Haddonfield, Camden County, New Jersey
The town where William lived & died.

Settled by Europeans more than 300 years ago, Haddonfield, New Jersey, is one of North America's oldest towns. Located a short distance east across the Delaware River from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The main street -- Kings Highway -- was originally a wagon trail named in honor of the British monarchs that once ruled the area. Many of the buildings -- such as the famed Indian King Tavern -- date to the same period and have an ambiance not unlike that of similar structures in Williamsburg or Annapolis. The town also played a role in the American Revolution; its Quaker cemetery holds the remains of British soldiers who died in battle against George Washington's forces more than two centuries ago.

In the 1850s Haddonfield was a vacation spot for well-heeled Philadelphians who fled the heat and odors of the city in summer. Ferrying across the Delaware River, they clopped their horses and buggies along dirt roads through cool woods until they reached the hamlet of Haddonfield, with its rambling cottages along the banks of Hopkins Pond and Cooper River.

A nineteenth-century clock marks the center of Haddonfield's shopping district. Many of the borough's streets are virtual museums of American architecture.

Haddonfield played a special role in the history of dinosaur discovery. The first nearly-complete dinosaur skeleton was excavated from a marl pit here in 1858 -- an event that also established the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia as the world's leading center for paleontological studies for the rest of the nineteenth century.

Next to city hall is the home of Civil War-era physician Napoleon Bonaparte Jennings. Rich in "gingerbread" trim, it dates to 1857. (He could of been the Goldy family physician)

More About Elizabeth S. Goldy:

Census: 1900, Mt. Laurel, Burlington County, New Jersey

Notes for Waters Burris Hurff:

From Hurff Family-History and Genealogy of the Hurff Family Assoc. 1951.

Waters was a farmer. Married and lived a while at Ellis's Corner. From the farm near Haddonfield he moved to the Davis Farm at Mt. Laurel about 1855 where he was a successful grower of sweet potatoes, tomatoes, and cantaloupes for the early market in Philadelphia, Pa. He attended the Methodist Church in Marlton which he helped to build. It is said it required 2 horses to pull the carriage through the sandy roads of those days, loaded as it was with 6 or 7 children. Sometimes a colt would run along with it's mother who was in the church going team.

The farm meadow had been an Indian camp ground and a vast collection of Indian relics were picked up and preserved by the family. Indian graves are believed to have been on the banks of the creek.

First Baptist Church

Pemberton, Burlington County

The congregation was organized in 1752 and erected this substantial building in 1864. It's style should probably be called eclectic, a mixture of elements from Greek Revival (the pediment), Renaissance (the pilasters), and the round top windows of the Romanesque tradition. The cupola has echoes of the Georgian style. It's an interesting building, but without much architectural coherence.

Notes for Samuel Goldy:

He was raised by his Uncle, John Goldy 1723-1801, brother to William Goldy.

In a letter dated 04.02.1899 from Elizabeth (Goldy) Hurff, of Mt Laurel, NJ age 73 years. She is the sister of Samuel B Goldy who lived near Long-a-Coming (Berlin, Camden Co) 20 years ago. "His father was Wm Goldy b: 1801; his father was Wm C Goldy b:1767 & his wife Letis Jenkins b:1770. Wm C Goldy's father name was Samuel Goldy. Samuel Goldy's family consisted of Thomas, Daniel, Corlies and Wm C. Dority was the sister of my grandfather, Wm C and 2 others. I disremember their names. I think one married a Clevenger."

1904 from Mary E Smith to Elizabeth Hurff. Joseph Goldy, son of Samuel was b 8-3-1819. I think I sent you the birthdates of Samuel & Jerusha Goldy's children. I found a Samuel d 2-20-1819. His son William C was b 1767 d 10-2-1851 married 1791 or 92 Letis Jennings & 3-29-1816 Hanna Peacock.

06.19.1904 from Samuel Oliphant to Miss Sinnott "I feel confident that the Samuel and Dorothy Goldy of this report belong to my ancestral line but I do not know which branch to assign the grandson Samuel who married 1765 Jerusha Corlies, the earliest Goldy I can trace without a shadow of a doubt".

On 04 January 2004 we were able to place Samuel 1742 with his parents and Samuel Goldy 1745 with his, with documents, marriage bonds and wills. 100 years later! we know where our Samuel's belong.

William 1716-1761, Joseph 1718-1774 and John Goldy 1723-1805 were the sons of Samuel Goldy and Dorothy Brooks.

Subject: Samuel Goldy 1742-1819

A cousin and I have solved the 100 year old mystery!

In (1889 and) 1904, from letters written, even then relatives could not place to which Samuel Goldy 1742 or Samuel 1745 belonged with. With the two of us meeting at Pemberton and a little extra research....We are very happy to say, that the line we always had for our GOLDY family IS in fact correct.

Samuel Goldy 1745-?, a Tailor, married Jerusha Corlies 1746-1806, they married February 2, 17 65, in the county of Burlington.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Sarah Corlies Goldy 1765-

William Corlies Goldy 1767-1851 PBChurch Cemetery
Daniel Goldy 1769-1843 PBChurch Cemetery
Mary Corlies Goldy 1771-
Deborah Goldy 1773-
Thomas Corlies Goldy 1776-1851
Jerusha Corlies Goldy 1779-
Samuel Corlies Goldy 1781-
Corlies Goldy 1783-1833
Dority Corlies Goldy 1787-1830
(This spelling of Dority is correct, as we have a copy of marriage bond)

He is the son of Joseph Goldy 1718-1774, a School Master, and Margaret Wells. Joseph is the son of Samuel Goldy and Dorothy Brooks.

Samuel Goldy: b: unknown- 11 June 1725, yeoman, bondsman, justice, overseer of the poor, Burlington County coronor, and served on the Grand Jury 1707 and 1708. He was 1st married to Elizabeth Stacy Fenton (widow of Eleazer Fenton). Samuel and Elizabeth did not have children of their own. When Elizabeth died, in court papers the three minor children requested that Samuel Goldy and Daniel Leeds be their guardian. Elizabeth Stacy is the daughter of Mahlon Stacy and Rebecca Ely.

He was a Tailor

He is buried in the Pemberton Baptist Cemetery in Pemberton, Burlington County, New Jersey.

Their marriage is listed in the Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New Jersey Marriage Licenses.

The Marriage Ceremony Page 101

I have a copy of the cert. for lic., which I obtained from the New Jersey State Archives, Trenton, New Jersey.

The date is the actual date of the marriage license.

Orphaned at the age of 9 and raised by his Uncle, William's brother, John Goldy.
