Came to America from Berne, Switzerland 1861, in a sailboat carrying 500 people. With Anna Sommer. It took them 6 weeks to cross the Atlantic and there were many trials during the trip. There was much excitement when a large whale was sighted, but the captain wouldn't let the men shoot it, for fear that it would capsize the small sailboat. Some of the people aboard ran short of food and one lady died during the trip. She was buried at sea, causing sharks to follow the boat for several days. Some days with a favorable wind, they sailed quite a distance, but other days when there was an unfavorable wind, the sails were lowered. Today some of the grandchildren have the trunks which carried the family's possessions on the voyage.

John Juker Jr., who was born in June, 1860, in Switzerland, came on the sailboat with his parents. The family settled in Ohio as Anna Juker had a brother in Ohio who had been writing them and urging them to come to America. However, when they first arrived, they could not speak English. But, John found a Frenchman with whom he could communicate and the Frenchman found them a place to stay. A son, Frederick, was born in 1862 in Ohio and then the family moved to Indiana near Peru, where a daughter, Sarah, was born December 18, 1863. Allen Alexander was born October 22, 1874 and Emma, the youngest of nine children, was born October 16, 1879 near Ft. Wayne, Indiana. Four other children of the family died. John Juker, Sr. worked in a stone quarry in Indiana.

In 1882 the family came to Custer County, Nebraska, and homesteaded south of Berwyn. They built a sod house and in later years a frame house was constructed.

In 1880 they were in Butler, Miami, Indiana

Notes for ARTHUR PERKINS:

Buried: Custer CO, Nebraska.

Lottie and Art were both born in sod houses and Lottie attended the Juker School while Art attended the Cherryvale School near Berwyn.

In 1910 they moved into their sod house which was built by Art's brother Bert in 1905 and occupied by him until then. The walls were two feet thick, thereby making it warm in winter and cool in summer. The Perkins' had their share of colse calls with violent storms, but the sod house still stands. Art recalls a tornado took the roof off in 1915 and in 1942 another twister blew it off. The Perkins' house was one of the first soddies energized when Rural Electrification Administration power became available. They received power in 1947, then pruchased a combination bottled gas and elctric range, electric washer and refrigerator. Prior to that time they cooked on a wood stove and had an Ice box to keep their food in and Lottie did the washing on a wash board.

In 1925 Art purchased a corn sheller and shelled many a bushel of corn for his friends and neighbors. In fact he recalls shelling about one hundred thirty thousand bushels the first year. In April, 1959 and still living in their soddy, Art and Lottie celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Friends and neighbors from near and far came to help them celebrate it, including their son and family from Gerber, California. In 1961 they decided it was time to retire from the farm. They rented the land to Avalo Bailey and left the soddy standing empty and alone while they moved to Mason City where they purchased a house. Later Art sold the farm to Avalo. Art lived in Mason City after his wife passed until 1976 at which time he went to California to live with his son, Gordona and family, who had moved there in 1937.
