She was born Abt. 1876 in Valledolmo, Palermo, Sicily, Italy, and died 22 Jan 1941 in Columbus Hospital/ Buffalo, Erie, New York.

Notes for Francesco "Chicho" Parlato:

Francesco Parlato's birth certificate states his mother as Maria Antonia Bellanca/Bellavia and birth as Nov 3, 1867. Francesco's death certificate states his mother as Petrina Panzica and birth as Nov 2, 1865. The father has the same name in both, and Francesco's eldest daughter is rumored to be named Maria Antonietta. The Parlatos tended to use the Greek naming system therefore, I'm assuming both documents speak of the same Francesco Parlato.

Chicho was a middle-man in Sicily for a flour milling company. He had to leave Italy rather quickly. He came to America with his son Pippino who was the oldest boy. Chicho was sponsored and worked for the Gugino Macaroni Company as a driver. Pippino went to school in the beginning and in the meantime, they saved every penny that they could. After approximately a year, Chicho sent for the remainder of the family. That would be, wife Mattea and children Anna, Lucy, Vincent James, and Nicholas. When they arrived at Ellis Island, Anna was refused entry because of a "skin condition". She was sent back on the next boat "alone" to live in a convent until such time that the skin condition would correct itself. After about a year she came to America.

They were very, very poor. The boys (Pippino and Nicholas) only went to school a short time. The family needed money in order to support themselves, so the boys would do everything they could to make a dollar. Chicho, regardless of how poor he was always wanted the best. He would insist on the best of "food". He would go to the butcher and demand the very best cuts of meat and then charge it. The bills would accumulate and accumulate, but no matter how minimal the amount of payment, he always made sure the balance was taken care of. He never let anybody down in paying his debts.

Chicho's wife Mattea was a very sickly person. However, sometimes her daughter Jennie said she "enjoyed poor health". She had a prolapsed uterus and diabetes.

A Francesco Parlato (age 39) ) immigrated to New York on the SS Liguria and arrived March 12, 1907 from Palermo, Sicily. A Santo Parlato (age 17) traveled on the ship too. Both are listed as Valledolmesi. It's possible Santo was Francesco's Nephew.

...and a Francesco Parlato (age 39) (occupation- day laborer) immigrated to New York on the SS Lombardia and arrived March 04, 1907 from Palermo, Sicily. As per the original manifest, his final destination is Buffalo, Erie, New York to meet his brother Giuseppe Parlato. A Santo Parlato (age 17) (occupation- Shoemaker) traveled on the ship too. He has a final destination of 18 Morgan St Rochester, New York; the home of his Uncle Luigi Parlato. Both are listed as Valledolmesi

I find this to be an incredible coincidence. One must be in error.

Notes for Giuseppe "Joseph" Parlato:

Joseph's parentage of Richard Parlato is still not 100% verified. This is the evidence I have so far.

As per Jean Herzog Giles, a Joseph Parlato was married to someone else while with Ida McKeen. Ida worked for the Herzog family as a maid. Ida McKeen was originally from Auburn, New York.

Anecdotal evidence

As per Jennie Morelli Parlato (1927), her brother-in-law Giuseppe "Joseph" Parlato (1905) had a girlfriend Ida while married to his wife Della Shoenfield (1907). He had a son with her born around the same time as his other son Joseph F. Parlet. David Parlet (1956) confirmed this relationship.

Richard Joseph (Parlato) Signor highly resembles Giuseppe "Joseph" Parlato's (1905) nephew Joseph John "Giuseppe Luciano" Parlato (1930).

Further confirmation of a Joseph Parlato (1905)/ Ida McKeen (1912) household may be factually confirmed in the 1930 Census (pending).

Opening Ceremonies, Olympic Games

Thursday, August 9, 1979

Christopher Reeve called it "magic." He wasn't referring to his new movie "Superman"; rather he was talking about the colorful ceremonies that overflowed from the 8,500-seat stadium at SUNY Brockport. Former gold medal Olympian Rafer Johnson acted as head coach of the Olympics and led the athletes in the stating of their motto: "Let me win; but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

As the athletes finished voicing their statement, members of the "Wings of Blue," the Air Force Academy's parachute team, leaped from a plane and the final jumper handed the Olympic torch to a waiting athlete. The torch was last used in the 1972 Munich Olympic games and the first of five Rochester-area Special Olympians was eager to carry it on.

Former heavyweight boxing champ Muhammad Ali and Rafer Johnson then helped Steven Parlato, a 19 year old Brockport athlete, in the lighting of the Olympic flame which will burn continuously until Saturday night. Steve Parlato, who cherished that moment died May 23, 2002 at age 42. His family requested this photo to immortalize that day.

Massachusetts senator Edward M. Kennedy then proclaimed: "I declare that the 1979 International Summer Olympics have officially begun!" Five hundred balloons were then released to culminate the joyous festivities. Earlier in the day, the statues created by Russian artist Zurab Tsereteli and a U.S. stamp commemorating the Special Olympics were honored.
