Railroad at Coldbrook Springs, was born in Paxton, Mass., February 18, 1824, son of Alpheus and Polly (Prouty) Bemis. The grandfather, Abijah Bemis, was an early settler of Paxton. Alpheus Bemis, who was born in Paxton, January 17, 1784, spent the active period of his life in the cultivation of a farm adjoining his father's property, and died August 28, 1858. He was not a member of any religious denomination, and in politics he acted with the Democratic party. Polly Bemis, his wife, whom he married August 12, 1805, was born in Spencer, Mass., December 9, 1789. She became the mother of nine children, three of whom are living, namely: Hiram P., born July 10, 1818, residing in Paxton; James C., the subject of this sketch; and Mary R., born August 25, 1826, residing in North Brookfield, Mass. The others were: Delia, born August 14, 1809, who died April 4, 1820; Roxy, born October 13, 1811, who died November 7 of the same year; Roswell, born June 9, 1813, who died September 4, 1893; and Alpheus, born May 6, 1821, who died December 16, 1895. The mother passed away August 25, 1866.

James C. Bemis was educated in the schools of Paxton and Spencer. At the age of sixteen he began to learn the shoemaker's trade, and, locating in the village of Coldbrook Springs in 1841, followed that calling here for about twenty years. Soon after his arrival he also engaged in the hotel business as the proprietor of the Coldbrook Springs House, which he carried on successfully until it was destroyed by fire in 1885. Immediately after the disaster he erected the present hostelry, which is now managed by his son. In December, 1873, he entered upon his duties as the local agent of the Boston & Albany Railroad Company, a position that he has efficiently filled up to the present time.

On April 30, 1846, Mr. Bemis was joined in marriage with Mary B. Washburn, a daughter of Levi and Abigail Washburn, born in Gill, Franklin County, Mass., December 3, 1825. She has had five children, namely: Herbert E., born September 23, 1859, who died at the age of seven months; Francene R., now the wife of M. C. Needham, of Coldbrook Springs; Mary J., now residing in Hardwick, Mass.; Ida M., now the wife of C. H. Parker, and enterprising merchant of this village; and James W. Bemis, who is now the proprietor of the Springs House. Mary J., first married Elias F. King, who died January 19, 1886. She is now the wife of H. L. Sturtevant, a hotel-keeper in Hardwick. James W. Bemis contracted the first of his two marriages with Alice M. Hatch, who died August 25, 1883. His present wife was formerly Agnes Crossley. Politically, Mr. Bemis, Sr., is a Democrat. He has served with ability as a member of the Board of Selectmen for several years; has also filled the offices of Assessor, Collector, and Treasurer; and he is a member of Mount Zion Lodge, F. & A. M., of Barre, Mass.

Notes for Levi Bemis:

[Bemis Lovell Family History 1619-1987, p 13-15.]

Levi Bemis born 21 February 1826 at Marshfield, Washington County, Vermont, where his early boyhood was spent mostly on the farm. As a young man, he was engaged in carpentering, teaching school, and part of the time working in the mercantile business.

Upon his 21st birthday his father gave him a five dollar gold piece which was later (upon his death) found in his personal safety deposit box.

After becoming of age in 1842 he decided to leave home and received permission to follow a wagon train on foot, which was heading west, while earning meals for his performance of chores. His destination was Minnesota. When crossing the Mississippi he held on to a cow's tail while it swam across the river. He made one return trip to Vermont before becoming settled in Chafffield, Minnesota.

He saved his money and eventually purchased some land in High Forest, Olmsted County, Minnesota. Upon his marriage to Miss Emeline Eaton, in 1858 (died 10 August 1873), they moved to Chatfield, Minnesota, where he became engaged in the mercantile business. About 1874 his eldest son, Victor L. Bemis, became associated with him under the firm name of L. Bemis and Son. From time to time he would also have joint dealings with other partners.

He had four sons - Victor L., born 1856 (who later married May Hall, moved to Inkster, North Dakota, and became a banker); Harry, born 1858, who was a student at Carlton College; Frank A. who later settled in Oregon; and Will E. at Chatfield, Minnesota, born 2 July 1873, died in Oakland, California 2 August 1942. He had been a student at Shattuck Military Academy. Their mother, Emeline, died on 10 August 1873.

Levi's second marriage was to Miss Jennie Inskeep, at Chatfield, in 1876, who was born in 1847 and died 25 December 1881. His third marriage was to Jennie Bandell.

Levi did not limit himself to the mercantile business but expanded his interests largely into real estate and mortgage banking. In 1882 he became involved in civic affairs in Chatfield and upon his death he left $131,000.00 to trustees to build a home for the aged.

Chatfield became incorporated in 1857 with the first business meeting being held on 1 April 1857.

When Levi moved to Chatfield, in 1855, it was a fast growing little boom town. It is recorded that the town had one real estate firm in 1854, and by 1856 there were thirteen real estate offices in the town.

In the spring of 1854 Chatfield was originally laid out as a village. Following this, Chatfield was expanded by Simeon Crittendon to what was called West Chatfield, a beautiful little valley adjoining the town. In the fall of 1856 he also built the First Baptist Church in Chatfield opposite the home of Charles Lovell. Simeon Crittendon and Charles Lovell eventually became related through marriage into the Bemis family.

Simeon was a native of Ohio, born in Ashtabula County in 1832. He was twice married, first to Miss Caroline Murill, native of Bangor, Maine, who bore him one child, Harry. His second wife was Miss Georgia Atchinson; they had a daughter, Edith Florence (who eventually married Will Bemis), and a son, John J. Crittendon.

It was recorded that Levi Bemis and Simeon Crittendon were numbered among the successful business men in Chatfield.

During Levi's short but happy marriage to Jennie Inskeep, who died on Christmas day, they would travel by train to winter in Florida. They took their bicycles with them and would ride south from the northern part of the state to the more central portion of Florida.

He died at Chatfield 10 August 1910. It was told that following his funeral, after leaving the cemetery, the family member carriages kept picking up speed until they were racing each other to get back to read the will.

Levi was a resolute, sober and religious man and whenever he would make a sizeable donation to his own church he would also donate equal amounts to the other churches in town. He had the reputation of never foreclosing on a loan, but would help unfortunate borrowers work out their financial problems.

He was a Free and Accepted Mason.

(VII) Dr. Merrick Bemis, son of Samuel Flagg Bemis (6), born at Sturbridge, Massachusetts, May 4, 1820; died October 3, 1904. He was one of the most eminent physicians that ever resided in Worcester. He practiced his profession for fifty-six years. Almost to the day of his death he retained his faculties and health. It was often said of him during the last score of years that he practiced, that he was one of the most active aged men of Worcester, carrying on a business that would tax the energies of a man of fifty. Through his entire period of practice Dr. Bemis confined his study and attention to his specialty, nervous and mental diseases, and he was for many years recognized as one of the leading alienists of the country. The wide range of knowledge and experience in cases of insanity, coming under his observation and care during his long connection with large institutions for the insane, gave him an advantage over most of the specialists in this line of study. He was called often as an expert in consultation, and by the courts. His record of twenty-five years of continuous service in the State Insane Asylum, at Worcester, was in itself a remarkable record, and evidence of his ability and powers of endurance.

His parents moved from Sturbridge to Charlton when he was quite young. He was brought up on a farm, getting what educational advantages the district schools of his day afforded. He sought a higher education and worked his way through Dudley Academy. He walked each way every week from his home to the academy, a distance of twelve miles. He taught school in winter to pay his way in the academy. He went to Amherst Academy for two years with the expectation of going to Amherst College. A long and severe illness caused him to abandon his plans for a college education, and for several years he taught school in Brookfield, Massachusetts.

He began to study medicine when he was twenty-two years old, and entered the office of Dr. Winslow Lewis as a student, but continued to pay his way by teaching school in the winters. He attended medical lectures at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, Medical College, where he received the first half of his medical education. He then changed to Castleton Medical College, of Vermont, where, in 1848, he received his degree of M. D. He came to Worcester November 14, 1848, to take the place, temporarily, of one of the physicians in the lunatic asylum, and soon afterward received an appointment as assistant physician to Dr. George Chandler, the superintendent. When, eight years later, in 1855, Superintendent Chandler resigned, the attention of the trustees was at once turned to Dr. Bemis as the most capable man for the position, and he was elected to the office. Being given a leave of absence for the purpose of travel and study in Europe, he made an extended tour, lasting eight months. He returned to Worcester in the summer of 1857, and took charge. He began immediately to put into operation the reforms and new methods he had learned. For seventeen years he filled the position of superintendent to the satisfaction of the state authorities, and developed the institution until it stood among the foremost American hospitals for the insane. Radical changes in the methods of treating insanity were made during his administration. One of the innovations due to Dr. Bemis was the employment of competent female physicians in lunatic asylums. It is difficult to understand now how these institutions got along without women physicians. The custom has now become general. One of his last and most important duties in the state institution was the establishment of the hospital at Bloomingdale, the land for which was bought during the last years of his superintendency of the Summer street institution. He submitted plans for the buildings and again visited Europe in 1868, to inspect hospitals for the insane and study the treatment of lunatics. The Massachusetts institution was kept in the front rank of progress. The example set by this Commonwealth has been exceedingly useful and beneficent, because it has been followed in other states, and by private institutions generally in this country.

Dr. Bemis resigned his position in 1872 to establish a private hospital for the care and treatment of patients afflicted with the various forms of mental and nervous diseases. He located the hospital on Salisbury Street, Worcester. The main building is the mansion built in 1857, by Rev. Nathaniel Bent, for a young ladies seminary. This property, which includes ten acres of land, is very favorably located for its purpose. The hospital is known as Herbert Hall. The large, handsome mansion is cheerful, airy and well furnished. There are spacious verandas surrounding the buildings. The view from the hall is one of the most picturesque in a country abounding in fine scenery. There are attractive walks under the stately old shade trees in the spacious grounds, and altogether it is an ideal place for an invalid and convalescent. It has been successfully conducted ever since its foundation, first by Dr. Merrick Bemis, then by him and his son Dr. John M. Bemis, and since the founder's death by his son alone. No mention of Dr. Bemis's professional career would be complete without referring to his prominence as a specialist in psychiatry. He was frequently consulted both by medical brethren and by the courts in difficult cases of insanity or alleged insanity. He wrote many monographs upon hospital work among the insane and on the general subject of insanity. He was a man of large heart and generous impulses. He gave freely to charities. Few have equalled him in proportion to his means in the number of gifts judiciously distributed among a variety of worthy objects. His patriotic service during the civil war deserves special mention. When in 1861 the president's proclamation, calling for a force of 75,000 men to take the field immediately, was made Dr. Bemis earnestly desired to enter the service. He was unable to pass the physical examination, however, but he gave freely of his means to support the Union cause. He organized and equipped a company and sent it to the front. He took an active interest in their welfare while they were in the field, and contributed freely to the support of the families of the boys in that company while the war continued. It was due largely to his efforts that the public subscription to purchase the organ for Mechanics' Hall was successful. In 1864 the organ, which cost $9,000, was dedicated, and it has proved to be one of the finest instruments of its kind. It has been one of the factors in making the Musical Festivals there so successful, from a musical point of view.

Dr. Bemis collected one of the most valuable and interesting private libraries in the state. Much of the library is, of course, devoted to medical works, and some of the volumes are very old and rare. He found some time to devote to public affairs and was a member of the Worcester board of aldermen in 1861-62-63., serving at the same time on the school board. This was a particularly important period during the early and darker years of the civil war. He was a director of the Mechanics' National Bank; a member of the Worcester Horticultural Society, the Worcester Society of Antiquity, the Natural History Society, of which he was president till his death, the Massachusetts and Worcester District Medical Societies, the American Medical Association, the New England Psychological Society and the American Medicopsychological Association. He was connected with various Masonic bodies. He was a member of the Church of the Unity, and a life member of the American Unitarian Association. He was for about fifteen years one of the state trustees of the Baldwinville Hosptal Cottages for Children , in the management and development of which he had taken a leading part, and was president of the corporation at the time of his death. He was the first American physician to take a stand for the division of hospital buildings for the insane into separate cottages or pavilions. He married January 1, 1856. Caroline A. Gilmore, whose father was for thirty years a successful practitioner at Brookfield, Massachusetts. In his office, in fact, Dr. Bemis received his first lessons in medicine, and was started on his professional career while a school teacher at Brookfield. They had one child: John Merrick.

.....married (second) Maria T. Woods.

Daniel Webster Bemis, son of Samuel Flagg Bemis, and brother of Dr. Merrick Bemis, late of Worcester, was born in Charlton, Massachusetts, April 21, 1835. He obtained his early education in the public schools of Brookfield, Massachusetts. After leaving school he entered the employ of the Hospital for the Insane on Summer street, Worcester, of which Dr. Merrick Bemis was the superintendent. He was appointed steward and filled this position for twenty years. For seven years he was also treasurer of the hospital. In the early seventies he bought a farm in Shrewsbury, and having resigned his position at the hospital devoted his attention to farming since then. With a natural aptitude for agriculture and horticulture. Mr. Bemis has lived quietly and enjoyably upon his farm in the picturesque old town of Shrewsbury. He has an excellent farm well stocked and well conducted.

Mr. Bemis represented Worcester in the general court in his younger days and assisted in the passage of the bill to locate the Hospital for the Insane at Bloomingdale in Worcester. The site has proved an ideal place for an institution of this kind, which has grown very rapidly and for which there is ample opportunity for growth. Mr. Bemis was prominent in Masonic circles when a citizen of Worcester. He has taken the Blue Lodge, the Royal Arch chapter, the council and the commandery degrees in the York Rite degrees. He was elected to take the Scottish Rite degrees also in Worcester. He has been high priest of the chapter and held all the elective offices in that body. Since living in Shrewsbury, Mr. Bemis has served the town for twenty years on the school committee.

He is deeply interested in educational matters, has taken an active part in town affairs, and served three years on the board of assessors and has been a selectman. He is an active member of the Congregational church and Sunday school, and has for a number of years been a deacon. He is a Republican in politics. No citizen in Shrewsbury is more highly esteemed than Mr. Bemis. In every walk of life he has taken his part modestly and capably. As a friend, neighbor and citizen he is popular. In private life and public office alike his integrity and common sense have been appreciated.

Mr. Bemis married (first) Jennie Learned, of Underhill, Vermont. She lived only about a year. He married (second) Maria T. Wood, daughter of Joel Fay Wood, of Grafton. Their children are: 1. Agnes T., graduate of the Worcester high school, and State Normal school, teacher in the Castine Normal school and elsewhere, and for some time superintendent of the domestic department at Mt. Holyoke College. 2. Leigh Jannette, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, 1894, married Rev. Frank B. [Draper:129] Colonel Theodore Sedgwick Draper was a very prominent merchant and business man in New York and Paris. He was Lieut-Colonel and the Colonel of the 2d Regiment, Washington Greys, N. Y. S. M. which subsequently became the 8th Regiment N. G. S. N. Y. After the Rebellion he took his family abroad, (1866) to educate his children, and whilst there was offered by President Grant the Consulships at Dresden, Munich and Brussels, all of which he declined, although he acted ad interim, as consul in Munich for a few months, by special request. He was offered numerous appointments, only one of which he accepted in the later years of his life, the Deputy Collectorship of New York, under Chester A. Arthur, who subsequently became President, on the death of President Garfield. He was a man without an enemy in life, and one who was a prominent and well known figure in Paris and New York.

Notes for Colonel Thomas Waln-Morgan Draper:

[Draper:130-133]:

Colonel Thomas Waln-Morgan Draper was born in New York City on March 12th 1855; the second child and eldest son of Colonel Theodore Sedgwick Draper and Elizabeth Morgan. On his father's side he descends from pure New England stock, his grandfather Captain Simeon Draper of the Revolutionary Army whose wife was Mary Bemis, the eldest child of Colonel Benjamin Bemis of Spencer, whose mother was Rebecca Draper.

On his mother's side, his ancestry is of the old Pennsylvania Quaker stock, Elizabeth Morgan was the daughter of Thomas Waln-Morgan and Hannah Griffiths, and back through these are the Carpenters, Morris', Walns, the Lewis's, Heaths, Fishbourne's, Powells, and many others.

It is but natural that with the Yankee-Quaker strains of blood combined, he should have become an ardent searcher into the past, especially into that appertaining to American Family History. Space does not permit of an enumeration of all he has written, but the works on Genealogy by him are: "The Drapers in America;" "The Tiffany History and Genealogy;" "The Beste-Cutting Charts;" "The Morgan Memorial;" "The Kelsey History and Genealogy"; and now the "History and Genealogy of the Bemis Family."

Work of this character requires a peculiar trend of mind, and great enthusiasm, without these two qualities it is a dry study.

Col. Draper went first to school in New York City, but in 1866, his parents decided to go abroad to educate their children, so that the next few years were spent in the schools of Germany and Switzerland.

He then went to Munich Bavaria, where he graduated as a Civil Engineer; thence to the Royal School of Mines at Freiberg in Saxony, whence he graduated as a Mining Engineer in 1875.

During the Franco-German War, Col. Draper volunteered in the 2d. Saxon Lancers, and during the campaign was present at Weisseburg, Sedan, the Siege of Paris, Battle of Orleans and numerous smaller engagements.

In the spring of 1876, he returned to America, and had charge, under Prof. Baird of the Smithsonian Institute, of the U. S. Govts. Collection, to illustrate the Mineralogical and Geological Resources of the United States, at the Centennial Exposition.

In September 1876 he went to Colorado, where he remained in the active pursuit of his profession until 1881; during this period he visited New and Old Mexico, and most of the Western Mining Territory. His American Military career began when he enlisted as a private in Comp. C. 1st Regiment C. N. G. (Pitkin Guards) in 1880.

On April 21st of the same year, his friend Governor Pitkin of Colorado, commissioned him Assistant Inspector Genrl. with the rank of Captain, which post he held during the Governor's term of office.

Col. Draper returned to New York to live in 1882, and resided there, with frequent absences, until 1896. Whilst in New York, he became Captain of Comp. "B" 71st N. Y. Inftry. the celebrated "American Guard."

In pursuit of his profession Col. Draper has been in many countries, Europe, Asia, Africa, Central and South America; in both of the latter he was obligated by circumstances to participate in the periodical Revolutions.

For five years, from 1884 to 1889, Col. Draper as Chief Engineer, built the Atlantic & Danville, and Danville & East Tenn. R. R.'s, in Virginia, North Carolina and Tenn. He has erected and had charge of large public and private works at home and abroad, which to enumerate and describe would take too much space. Explorations amongst the Cordilleras of Central America, and the Andes of South America, in search of the remnants of Ancient Civilizations have also engrossed his time.

In February 1896, Col. Draper returned to Colorado, intending to make it permanently his home, and resided in Denver. Scarce a year had passed, before he was unanimously offered, and reluctantly accepted from the officers of the 1st Inftry N. G. C. the Colonelcy of the Regiment, which he most thoroughly reorganized, and placed upon a first class basis, then resigned, as the work interfered too much with his other business. It was this regiment, under the command of Colonel Draper's successor, Lieutenant-Colonel Irving Hale, known as the "First" Regiment of Colorado Volunteer Infantry, that subsequently rendered such excellent service in the Philippines, during the War with Spain. On June 7th, 1898, Colonel Draper was authorized to recruit a Company, for the Second Regiment of U. S. Volunteer Engineers, part of a brigade of Engineer troops, especially authorized by Act of Congress for the War with Spain. The Company was mustered into the U. S. service at Denver, Colo. on June 28, 1898, and Captain Draper, with his officers, and men, left for San Francisco on June 30, reporting at the Presidio, San Francisco, on the morning of July 3rd, and became a part of the 3rd Battalion of the Regiment, under command of Major Wm. C. Langfitt, which acted independently of the other two battalions of the same Regiment, recruited in the East. These battalions served at Montauk Point, in the Southern States, and were the first U. S. troops to enter Havana. Captain Draper's Company was "I", and they sailed from San Francisco for the Hawaiian Islands on August 5, 1898, as part of the 8th Army Corps. They were accompanied by the 1st Regiment of New York Volunteer Infantry, Colonel Thomas Barber commanding. These troops were ordered to the Hawaiian Islands as a temporary garrison and to take over the Islands, on annexation to the United States. It was intended that the Engineer Battalion should proceed to the Philippine Islands, but there was such a scarcity of troops that they remained there, building barracks, surveying the Islands, and accomplishing a great deal of engineering work during the whole war. The 1st New York Infantry was ordered home, leaving the engineers the sole garrison of the Islands. They were not relieved until April 20, 1899, and then by four batteries of the 6th U. S. Artillery, under the command of Major Mills. The battalion sailed the same day for San Francisco, where they were mustered out of the service of the United States on May 16th, 1899.

Captain Draper has had a varied career in his profession as an engineer and soldier. He received the thanks of the Legislature of Colorado, "Joint Senate Resolution No. 1," Session of 1899, for his service in the War with Spain. For the same services, he has subsequently been decorated by the Society of Sons of the American Revolution in the State of Colorado, and has also received a Medal of Honor issued by the National Society of Sons of the American Revolution. In addition to being a member of these Societies, he is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, which was founded in his office in New York in 1892; and subsequently he founded the Colorado Society, of the same Order, in Denver. For his services, he was decorated with the full insignia of the Order. He is also a member of the Society of the War of 1812, the Society of Sons of the Revolution, and the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, corresponding with the Loyal Legion. He is also a member of numerous other Societies and Clubs.

Colonel Draper has always been interested in everything American, past and present, and has given his time and means to the forwarding of the aims of the Hereditary Patriotic Societies. He is an author, having written a number of histories and family genealogies, as well as numerous pamphlets on mining and civil engineering subjects. He had charge, amongst other details, of an independent command in the Hawaiian Islands, which embraced the survey of the lands adjacent to Pearl Harbor, and numerous reconnaissances, and it was through his efforts and reports that the large military reservation, of over 14,000 acres on Oahu Island, was set aside for military purposes. His reports were heartily endorsed by his commanding officer, as well as Col. George Ruhlan, Chief Quartermaster, Inspector-General Field, Brigadier General G. C. Compton, and Major-General Shafter, Commanding the Department.

Almost immediately after the War, Colonel Draper went to Alaska as General Superintendent of Mines, and Chief Engineer of the North American Transportation & Trading Company, spending the summer of 1899 in that territory. He is now residing in San Francisco, Cal., as consulting mining and civil engineer.

[Janesville (Wisconsin) Gazette, December 23, 1911]

MRS. MARTHA BEMIS NINETY-ONE YEARS OLD CHRISTMAS DAY

Pioneer Resident of County Remarkably Well Preserved For Age--Has Wealth of Reminiscence.

To have vivid memories of the experiences and important events of over three-quarters of a century, witness the settlement and population of what was almost a wilderness, the passing of a territory into statehood and the transformation of a hamlet into a thriving city, is the rare lot of Mrs. Martha Anna Bemis, who on Christmas day will celebrate her ninety-first birthday.

Mrs. Bemis is remarkably well preserved for her age, and her hearing memory and keenness of mind would do credit to many persons fifteen and twenty years her junior. The one faculty which has failed her is her sight; she has been totally blind for the last three years. In other respects she feels but very lightly the weight of her years and takes pleasure, not only in the treasures of reminiscence in her well stocked memory, but in contemporary happenings and in her children of which there are now four generations. She has been observing woman, noting the transpiration of events in state and nation as well as in the community and household, and to this day her children refer questions concerning them to her for settlement.

It is now sixty-eight years since Mrs. Bemis left her home in Genesee county, New York, and moved with her husband to Wisconsin. Of the years preceding this time, she still has memories. She remembers the celebration which attended the opening of the Erie canal which occurred when she was about seven years old, the Harrison-Tyler campaign in which miniature log cabins were carried triumphantly in Whig campaign processions, and of seeing while on a visit in Michigan soldiers just returned from the Black Hawk war. While crossing lake Erie from Dunkirk to Cleveland, on their way to Wisconsin, the vote upon which she and her husband were traveling engaged in a spirited race with another packet in the frenzy of the contest tar was fed to the fires to make them hotter, but despite overcrowded boilers and imminent danger of explosion the boat upon which Mr. and Mrs. Bemis traveled turned out winner.

Mr. Bemis, now deceased some twenty years, came to Wisconsin in 1842 and preempted land near Racine. He returned to New York expecting to return early the following spring and prove up on his claim. The fates were against him; a very cold winter followed, the ice in the upper lakes was late in breaking up, and the boats were not able to bring him to Racine until it was too late to prove up on his land.

Next paragraph this circumstance led Mr. and Mrs. Bemis to settle in Rock county. They came out from New York the following year and traveled overland to Janesville, then a straggling hamlet. The only house on the west side of the river was that of Judge Joseph Holmes, now known as the Woodruff place. Thomas Lapham conducted a business where now stands the Hayner block and a Mr. Stevens was corporate her of the tavern on the present site of the Myers Hotel Mr. Stevens also directed and operated a toll bridge across the river, the tolls of which gave rise to much complaint on the score of price. At the time Mr. and Mrs. Bemis crossed it a freshet had swelled the river, the water of which came over the floor of their wagon box.

The home at which Mr. and Mrs. Bemis put up on their arrival in Janesville was one built by J. P. Sears in 1840. It was a frame structure, uncommon at that time when logs were the usual building material. Here they boarded for six weeks while Mr. Bemis was building a house on his own land in the town of Plymouth, four miles west of the river. This was a one-and-a-half story structure, 18x20 feet in dimensions, and made of round logs. The sleepers were of peeled popular logs and Mrs. Bemis used to scrub them twice a year to keep them white.

The log house was occupied before it was completed, with only three or four boards over the roof, and about as many in the floor, and with the chinks between the logs not filled in Mrs. Bemis was once alone in this house while it was in this condition when a heavy storm broke. The rain drove in from all sides, and she was driven to take refuge in the four-post curtained bedstead. Even here she did not escape a thorough drenching.

Mr. Bemis lived in Janesville and on his farm from '42 to '80 and later moved to Evansville where he died in 1891. The vicinity where he established his pioneer home was known as the Douglas settlement, and Mrs. Bemis tells an amusing story of the inconvenience caused by the distance to the nearest grist mill, at Pecatonica, Ill., which was a day's journey by team. On one occasion, the family loaned almost their entire supply of flour to a neighbor's family which was entertaining company. Guests arrived at their own home later in the day, and the usual preparations were made for their entertainment but there was no flour for bread or biscuits. At the last moment someone came into the settlement with flour and the chagrin of the unfortunate hostess was averted.

The few incidents recounted are about one of the many of which Mrs. Bemis relates. She remembers well the visit of the first steamboat to Janesville on the fourth of July, 1844, the difficulty in had in coming up through the Monterey rapids, its wheels throwing gravel into the air, and the great excitement caused by its rival here. She also recalls the visit of Grant to Janesville while a young man, driving a team for a crew of surveyors from Galena. Her memories of the settlement of Footville by Joseph Squarefoot and his band are also vivid.

The Bemis family and their relatives played a very important part in the settlement of Rock county. In 1865 Mrs. Bemis had as many as one-hundred and two relatives within its borders. She is the mother of three children, one of whom is dead, has eight grand-children, and twelve great-grand-children. Her living children are Mrs. Louis Hayner and Arthur Bemis of Ponce City, Okla., Jacob Bemis, the third child is dead. Her grand-children are Mrs. Frank Scoville of this city with whom she makes her home, Mrs. Myrtle Campbell, Mrs. Anna Pearson of Great Falls, Montana. Mrs. Marie Pearson of Hamilton the same state, and Albert Bemis and Mrs. Lillian Robertson of Ponce City, Oklahoma.

2167. Hon. She was born 08 May 1829 in Alabama, Genesee, New York<sup>10198</sup>, and died 09 Aug 1899<sup>10199</sup>.

Notes for Hon. George Washington Bemis:

[Draper:142-4] [reprinted in Tower:V1:160-2] George Washington Bemis was born October 13, 1826, at Spencer, Mass., where he remained until 1837, when his father removed to Alabama, Genesee county, New York. This change of residence was an event of now small moment, and involved a journey of many days fraught with more adventures and possible dangers than are now incident to an ocean passage or trans-continental tour. The section of New York into which he was thus brought was then a part of the ever-advancing frontier, and he gave a sturdy lad's assistance in the arduous labor of subduing the rugged face of nature to the needs of civilization. This task performed, his summers were spent in working on the farm which he had helped to wrest from the surrounding wilderness, and his winters were devoted to making the best use of such advantages as were offered by the primitive country school.

A course at the Cary Collegiate Seminary at Oakfield supplemented this instruction, and that he profited by every educational opportunity is shown by his early election to the office of superintendent of the township schools. His interest in political matters date from the presidential campaign of 1840, and in 1848 he disgusted his father--an ardent Whig--by casting one of the eleven anti-slavery ballots "which leavened the lump" of four hundred polled in that district for the opposing candidate. He remained an enthusiastic and uncompromising Abolitionist throughout the struggle which terminated in emancipation. He has always, too, been a zealous advocate of woman suffrage. He taught school for two years in Wisconsin and in April, 1854, came west to visit an acquaintance. So enamoured did he become of the broad and fertile prairies of Iowa during his stay that he determined to adopt Independence as a place of residence, and went into the land business.

Mr. Bemis was elected a member of the Eighth General Assembly in 1859, and served in the lower house during the regular session, in 1860. It may be of some interest to mention, as an illustration of the changes wrought in a few decades, that four days and three nights were consumed in going from Independence to Des Moines, and that the capital had neither a railroad nor a telegraph line at that time. The session lasted nearly three months, and the legislators had to deal with business of great importance, including a revision of the Code, and an attempt to mitigate the "hard times", then existing, by remodeling the revenue laws. Mr. Bemis introduced an important bill in relation to the duties of county surveyor and was largely instrumental in substituting the present supervisor system for the then existing county judge rule. The extra or "war session" which followed in June 1861, was one that demanded action in affairs of much moment, and in all the deliberations he took a prominent part, his sagacious influence being very apparent. As one of a special committee of five, he was sent to investigate the construction of the insane asylum at Mr. Pleasant, out of which some ugly scandals had arisen, and he performed other and important duties.

[Tower:V1 adds: Upon the expiration of his term, he was made a postal clerk on the Illinois Central Railroad between Dubuque and Sioux City, a position which he held for seven years.] In the fall of 1869 he was appointed by Governor Merrill, one of the Commissioners of the Hospital for the Insane at Independence, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Albert Clarke, and he acted as Secretary and Treasurer of the Board until his resignation in December, 1871. He was reappointed by Governor Carpenter in April, 1872, and served in the same capacity until July, 1892, during which time he received and disbursed more than a million dollars. He was elected from Buchanan county to the State Senate in 1871, and was justly regarded as one of the most efficient members of that body. He served as chairman of the committee on the State University and was one of the committee on appropriations. He also secured for the hospital at Independence, without a dissenting voice in the Senate, an appropriation of $200,000, the largest ever granted. He was chosen Treasurer of State in 1876 and re-elected in 1878, conducting the affairs of that extremely responsible office in such a manner as to win expressions of general approval.

He was a member of the first board of supervisors of Buchanan county and, apropos of his candidacy for that office, he told an amusing and characteristic anecdote. On the day of the election he returned from an eastern trip to learn, with surprise, of his nomination. The struggle was an intensely hot one, party feeling ran high and the result of the battle was in great doubt. He started for the polls with the modest intention, as in previous instances, of voting for his opponent, but it occurred to him on the way that he was no more justified in "scratching" than any other voter, and he deposited a straight ticket in the box. "I received a majority of exactly one", he concluded, "and so became the choice of the people."

[Tower:V1 adds on 164:] Mr. Bemis is a rather more than medium stature and somewhat full habit. His physiognomy and the general contour of his head recall portraits of Charles Darwin, and in many respects he is not unlike that imminent iconoclast. A long public career has left him with an unblemished reputation. He has held great pecuniary trusts within integrity that has never known the shadow of suspicion, and in every situation he has been the champion of temperance and sound morality. It is fitting that, with good health, a keen relish for all intellectual and wholesome recreation, surrounded in his pleasant home by the friends and neighbors of a half a century, he should be able to say with Adam, in "As You Like It"

"Therefore my age is a lusty winter.
Frosty, but kindly."

Notes for Simeon Daniels Fay:

[Fay Genealogy - John Fay of Marlborough and His Descendants, Orlin P. Fay, Cleveland, Ohio, 1898]

p. 296-7: Simeon Daniels (440).

His mother's name was Lydia Bemis, daughter of Phineas Bemis and granddaughter of Elisha Bemis; his grandmother was Sarah Childs before marriage, and his great grandmother's maiden name was Reid. His mother's great uncle was killed in the battle of Lexington: his name was Asahel Reid.

Mr. Fay was a soldier in the Mexican War: he was also in the late war and was engaged in the battle of Shiloh, April 6 and 7, 1862. (50 years old.) He belonged to the 18th Regt. Wisconsin Vols. The regiment suffered great loss and was demoralized, and as he says, "I fought on my own hook." Then he joined the 36th Illinois Regt. They were driven back and he joined the 32nd Illinois. Co. B, and then led them by a flank movement but was outflanked by the enemy after suffering severe loss and was compelled to retreat. Next he joined the 15th Michigan, and soon after went into the 57th Illinois, and after sanguinary fighting they were victorious at four or five o'clock and drove the rebels from the field. He was introduced to Gen. Harvey the 18th of April, who promised him a commission, but he was drowned April 19th sometime during the night. The papers regarding the service of Mr. Fay at the battle of Shiloh were found in the pocket of the General and were also published in the "Madison Journal," the "Milwaukee Sentinel," the "Wood Co. Reporter," and in the "Oxford Express." In the regiment he belonged to the Lieutenant Colonel, the Colonel, the Major and his Captain (Compton), were killed. Col. Bouck of the 2nd Wisconsin Regt. took the command. His company then wanted him to take the position of Lieutenant. Col. Bouck refused to approbate him on account of his age. At the great battle of Corinth, Oct. 3 and 4, 1862, Major Jackson requested Col. Bouck to give Mr. Fay a commission, but he again refused on account of his age. Afterwards he went into the 8th Wisconsin or "Eagle" regiment, and participated in the different battles of that regiment, too numerous to mention. He has been an invalid since the war on account of a sunstroke July 21, 1865, at Selma, Ala.

Mr. Fay is responsible for the following statement: Josiah Fay, son of Robert (?) served at the commencement of the Revolution as Captain and soon rose to the rank of Major. He was poisoned by a treacherous doctor while in the war. The doctor was soon after put to death and made his confession that he had killed thirty men in the same way. He sorrowed and regretted that he had poisoned Major Fay because he said he considered him a very nice man. (See letter of Mr. Fay, May 17, 1885).

The following is from the "Kilbourn (Wis.), Mirror": "Simeon D. Fay of Oxford, Wis., who is visiting this town, affords one about as pleasant an interview as can be found in a man. He has fought through the Mexican War, and those who knew him at the time of Shiloh and other battles say 'he was always found where the bullets were thickest.' He is a 'walking encyclopedia' of dates and war reminiscences as far back as history goes. Though seventy-five years of age he is yet equal to a long day's march."

Notes for Elizabeth Schorb:

Obituary:

Death of Mrs. Chas. W. Bemis

Elizabeth Schorb was born in Burlington, Wis., on Sept. 13, 1852, and died at the home of her son, Dr. H. E. Bemis, in Ames, Iowa, Oct. 8, 1921. She was married in 1875 to Charles W. Bemis and moved to Kansas with her husband in 1878. They took a claim in Delhi township, Osborne county, where they lived the life of pioneer sheep ranchmen for a number of years. She was always interested in people, and active in educational and religious work in her community and many a traveler found a cordial welcome at the Bemis home. In order to give the children the advantage of better schools the family moved to Cawker City in 1891, and bought the farm at the northwest corner of town which has been the family home ever since.

Probably the outstanding ambition of father and mother was that they might be able to raise their children under the influence of a Christian home, and to provide for them the advantages of an education.

Mrs. Bemis had a remarkable ability for seeing and appreciating the beauties of life. She had a deep appreciation of nature, music, art, poetry and the value of friendships. Since early womanhood she had been an active member and worker in the church, and an ardent supporter of the schools and other community activities.

She has been preceded in death by her husband and daughter Emily, (Mrs. M. A. Smith). Two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Allen and Miss Millie Thurston of Los Angeles; three sons, George, Charles and Edward; and seven grandchildren are the members of the immediate family who remain to mourn the loss and cherish the memory of the beautiful life which has just closed.

About the first of September Mrs. Bemis went to Ames, Ia., to keep house for her son, Dr. H. E. Bemis, whose wife died a short time ago, taking with her two grandchildren who are motherless. Maxine and Morris Smith. There in the college town she expected to spend the school term, surrounded by the good, the beautiful and elevating influences in which she so much delighted, and was supremely happy in her new home. The first of last week she became ill, but it was thought her ailment would not prove serious, though she had long been bothered with leakage of the heart. The physicians recommended only that she rest as much as possible, and this she did, but on Saturday evening, early, while alone in her room, she quietly passed away, and died as she had lived, quietly and peacefully.

Monday morning her body was brought to Cawker City, accompanied by her son and grandchildren, and on Tuesday afternoon she was laid to rest in Prairie Grove cemetery, the funeral services being held at the old home she loved so well, the Reb. Stanford Binkley of the Presbyterian church having charge of the absequies, the music being furnished by a quartet composed of Miss Louise Remus, Mrs. George Meall, Mr. W. E. Blankenship and Mr. Chas. Wodbury. The pallbearers were old friends of the family, and the service was attended by an extremely large number of friends, many of them coming long distances to pay tribute to her memory.

Notes for Cheney Bemis, Jr.:

Steve, Since these are from two different sources and the info does not "cross", there is no way I can POSITIVELY confirm this. The Drake book only states that she [Laura Bemis] was the daughter of Cheney & Angia (Langdon) Bemis. The Howe book lists Cheney as the son of Cheney & Martha (Howe) Bemis. It does not continue beyond him. The dates do suggest this, also from the other reference in the Howe book on p. 370 where Lois Ada Bemis, daughter of Cheney & Annie I. (Langdon) Bemis, b. in Spencer (as was Laura) 21 Feb, 1856. Laura was born 21 Feb 1857 so they were probably sisters. As to Cheney's connection to the elder Cheney, there is no proof positive. Perhaps this could be found in the Spencer or North Brookfield records, where they later lived. Bob Howe (Bhowegen47@aol.com)

Notes for Caroline Howe Bemis:

There is conflicting information between (i) Vital Records of Spencer (16) and The History of Spencer (8) that both indicate she was born October 1, 1823 and was a twin of her brother Tilly, and (ii) Draper(157) who contends Caroline was born October 1, 1830. The latter (ii) is supported by the census records for Spencer (1850) that show Caroline, age 19, in the household of Cheney Bemis, and by information that her gravestone indicates she was born in 1830.

Notes for Alvin Bemis:

[Tower:V1:114-115] ALVIN BEMIS was born in Spencer, Massachusetts, October 16, 1839, and entered the service September 23, 1861, at Readville, Massachusetts, as a private in a Company I, twenty-seventh regiment Massachusetts volunteers, and was discharged at Newbern, North Carolina, April 23, 1863, for disability. His first battle was at Roanoke Island. Subsequently he participated in the battles of Fort Mason and Newbern, after which battle he was put upon General Burnside's Dispatch and Headquarters boat and remain there until about the time Burnside went to the Army of the Potomac. For about a month he was confined in the hospital at Portsmouth, North Carolina. His intimate comrades in the service were John Marsh of Spencer, Horace Pike, Wm. Lamb, Frederick Young, and Wm. King of Charlton, A. S. Howe of Salem, and Slayton N. Dean of North Brookfield. The most important events in his service he considers were the capture of Newbern, North Carolina, and laying outside Hatteras Inlet, three days and nights with signals of distress flying, before any help ventured near. He was on the Alice Price dispatch when it took the prisoners from Fort Mason who were paroled at their homes. He was at Elizabeth City when Commander Tatnel set fire to his fleet and swam ashore, and was constantly on the move about Pamlico and Albermarle Sounds and their inlets. After returning to his regiment he went to Swansboro and assisted in destroying the salt works there, and he was kept actively at work until he was sent, wait in the fall, to the hospital.

Notes for Alonzo Amasa Bemis:

"History of Worcester County Massachusetts", Supervising Editor-in-Chief, Ellery Bicknell Crane, Lewis Historical Publishing Company, Inc., New York and Chicago, 1924, Vol. III, p. 188-9:

Alonzo Amasa Bemis, one of Worcester County's prominent men in professional, public, and private life, is a descendant of an old and honored English family, emigrants of which came to America and settled in the New England States, where they and their numerous offspring exerted an incalculable influence upon the growth and advancement of their several localities. To-day throughout the New England States are many hundreds who bear this distinguished patronym. The numerous Bemis families of Spencer and of Worcester County, of all descended from Joseph Bemis, the emigrant ancestor, who was born in England in 1619, and came to America while a young man, settling in Watertown, Massachusetts, where he is listed as a planter as early as 1640. He became a town officer and one of Watertown's foremost citizens, his death occurring at that place in 1684. The lineal descent goes from Joseph to John (1), to John (2), to John (3), to Abijah, to John (4), to Samuel, and to Amasa, grandfather of Alonzo Amasa Bemis. Amasa Bemis was born in Spencer, February 25, 1831, and married Laura Pike, a native of Brookfield, and they were the parents of Edwin Amasa Bemis, through whom the line continues. Edwin Amasa Bemis, the father of Alonzo Amasa Bemis, of whom this biographical record, was born on December 25, 1824, at Spencer, Massachusetts, where he spent his long life and as an agriculturist, and where he died November 27, 1887. He was married, at Spencer, in 1847, to Julia Draper Watson, who was born at Leicester on July 15, 1826, a daughter of Robert Watson, who was a descendant of an old Scotch family that at an early date emigrated to America, settling at Leicester, where scions of that patronym later became of great influence and importance. Julia Draper (Watson) Bemis survived her husband until 1908. To Edwin Amasa and Julia Draper (Watson) Bemis were born eleven children, two girls and nine boys.

Amasa Alonzo Bemis, the ninth child of Edwin Amasa and Julia Draper (Watson) Bemis, and a representative of the tenth generation of the Bemis family in America, was born at Spencer, Worcester County, Massachusetts, on May 2, 1864. His early education was obtained in the local public schools, following which he entered high school. In 1865 he matriculated in the Dental Department of the University of Maryland, from which institution he was graduated with the class of 1887, receiving the degree of D. D. S. After two years of study with Dr. A. A. Howland, of Worcester, before graduation, he engaged in the practice of his profession in West Brookfield, where he remained for three years. He then returned to his native city, where he opened offices and built up a large clientage, practicing with steadily increasing success in the same suite of offices for a period of thirty-six years. Recently Dr. Bemis has removed his office to a new block, built expressly by him for his dental practice, and here he continues in a profession in which he has no peer in his native county.

Politically Dr. Bemis gives his hearty support and cooperation to the Republican Party. He is a trustee of the Sugden Library, the Sugden Block, and of the Bemis Memorial Park Association, and a member of the Massachusetts Dental Society. His religious affiliation is given to the Congregational church, of which body he is a sincere member and an earnest worker.

Dr. Bemis married (first), October 4, 1887, Nellie M. Thayer, daughter of Clarke and Nancy Thayer, of Natick, Massachusetts. She died December 15, 1907, and Dr. Bemis married (second), April 8, 1911, Maud Etta Varney, daughter of Arthur W. and Cora L. (Baker) Varney, of Hermon, Maine.

Some years ago Dr. Bemis undertook the arduous task of compiling a complete and comprehensive genealogy of the Bemis family, which, with the able assistance of his mother, he brought to successful completion. This genealogy to-day stands as an invaluable historical record of a family whose members were protagonists in the upbuilding and advancement of the early colonies. Alonzo Amasa Bemis maintains his residence at No. 12 High Street, Spencer, Worcester County, Massachusetts.

Just came upon your Ancestry.com listing for Alvin H. Bemis. And surprise! Add another marriage: Elizabeth Hellar Toms, born 1840; died 8 October 1926, Minnehaha County, South Dakota. But also listed is the death date in Minnehaha County, Dell Rapids, South Dakota, 24 May 1910, for Alvin H. Bemis who was born 2 September 1837. I have a copy of his will and probate papers from South Dakota. He is buried in Dell Rapids Cemetery. I don't know who the Alvin Bemis is that died at a different time and is buried in Iowa. The will of Alvin H. Bemis lists all his children and they are the same names as listed in your record. He and Elizabeth didn't have any children. I think Alvin and Elizabeth were married sometime before 1889. Her father's will named her as Elizabeth Bemis and gave a South Dakota address. Will be glad to exchange info. Mary in St. Louis.

Notes for Lucius Kimball McGaffey:

[Received from Julia Brittain.FTW]

Lucius Kimball McGaffey is another Vermont boy that has done honor to the Green Mountain State. At an early age he went to New Mexico, and soon after embarked in the real estate and insurance business, and with a high sense of honor and integrity, coupled with a keen business capacity, and with the push and energy characteristic of native born Vermonters, he has build up a flourishing and very remunerative business. His maternal ancestors -- the Bemises -- were noted for their thrift and business capacity and were all well-to-do people, and this added to the sturdy push of the McGaffeys, has placed him on the high road to success. His election as a delegate from the fifth Texas district to the National Convention to be held at St. Louis, tells of his standing in the community where he lives. At nearly forty he is still unmarried. None of the dusky maidens are sufficiently attractive to lure him from his bachelorhood. His mother superintends his household, and "mother's cooking is the best."

Amasa Bemis McGaffey

It falls to the lot of but few Vermont boys to achieve the honor and distinction that has come to Amasa Bemis McGaffey at the age of thirty-four. After completing his education, he left Vermont for New Mexico. He worked in the general office of the A. T. & S. F. R. R. for several years, but finally embarked in business for himself, in the wholesale and retail crockery and glassware business. In 1901 he was made western manager for the Hyde Exploring Expedition. This company was composed of New York capitalists with a paid in capital of $250,000, doing a general Indian trading business with trading posts scattered all over the Indian reservation. In 1903 the company was re-incorporated as the Benham Indian Trading Co., of which he was made president and manager. They have since put in a large branch at Los Angeles and had a mammoth exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition. Mr. McGaffey is located at Albuquerque, N. M., where he has a store for the sale of Navajo blankets and Indian goods, conceded to be the finest store of the kind in the world. His duties require him to make trips with an Indian escort to the trading posts on the reservation. New Mexico has a Territorial Fair Association, and at a meeting of the Association held Feb. 3, 1904, Mr. McGaffey was elected president. The Albuquerque Morning Journal of Feb. 4, says: "At a meeting of the N. M. Fair Association last night, A. B. McGaffey, president of the Benham Indian Trading Co. and one of the most popular young businessmen in Albuquerque, was elected president for 1904. Mr. McGaffey was nominated by Hon. O. N. Marron, president of the last fair, and his election was made unanimous on a motion by Mr. Mandell. In Mr. McGaffey the Association has secured the ideal president, since that gentleman possesses the abundant energy and capacity for hard work which is so essential to successful management of an enterprise of the magnitude which Territorial has assumed in recent years."

Oct. 9, 1894, A. B. McGaffey married Mabel F., daughter of H. E. Fox of Albuquerque. Their children are Herbert Steven, born Oct. 15, 1896; Ramer, born Feb. 9, 1901, died June 17, 1902; Donald Fox, born April, 1902.

Our subject was reared on a farm and attended the limited schools. He was united in marriage, June 29, 1848, with Eleanor, a daughter of Griffith Hinton, a native of Wales, whose parents, with a large family, located in Erie Co. in the year 1800. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and died at his daughter's house, March 15, 1881, aged ninety-six. Mr. and Mrs. Bemis settled on the homestead, taken up by the former's father, which has never been out of the family, where they expect to pass the remainder of their days. They have 200 acres under good cultivation. The children born to this union are Fannie, who died Feb. 13, 1870, in her 20th year; Seth, married to Lida Fritts; Sumner, Jr., Ella, Elmer E., Henry and Geary. Mrs. Bemis is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Bemis was School Director 12 years, and has held various township offices, and supports all public-spirited enterprises, and has been a life-long Republican.

Sumner Bemis

Died of Heart Failure at His Venango Home Yesterday.

Sumner Beemis, on of the pioneers of Erie County, died of heart failure at his home in Venango township yesterday. Universal sorrow will be felt over the passing away of another of Erie County's stalwart Republicans and representative men.

Deceased was born March 20, 1823 in Chenango County, New York. He came to Erie county in his young manhood and in 1848 was married to Miss Eleanor Hinton, daughter of a soldier of the War of 1812, who for some time was keeper of the lighthouse of this port. Mr. Bemis was reared on a farm and secured his education at the country schools. He was honest and industrious and by judicious work, became the owner of 200 acres of valuable farm land under cultivation. The living children of the deceased are Sumner Jr., Elmer E. and Henry S of Erie and Gerry with whom the father resided. Mr. Bemis never aspired to public office, but served Venango township in various capacities. He was school director for 12 years. His wife died 17 years ago.

Mr. Bemis was a model man, he had few enemies and countless friends. He was a constant attendant and supporter the Presbyterian Church. The funeral will be held Tues. afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Death of an Estimable Lady - Social Happenings - Notable Events - Alliance News.

June 8 - We are extremely sorry to chronicle the death of Miss Ella Bemis, who died at the residence of her father on Tuesday, June 2d, in the thirty-second year of her age. Consumption brought death, not unexpected.

ELLA BEMIS

Miss Ella Bemis was born April 9, 1859, upon the same homestead where she breathed her last on Tuesday. At an early age she developed a taste for music and literature and by the cultivation of her gifts soon became a bright and shining light in society. She has for many years been a member of the Select Choir of the South Wales Presbyterian Church, part of the time acting as organist and leading soprano. In the winter of 1890 during a series of revival meetings she made an open profession of faith. For several years she has been teacher of a class in the Sunday school and her scholars were very much devoted to her.

Her funeral sermon was preached by her pastor, the Rev. Sammons of Wattsburg. On Thursday she was laid to rest in the beautiful South Wales cemetery, the following persons, whom she chose, acting as pall bearers: Robert Tuttle, Eddie Cooper, George Robison, Bert Wildman, Joshua Bannister, Harry Carr.

[Also from the scrapbook]: "Mr. Oscar Wadsworth of Bradford was here attending the funeral of his niece, Miss Ella Bemis."

Note-- a number of Bemis individuals were located in Walnut Creek, Brown County, Kansas in the 1870 Census. They include Jotham Bemis and associated family including son John W. and his family as they continued their westward migration to Nebraska from Pennsylvania. I believe that son George F. is the George with wife Mary A. and family, also located in Walnut Creek, Brown County, Kansas. Extended families often migrated together. George and Mary are in House #253. Father Jotham with wife Martha are in House #30, adjacent to eldest son John W. and family in House #31. Besides the 1850 Census, and the 1870 Census, George and family have not been located (1860, 1880 and later Census enumerations).

WILKINSON, George S. - George S. WILKINSON, Forty-Nine Years a Resident of Eagle County Called By Death.

No death has been taken with greater sorrow and regret in this community than of George S. WILKINSON, who passed away at a Glenwood Springs hospital Wednesday afternoon, July 3, 1929.

Almost the first settler in the Brush creek valley, Geo. WILKINSON through forty-nine years of the ups and downs incident to the growth of a new country, had made for himself a place in the hearts of his neighbors that was most enviable. Enemies he may have made, but no man or woman could or would say ought against the honest manhood of George WILKINSON. A neighbor beyond compare, always willing to do good where the doing was called for, unassuming, taking his own good deeds as matters of fact and of no moment, he had left behind scores of beneficiaries who will always regret his passing.

The old, old story of a youth leaving his parental roof tree and starting out in life for himself, armed with nothing but his determined spirit, native ability, and what little education he had been able to snatch from a few brief terms of attendance at one of our early day country schools, and seeking his fortune in the wilderness of our vast unsettled domain, braving the dangers and enduring the hardships of an overland journey in the wake of a setting sun into the wilderness, then bravely entering upon the work of clearing that for his purposes, and while drawing out its venom, extorting benefit from the vanquished enemy, making its mischievous torrents drudge for him, its wild beasts useful for food or dress, or labor, its stubborn forces and rocks into habitation, and then from a small beginning building up a comfortable estate and bringing the unproved and hitherto unoccupied landscape into attractiveness and fruitfulness as a comfortable home, is repeated and well illustrated in the memoir of George Summer WILKINSON, who started to make his own living at the age of nine years, and had ever since done so.

He was born near Hiawatha, Brown county, Kan., on August 24 1863, the son of Balsaam and Mary COIL WILKINSON, natives of Indiana, who were among the early settlers of eastern Kansas where they farmed and raised stock to the end of their lives, the father dying there in 1864, and the mother in 1873.

George left home in 1877, when he was but fourteen years old, and came to Colorado, finding employment for that summer on the ranch of William BROWN at Florissant, Teller county. His journey to this state was made overland with horses and wagons through Ellsworth, Kan., to Colorado Springs then through Ute Pass to Breckinridge, where the teams and wagons were disposed of. The trip lasted twenty-seven days, but the train encountered no hostile Indians and the jaunt was uneventful. In the summer of 1878 Mr. WILKINSON worked for wages in the placer mines, and in the fall moved to park county. Afterwards he spent three months in the employ of the Borden Brothers who conducted a feed stable on the road between Weston and Leadville, his duty being to sell feed.

He next returned to Park county and devoted the summer of 1880 to logging and sawmilling, where he became acquainted with John LOVE, a stockman of Park county, and another young man, Webb FROST. In the fall he and FROST engaged with John LOVE, who had been scouting the western slope for a location for his livestock business and selected the Brush creek valley, to drive the latter's herd of cattle across the range to Brush creek and care for them that winter. The two young men arrived at their destination in November in the midst of a big snow storm. They took shelter in a cabin on the original LOVE holdings in the valley, and turned the cattle loose to shift for themselves. As a commentary on the changed conditions in 49 years, it is well to note that, while they never saw the cattle again until the next spring, when they gathered them from the Brush creek along the Eagle river, scattered from the mouth of Brush creek to Dotsero, with the loss of only one head which and been drowned in the river.

Mr. WILKINSON soon afterward took up his homestead, now the James E. ULIMANN home, which he afterward sold to R. P. WOOD, and later bought the land where his present fine ranch home is located.

He had been a cow man all his life to the end, and until this summer rode the range with the youngest and best riders and gave his fine herd of well bred range cattle his careful and personal attention. He loved cows and the range life. Wherever cow men met in Western Colorado, George WILKINSON was known, and his calm sure advice sought on all matters respecting the range. He has been president of the Eagle Valley Stockgrowers association for the past seven years, was a member of the Western Slope Cattle Growers, and the Colorado Stockgrowers associations.

On May 9 1889, he was married to Miss Minnie McKENZIE, a native of New York state. To this union were born two children, Clarence Edmund and Edna Lillian. The son passed on several years ago, while the widow and daughter, now Mrs. Moulton CHAMBERS, and a half brother, Henry BEMIS are the only surviving relatives of close kin.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon from the home of the daughter, Mrs. CHAMBERS, in Eagle, Reverend Mr. YOUNG, pastor of the Glenwood Springs Presbyterian church delivered a short but eloquent eulogy to the deceased, while, the burial services were in charge of the local Masonic lodge, of which Mr. WILKINSON had long been a member. The body was followed to the cemetery by great concourse of friends from all parts of the county, where it was sorrowfully laid to rest beside that of his beloved son.[5 July 1929, Eagle Valley Enterprise, p1]

Notes for Horace Bemis:

[Dunster:147] Horace Bemis, is a lawyer in Alleghany Co., New York.

[Historical gazetteer of Steuben County, New York, Millard Fillmore Roberts, 1891, p. 48-9]

Horace Bemis was born in Windham county, Vt., in September, 1827. His parents were the children of participants in the struggle for independence. Of Puritan stock, he was the eighth descendant on his mother's side from Henry Dunster, first president of Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., who was inaugurated August 27, 1640, and who held the position until 1654. Having learned the trade of saddler and harness-maker, in order that he might be self-supporting, Mr. Bemis moved from his home in Dummerston, Vt., to Saratoga, N. Y. Here he worked at his trade, and with the money thus earned, afterward attended the High School at Brattleboro, Vt., and thereafter taught school and engaged in the study of law. He moved to Adrian, Mich., where he was admitted to practice. He became the intimate friend and associate of Thomas M. Cooley, then a young lawyer, but afterward Chief Justice. In 1850 Mr. Bemis came to Hornellsville, and taught school for several winters, and practiced whenever an opportunity offered. He was a member of the legislature for two terms, representing the then third assembly district of Steuben county in the assembly in 1863 and 1865. No man had a more natural aptitude for the profession of law than he; and no man ever exhibited more zeal and industry in the preparation of a case in which he was interested. He liked the practice of criminal law, where his quick perceptions and his ingenuity in dealing with facts made him very successful, and his masterly eloquence rarely failed to move a jury. He was the associate and peer of David Rumsey, John K. Hale, William M. Hawley, Washington Barnes, John Maynard, Guy H. McMaster, all of whom were bright ornaments of the Steuben county bar.
