Notes for JOSEPH NEWTON FOX:

Joseph Fox took part in the battles of Brandywine, German town, Monmouth, and Stony Point. For his services he received 336 Acres of land in Perry Township, Greene County, Pennsylvania, patent 15, January 1814. He chose a grassy knoll on his property as his final resting place.

In the winter of 1776 and 1777 he enlisted as Private under Captain Davis Steel and Colonel Febiger of the 11th Virginia Regiment. He was selected from Captain William Johnston's company to which he then belonged, as one of a thousand picked men to assist in the taking of Stony Point.

In 1781 he was transferred to Captain Robinson's Company of Pennsylvania Rangers in which he served two years.

"Tax-free land in the western part of the state, called the "Donation Lands," was offered to Revolutionary War soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line of the Continental Army. Also in this section of Pennsylvania were "Depreciation Lands," sold at reduced prices to Revolutionary War veterans or available to them instead of payment if they redeemed their depreciation certificates. The claims to these lands were published with maps in vols. 3 and 7 of Pennsylvania Archives, 3rd series. A helpful discussion of both of these land groups by John E. Winner appeared in Western Pennsylvania Historical Magazine 8 (1925): 1-11. See also "The Depreciation and Donation Lands," compiled by Nell Y. Herchenroether, in Western Pennsylvania Genealogical Quarterly 7 (1981): 127-33"

Notes for EMILY SAC:

I believe Emily was the daughter of the Delaware Chief White Eyes. White Eyes was belied to be born around 1730. By 1762 he was living in the Delaware Town south of Pittsburgh. He moved to Ohio prior to the American Revolution.

White Eyes was a Chief among the Delaware and He was persuaded to use is influence among the Delaware to consolidate the tribe and settle in Ohio. White Eyes did and the Delaware settled at the present day Coshocton. In 1778, White Eyes was commissioned as a Lieutenant -Colonel for the American Army. While serving as a guide, he was murdered by a unknown assailant.

White Eyes was a chief of the Delaware Indians. His Indian name was Koquethagechton. Due to his fair coloring, he was known to the settlers and frontiersmen as White Eyes. The date of his birth is unknown, but it is estimated to be about 1730. By 1762, he was living in a Delaware town south of Pittsburgh. He moved to the Ohio Country prior to the American Revolution.

In 1776, White Eyes replaced Newcomer as the principal chief of the Delawares. He used his influence among the Delawares to consolidate the tribe and settle in Ohio. The Delawares settled near present-day Coshocton. White Eyes also used his influence to encourage the Indians to make peace with the white settlers, including missionaries from the Moravian Church who settled near the Delawares in the 1770s.

The Delawares selected White Eyes to represent the tribe before the Continental Congress in 1776. Congress officially thanked him for promoting peace between the natives and the settlers. He received three hundred dollars and two horses with saddles and bridles. White Eyes agreed that, in the event of war with the British, the Delawares would aid the Americans. He also proposed that the Congress allow the Delawares to form the fourteenth state of the newly independent America.

In 1778, the Continental Congress commissioned White Eyes as a lieutenant colonel for the American army. While serving as a guide for the Continental Army in the Ohio Country, he died a suspicious death. Some historians believed that an unknown assailant murdered him. Others scholars contend that Continental soldiers killed him in a friendly-fire accident. Yet other historians believe that he died from smallpox.

Upon his death, pro-British forces gained greater influence with the Delaware Indians, and the Indians became further alienated from the Americans. While most Delawares had remained neutral in the conflict before, many now actively assisted the English.

His widow is still living. They had a family of eleven children - Eli, Christopher C., Matilda, wife of Winfield S. Vandruff; Jane, wife
