Notes for FLETCHER HAYES:

As a young man, Fletcher lived in the Mt. Comfort Community in Washington County, Arkansas. He was a farmer and a strong Democrat, always voting a straight Democratic ticket. He was also a strict disciplinarian and enjoyed hunting and fishing. He also loved to sing and was a song leader at the Methodist Church and a Sunday School Superintendent. He never smoked, cursed or consumed alcoholic beverages and was known as an honest man and a hard worker. After Fletcher and Mary Ellen Bruner married, they made their home outside of Siloam Springs, Arkansas. There were two entrances to their farm and both were over bridges that crossed the Illinois River. When there were heavy rains, they would be flooded in. During a particularly bad flood, they couldn't get to the store for quite some time. Fletcher and his horse swam across the river in extremely cold weather to get needed groceries. The water was so cold that both his legs were frozen.
