

Descendants of Richard Swain

Generation No. 1

1. RICHARD³ SWAIN (*WILLIAM*², *WILLIAM*¹) was born 21 Sep 1595 in Binfield Parish, Berkshire Co., England, and died 14 Apr 1682 in Nantucket, Massachusetts. He married ELIZABETH ANN BASSELLE 1638 in Hampton, Rockingham, NH, USA. She was born 1605 in England, and died 15 Jul 1657 in Hampton, NH, USA.

Notes for RICHARD SWAIN:

Christened Richard Swain on 21 September 1595, Berkshire England , the name Richard Swayne was used until he moved to Nantucket from the mainland.

Other spellings of the name in England during the period 1500-1600's show Swaine, Swain, Swain, in addition to Swayne. His children, Francis, Nicholas, Grace, Richard and John are listed in christening records as either Swaine or Swayne. One son, the first Richard, Jr., died as an infant in England.

In most instances the name Swayne or Swain(e) is derived from the Old Norse word sveinn which meant "boy, servant; peasant" depending on its use in the sentence. It came to England with Danes and Norwegians and was altered there to suein, suen, swan, etc. Svein was first used as a descriptive term before becoming a surname. Burke's Armory describes the Coat-Of-Arms for one Swain or Swaine, one Swaine and four Swaynes...each of them different. According to some authorities Richard Swayne of St. Albans, England who came to America aboard the TRUELOVE in 1635, living first at Rowley, Massachusetts Bay in 1635, and then at Hampton in New Hampshire. This was in line with William Swayne of Salisbury, England, who was granted the Coat-of-Arms, 20 June 1444, later confirmed by a descendant of the same name, of London, in 1612. This is the same Coat-of-Arms found in Scotland in 1100, but without the Motto.

A record of the births of four of the children of Richard Swayne are found in Easthampstead County, England: Nicholas, Grace, Richard, and John Swayne. After Richard Swayne took his family to America in 1635, there seems to be no other family of that name living in Easthampstead for nearly 60 years. St. Albans, England is northeast of London.

Children of RICHARD SWAIN and ELIZABETH BASSELLE are:

Generation No. 2

2. JOHN⁴ SWAIN (*RICHARD*³, *WILLIAM*², *WILLIAM*¹) was born 05 Oct 1633 in Binfield Parish, Berkshire Co., England, and died 09 Feb 1714 in Nantucket, Massachusetts. He married MARY WYER 15 Nov 1660 in Hampton, daughter of NATHANIEL WEARE WYER. She was born 1633 in Nantucket, Massachusetts, and died 1714 in Nantucket, Massachusetts.

Notes for JOHN SWAIN:

"Nantucket. If you have ever been there, you know what it means. It was named by the Indians who occupied the island before ten founding families purchased it in 1659. The name Nantucket means "Land Far Out to Sea" and the whalers use to call it the "Grey Little Lady". There were two tribes on the island, Sachem Autopscot and Sachem Wanackmamack, when Thomas Mayhew sold Nantucket for 10 Pounds and 2 Beaver hats. The nine original purchasers were;

Thomas Macy
Richard Swain
John Swain
Tristram Coffin
Peter Coffin
Christopher Hussey
Stephen Greenleaf
William Pike
Thomas Bernard

Thomas Mayhew kept one-tenth of the island for himself on the Western part of the island. The Eastern half remained to the Indian tribes until the entire island was slowly taken over by settlers.

Before Thomas Macy and other settlers moved to Nantucket, they lived in Rowley and Salisbury, Massachusetts where the Quakers were often persecuted. Thomas Macy gave them shelter and protection until they found their permanent settlement on Nantucket. When they finally moved to the island, each was given a plot of land near Sherbourne, the first town on Nantucket Island. Unfortunately, the land that they originally settled was in the swamps of Madaket, an Indian term for "bad lands", and was unsuitable for farming. They tried other trades such as sheep raising and fishing, but were unsuccessful in both.

Eventually the town of Sherbourne was deserted because of its poor harbor. Their access to the ocean was blocked by soil settlements and salt deposits. The town was moved to a more central area on the Northern coast of the island and renamed "Nantucket". This is the current location of the town today, and there remains the small village of Madaket where Sherbourne once was.

After the first settlers had survived a Nantucket winter, they each invited one other family to the island, including the Folgers and the Starbucks, which doubled the population. From these 20 families, the island developed through the years to become the number one whaling port in the world in the mid-1800s. Today it is a popular summer destination for the wealthy.

The land near Sherbourne on the Western half of the island was divided up among the first twenty families. Richard Swain and John Swain had the Southern most area of the island".

"John Swain moved his family from the swampy lands in Madaket to Polpis Harbor. There he owned a great deal of land as well as many homes (which may have been built after his death). The John Swain house was the oldest standing home on the island until it burnt from a lightning strike in 1902. A recreation has been built elsewhere on the island, and the John Swain property is now personally owned.

There are many landmarks on the island named after the Swain Family. One of the wharfs, the one farthest South, is named Swain's Wharf after a great Swain seaman of the mid-1800s. There is also Swain's Neck, a small peninsula that stretches into Polpis Harbor near the John Swain property. There is a Swain Street and two Swain houses within the city limits that were built in c. 1795. Both are personally owned today and not open to visitors".

Joseph Swain (1673-1766) was the fifth born child of John & Mary (Weare) Swain, born in Nantucket where he lived and farmed after reaching manhood. He resided near his parent's home in the Polpis area located on the east side of the Island. He is mentioned in his father's Will, receiving part of the estate. His wife was Mary Sibley of Salem, Mass., the hotbed of witchcraft during the early years. Her father was a traymaker in Salem and was among a number of families there named Sibley. Joseph & Mary Swain had seven children.

In the genealogy of Joseph Swain you will find many of those who left the Island in 1773, making their way to Guilford Co., N.C. A number of Nantucket families left together before the Revolutionary War and several groups followed after the war. The largest number leaving in September 1773, mostly Quakers, were: Barnard, Coffin, Bunker, Worth, Macy, Folger and Swain descendants from the original inhabitants of Nantucket. The entire family of Nathaniel Swain, son of Caleb Swain, left with the 1773 contingent. All the names listed above, and others, may be found among the well-kept records of the Society of Friends of Guilford Co., N. C.

The Nantucket Quakers came to Guilford Co., N. C. by land through Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, and most of the traveling was done in the winter months which created more hardships for them. Most of them stayed in Meeting Houses in three locations, New Garden, Center and Deep River. The New Garden Monthly Meeting had been established by Quakers from Pennsylvania some twenty years earlier. Although coming from Nantucket where many of them were seafaring people, they turned to farming and most of them continued in that occupation. But there were some sailors among them, as will be noted later. There is indication that some Nantucket Quakers, who had located in the eastern part of the state migrated to Guilford Co. NC. A large group came after the Revolutionary War.

Perhaps the best picture of Quaker life in Guilford County is shown in some of the History of Guilford County. To augment this report and the information given in the histories and stories of their lives, a visit to the area where they first lived will provide a better insight into that early period, the hardships, their perseverance and courage in carving out a new nation for subsequent generations. The following is from the HISTORY OF GUILFORD COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA: "In the Quaker settlement the hip-roofed houses and the various crafts are manifestations of English training. Besides the Quakers who came from Pennsylvania about 1749, a band of Nantucket Quakers came to this territory in 1771; another band of emigrant Quakers came here from eastern North Carolina; others still were Welsh extraction. Among these last were the Benbows, Britains, Hoskins, and others."

The following, taken from "Southern Quakers", by S. B. Weeks, gives us some more interesting facts concerning the Guilford Co. Quakers: "The Island of Nantucket being small and its soil not very productive a number of people could not be supported thereupon. The population of the island still increasing, many of the citizens turned their attention to other parts and removed elsewhere. A while before the Revolutionary War, a considerable colony of Friends removed and settled at New Garden, in Guilford Co., NC. William Coffin (1720-1803) was one of the number that thus removed about 1773. Obed Macy, writing of the period about 1760, says that because of the failure of the whale fishery some went to New Garden, NC. About the outbreak of the Revolution, because of derangement of their business by the war, some went to New York and North Carolina. In 1764, Friends had begun investigations to find out who were the original Indian owners of their new homes, in order that they might pay them for the land, as they tried to do at Hopewell, VA. It was reported that New Garden section belonged to the Cheraws, who had been since much reduced and lived with the "Catoppies", Catawbas. In 1780 two-thirds of the inhabitants of Nantucket were Quakers. Among their leaders were the Coffins, Starbucks, Folgers, Barnards and Husseys."

During a period of five years there were no less than forty-one certificates recorded at New Garden Monthly Meeting from Nantucket out of a total of fifty certificates received. In this number there were eleven families including many that since have been prominent in Guilford County. Among them were: Lebni Coffin, William Coffin, Jr., William Barnabas, Seth (and wife), Samuel (and family), Peter and Joseph Coffin; Jethro Macy, David, Enoch, Nathaniel, Paul (and family), Matthew (and five children) and Joseph Macy; William Gayer, Paul (and family), and William Starbuck; Richard, William, Stephen and Stephen Gardner; Tristram, Francis, and Timothy Barnard; Daniel, Francis and Jonah Worth; John Wickerham, William Reece, Jonathan Gifford, Reuben Bunker, Nathaniel Swain, Thomas Dixon.

More from the History of Guilford County, N.C:

"The Pennsylvania and Nantucket Quakers did not mingle and intermarry with the Scotch-Irish, whose whole modus vivendi was the opposite of their own. Almost all members of the denomination at the present day who are "birth right", can trace their descent from one or both of these sources, and those who congratulate themselves upon their Nantucket origin may be interested in the following doggerel which was supposed tersely to describe those same ancestors.

(1) The Rays and Russells coopers are,
The knowing Folgers lazy,
A lying Coleman very rare,
And scarce a learned Hussey,
The Coffins noisy, fractious, loud,
The silent Gardners plodding,
The Mitchells good,
The Bakers proud,
The Macys eat the pudding,
The Lovetts stalwart, brave and stern,
The Starbucks wild and vain,
The Quakers steady, mild and calm,

The Swains sea-faring men,
And the jolly Worths go sailing down the wind.

The Nantucket Quakers that came to Guilford County were not the first Friends to come to North Carolina, and it is likely that Henry Phillips, who in 1665, came to old Albemarle from New England, was seeking a refuge from the tyranny of Massachusetts, where Friends suffered martyrdom on Boston Common. These people did not live in crude log cabins. Many of them had comfortable homes, hip-roofed, with dormer windows, built of brick or frame material. They had wealth; they loved beauty. All worked, continually stirring from four o'clock in the morning till late at night. Industry at length brought luxury and plenty. They were a pastoral and agricultural people such as good living never spoils, but on the contrary, develops in them spirit and energy.

Spacious fields of wheat, corn, buckwheat and patches of flax and cotton surrounded their homes. Sometimes a hundred beehives added another charm to the garden, with its lilacs, roses, sweet lavender and daises. The home itself was like a colony of bees in which there were no drones. It was a custom that no young woman should marry until she possessed four, or more bed quilts, counterpanes and snowy sheets that she had made herself. These articles of her hand work she embroidered with all sorts of needlework.

The women wove for the whole family, (2) tow shirts, barn door breeches and silken gowns . . . They sold great quantities of cloth, wagonloads of butter, cheese and honey. They raised silk, cotton and wool, and manufactured these products for sale. They sold green apples and chestnuts all winter. Tow shirts were made from coarse flax fiber.

People lived without much expense. They had no fear of work. The men prided themselves on their physical strength. A friendly fight as a test was not infrequent, even old men wrestled now and then. It was customary for a company of men and boys to collect on Sunday evenings at a mill or crossroads. One described a circle and upon banter being given two men stepped in to the ring and they laughed at black eyes and hard knocks. They boxed each other's ears as a joke, and gouged and bit each other for fun.

The Slavery Question: Slavery, an institution bequeathed to us like a church, the state or other forms of medieval life, was the embryo of a parasite growing from the roots of our republic. In Europe this principle had the form of feudalism; in America, that of Negro Slavery. Though the institution of slavery had a much stronger hold on industrial life in Warren, Halifax and other eastern counties, still there were many slaveholders in the eastern half of Guilford County. Among the files of the Greensboro Patriot may be found advertisements offering rewards for run away slaves.

Now, there were those in Guilford County having decided conscientious scruples against all this business. The western part of Guilford County was occupied by Quakers, Englishmen coming by way of Pennsylvania and another type not so mild the Nantucket Quaker, who came to this western part of Guilford about the time of the first beginnings of the Revolutionary War. This section, was and is today, the center of the Quaker element in the state. For some reasons or impulse, the Friends or Quakers regarded the freeing of the slaves as their own peculiar mission. In their yearly meetings as early as 1772, according to Stephen B Weeks, Friends were discussing slavery and the sin of it; and in 1774 they freed their own slaves. The North Carolina yearly meeting of Friends chartered a ship called the "Sally Ann", for the purpose of sending slaves to Haiti where they might be free. A Captain Swain of Guilford County was the skipper of that vessel.

Even earlier than the "Sally Ann", soon after the Revolutionary War, societies were formed all over North Carolina to protect and restore to freedom those Negroes kidnapped and sold into slavery. In the first decade of the nineteenth century a society was organized in Guilford County called the "Manumission Society of North Carolina." Its meetings were held in the Deep River section, and others besides Friends were members. The representative members of the Manumission Society were the Coffins, the Worths, James and Richard Mendenhall. What to do with slaves when freed was a question. Emigration to Haiti was encouraged. Many of this Society preferred that the Negroes be kept in slavery to having them remain in the state when freed. They were all, however, abolitionists. The Underground Railroad, though in reality an outgrowth of the Manumission Society, was not connected with it. This was a secret organization, begotten in the ingenious brain of the Coffins, by which slaves were sent to the Northwest. The scheme remained a secret for a quarter of a century, in which time many a slaveholder found his number of slaves quietly diminished, and his Negroes skipped and gone.

In his book "Reminiscences", Levi Coffin credits Vestal Coffin with organization of the Underground Railroad in 1819 near present day Guilford College. Other operators were Addison Coffin, a son of Vestal, and a cousin of Levi Coffin, helped until 1826 when he went to Economy, I N.

It may be noted that the Society of Friends did not receive Negroes into their denomination , as did Presbyterians, Baptists and others. This question was seen in the History of Guilford County: "Who ever saw a Negro who was a Quaker?"

An old newspaper reported the following in Sept. 1854, "The Schooner Sally Ann sailed from Wilmington, NC to Belfast, Maine, was induced to give up a slave known to be on board, while in Boston Harbor.

A number of Quaker families from Guilford County migrated to Economy, Indiana.

It may be noted that the Society of Friends did not receive Negroes into their denomination, as did Presbyterians, Baptists and others. This question was seen in the History of Guilford County: "Who ever saw a Negro who was a Quaker?"

An old newspaper reported the following in Sept. 1854, "The Schooner Sally Ann sailed from Wilmington, NC to Belfast, Maine, was induced to give up a slave known to be on board, while in Boston Harbor.

A number of Quaker families from Guilford County migrated to Economy, Indiana.

Notes for Caleb Swain:

Caleb Swain was the third born child of Joseph & Mary (Sibley) Swain, who lived and died on Nantucket. His wife was Margaret Paddack, whose ancestors were also from England. Her grandmother was Bethia Macy, daughter of Thomas Macy who came from Salisbury, Wiltshire, England. Although he was said to have been a Baptist preacher, Thomas Macy settled in Nantucket because of his persecution for "entertaining Quakers" by allowing them shelter on one stormy night. This was noted when he and Richard Swain were brought to court at the same time in 1659. The Macy line also appears in the next generation of Swains when Bethia Macy married Nathaniel Swain in 1755.

Notes for GEORGE HOWLAND SWAIN:

Excerpt from a letter by William N.F. Swain recording, with his mother, the genealogy of the Swain family according to family papers. Noblesville, Indiana. Year 1900.

"Now we are coming to the more direct acquaintance with the line of my ancestors. This same George Swain was my great grandfather. When I was a little boy I was with him a great deal until I was nearly eight years of age. The most of that time I lived close to him, and had a limited chance of learning something of his nature, even as young as I was at the time. The unwritten history of this man would open the eyes and ears of many who could hear it related, as it actually took place. He often times entertained his friends and visitors with his experience on sea and land. I was not old enough to recollect his thrilling narrations of events, but my mother has often told me of his experience with some of the trials of life. Left without a mothers care when only seventeen days old must certainly have placed him in the hands, although kind no doubt, yet not that of a loving mother.

He was a cook on a whale boat for some time and could relate many circumstances that we read of in books of thrilling tales. He was mechanical and quite a genius in many things, a good memory, etc. My mother is in possession of a comb that he made when a boy, and several generations have combed their heads with it. It is well finished. He studied medicine when nearly forty years years old and practiced for nearly forty years, a thing that few men have ever done.

During the memorable and troublesome times of slavery, he was very active giving aid to the many poor black slaves, who came to him for advice and much needed assistance. He got into trouble a number of times by his determination to help the colored race, but always came out without losing his neck, yet suffered persecution in the way of fines and defenses in law suits brought about by the owners and hunters of slaves. By and through the determined persistence of the so called underground railroad system then in operation and carried on with such vim, the funeral gong pealed forth the death knell of slavery in the United States of America.

The industrial qualities of this good old man were imparted to many of his descendents and as they grew up, partook of the nature and character born in them, inherited from one who lived through the storms of political evolution until the year, March 26, 1852, when he was called away before seeing the results of the work in which he had so earnestly worked."

Notes for HOWLAND SWAIN:

Notes from the New Garden Monthly Meeting Records, Guilford County, North Carolina.

November 26, 1814

A complaint was made by the New Garden MM against Howland Swain for marrying out of unity. (One of the parties was not a member of the Society of Friends). He was condemned for his misconduct.

Excerpt from a letter by William N.F. Swain recording, with his mother, the genealogy of the Swains according to family papers. Noblesville, Indiana. Year 1900

"Howland Swain, the oldest boy of this family was a name sake of his grandfather, second son of Reuben. Howland was born May 13, 1793, and died some where near 1875. He was an active old man, when I first saw him to recollect anything of him. That was in the Fall of 185? (1850?, 1855?) He and his family with many others of like nature, left North Carolina owing to the slavery question, and sought a home where an expression could be given to their minds on the principles in which they were so much interested; that of free speech, free press, and safety from the patrollers of the element of the South. They located in Greensboro, Indiana in the year 1844 and were there when our folks came in 1851. I mention this as one of the most interesting circumstances of my life. I had so often heard of him before we left the South, that it was natural for a little boys's ideas to be worked up to high pitch. Of course there were many others to meet, who had been mentioned. The Macy's, Thornburgs for instance, all mingling together to learn of others left behind, as he was my father's own uncle, of course we all called him Uncle Howland.

He was a cooper and wagon maker by trade. Phoebe, his wife died the Winter of 51-52. I know it was one of the coldest days I thought I ever saw when father took us up to see her when a corpse. Her maiden name was Kelly."

From the WHITTIER NEWS, Whittier California, November 20, 1958

J.G.Swain, Longtime Whittier Resident, Honored At Breakfast

John G Swain, a long time Whittier resident, realtor and community builder, was honored by fellow business, professional and civic leaders at a testimonial breakfast today.

A businessman here for 55 years - 42 as a realtor, Swain came to Whittier when a boy of nine and this year makes his 65th as a resident.

He attended school at the Evergreen School near Painter Ave. and Whittier Blvd., long ago abandoned and removed. The years following his arrival here were depression years in Whittier, and Swain was forced to leave school for a job at the Whittier Cannery, then at the foot of Philadelphia St.

He was also employed at all three Whittier hotels, The Thompson, Whittier and Greenleaf, and the age of nineteen he started a painting and wallpaper business.

Later he was the assistant to Postmaster Clyde Baldwin, during which time his father continued to operate the paint and wallpaper store.

Still later he became the bookkeeper for Whittier National Bank, where he remained until taking a similar job at the Whittier Home Telephone and Telegraph Co., operated by A. Wardman.

In 1916 he entered the real estate business, combining this activity with a florist shop, both of which he operated in the front of a room in the St. John's building on Philadelphia St., for which he paid a rental fee of $15.00 a month.

In the summer of 1919 he employed the late Leslie C. Nanney as a salesman, and a year later the Swain-Nanney Realty Co. was formed. That partnership continued until Nanney's death in 1949.

In 1949 three other partners were taken into the firm, Swain's son Garland, Tolbert B. Moorhead and Seth Pickering. Moorhead and Pickering continued with the firm until 1952, and since that time the Swain-Nanney Realty Co. has been operated by Swain and his son Garland at 232 E. Philadelphia St.

Testimonials in both humorous and serious vein were delivered at the breakfast at the Welch's by the following: Moorhead, who was Master of Ceremonies; Wade Huntington, a Whittier painting contractor for the past 37 years; R. R. Morris, a Whittier realtor for more than thirty years; Dewayne Burgess, manager of the Whittier office of the American Savings & Loan Assn., of which Swain was a member of the Board of Directors for many years.

Harry Schuyler, for many years manager of the Leffingwell Ranch in East Whittier; Edward Keasley, a co-charter member with Swain of the Whittier Rotary Club; Dr. Paul S. Smith, President of the Whittier College, on whose Board of Trustees Swain has served; Pickering, a former partner in Swain's firm and now secretary of the Quaker City Savings & Loan Assn.

Others who spoke: C. O. Durrett, a neighbor of Swain for many years and a colleague in the real estate business; John D. Gregg, president of The Rose Hills Memorial Park and former president of the Whittier Building and Loan Assn. which later became American Savings; The Rev. Albert E. Jenkins, Rector of St. Matthias Episcopal Church where Swain is one of the oldest members in years of membership and where Swain as served on the Vestry; and Verne J. Dolton, president-elect of the Whittier District Board of Realtors who read a letter of commendation received from Mrs. Leslie C. Nanney, widow of Swain's long-time partner and who is in Northern California.

Representing the realty board, Durrett presented Swain a plaque marking his long time membership and his 42 years as a realtor. A gift from the 150 present at the breakfast, a table radio, was presented by Gregg to Mr. & Mrs. Swain.

In reviewing Swain's 65 years in Whittier, the speakers recalled that his realty firm had developed more than 50 residential subdivisions in Whittier, Pico Rivera, East Whittier and other sections of the Whittier area.

The company handled the original development with the Murphy Ranch Co. of Friendly Hills. The company has also handled many of the areas largest appraisals.

Swain was one of the founders and the past president of the Whittier Realty Board;

He was one of the early members of the Whittier Board of Trade, which later became the Chamber of Commerce; he was one of the founders and a past president of the Whittier Rotary Club. He served as a member of the advisory board of the Whittier branch of the Bank of America; and served as a member of the board and vice-president of the Whittier Building & Loan Assn.

He is a Trustee of Whittier College; a member of the Whittier Masonic Lodge; is a past chancellor of the Knights of Pythias; and helped organize and served for 6 1/2 years as a member of the Whittier Draft Board.

Mr. & Mrs. Swain will move soon to make their home on Balboa Island, and the Swain-Nanney Realty Co. will open a branch office in the Balboa-Newport area. They will continue to operate in Whittier, and will move their offices soon to the offices Smith & Benson Realtors, at the corner of Washington Ave. and Philadelphia St. Swain is the father of 2 sons, Garland, his partner in the realty firm, and Jack, Whittier advertising agency owner and operator.

The present Mrs. Swain is the former Mrs. Wallace Gregg. They were married following the deaths of Mrs. Swain and Mr. Gregg.

Obituary from The DAILY NEWS, Whittier California, December 22, 1965 Whittier Pioneer Jack Swain Dies

John G. (Jack) Swain, one of Whittier's best known and most respected citizens, died early today.

A Whittier resident almost all of his life, and almost all of the city's life, Mr Swain came here 73 years ago. He was a boy of 8 then. He would have been 81 on Feb. 7.

Jack, his parents and a sister, the late Mrs. Mary Laird, moved from McClouth, Kans., near Lawrence, to a five-acre orange ranch at College Ave. and Short St.

Mr. Swain saw almost all of this area's growth, and as a realtor helped develop much of it, including the neighboring cities of Pico Rivera and Santa Fe Springs and East and South Whittier.

Real estate was not his life-long occupation, however. He founded or was associated with a number of other pioneering enterprises.

Following his mother's death in 1896, he lived with a family on a Rivera ranch. Completing his elementary schooling there, he worked with his father who was a painting contractor. Later he operated his own paint and wallpaper store. Still later he served four years as assistant postmaster, and as such instituted Whittier's first home delivery service.

He worked as a bookkeeper in a bank, and as the office manager of the Home Telephone Co. which had been founded by the late Aubrey Wardman.

In 1917 he opened a real estate office, then in conjunction with a floral shop, and later he was co-founder of the Swain-Nanney Realty Co. with the late L.C. Nanney. As subdividers, this firm developed much of Whittier's residential property, including the hillsides and East Whittier citrus acreage.

In his many contributions of civic service Mr. Swain became widely recognized by most of Whittier's citizens. He was a co-founder of the Whittier Board of Trade, now the Whittier Chamber of Commerce, the Whittier District Board of Realtors, and the Whittier Rotary Club. He was, during World War II secretary of the Whittier Selective Service Board. He was a member of St. Matthias Episcopal Church and Whittier Masonic Lodge. He served the chamber, realtors and Rotary as president.

He was active in many other civic organizations throughout his life here, and helped stage Whittier's 50th and 75th anniversary celebrations. He was a former president and life-long member of the Whittier Founders Assn. Also, he was the city's unofficial historian. With his keen memory he could remember events, people and incidents, and his stories of early Whittier were widely enjoyed.

This newspaper called upon him many times for historical data.

Mr. Swain came to Whittier when the city was but seven years old. He attended for a time the Evergreen School, then on what is now Whittier Blvd. near Painter

Ave. He helped both physically and financially in the building of Whittier College, and recalled his work there in Founders Hall when he sand papered much of the wood.

Also he worked for a time peeling peaches at the cannery, then the only source of cash income when Whittier experienced an early depression.

Mr. Swain's first wife, Clara Heydenreich, and mother of his two sons, the late F. Garland and L.J. Swain, died in 1945. Garland, who was associated with his father in the real estate business for several years, died earlier this year. L. J. (Jack Jr.) Swain heads the Swain-Mealer Advertising firm here.

Some years after the death of Mrs. Swain and the death of their close friend, Wallace Gregg, Mr. Swain married the widow of Mr. Gregg, Mrs. Mabel Gregg. Following her death he married her sister, Augusta, and three years ago they moved to make their home in Leisure World near Seal Beach.

However, for the past year Mr. Swain has been a patient at Presbyterian Inter-community Hospital and it was there that he died shortly after midnight today.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Swain is survived by his son Jack, Jr., and 2 daughters-in-law, Mrs. L.J. Swain and Mrs. F. Garland Swain; seven grandchildren, and 12 great-grandchildren.

Arrangements for the funeral service, which will be handled White-Emerson Co., have not been completed, but it is probable, the Daily News was told, that the service will be conducted Monday.

Friends of Mr. Swain have been invited by his family to contribute to the memorial fund of St. Matthias Episcopal Church or to the American Cancer Society.

One Of Our Towns Best

The keen edge of holiday joy was dulled for many in the Whittier area by the death of Jack Swain.

The 80-year-old pioneer who had spent almost all of his life -- nearly three fourths of a century -- in Whittier was more than a early settler or a community leader. He was a distinctive personality all his own, a throwback to those early days in America where life on the frontier produced a bigness in a man, a stalwart spirit, an ability to abide with adversity, indeed, to laugh at it.

Jack Swain was a laugher all his life, not in the comic sense but as one who knew existence as a happy and exhilarating experience. This rare trait remained with him even into his last illness. He was not the kind of citizen who courted greatness in any way. Yet in many was greatness implanted itself in his spirit, and much of this rubbed off on his fellow citizens.

Only a handful of its sons could have earned such an accolade, but Jack Swain by nature was a sort of unofficial Mr. Whittier.

Notes for CLARA MARGUERITE HEYDENREICH:

From an unknown newspaper, Los Angeles?, Pasadena?, February 15, 1906

Particularly interesting to the society world of Los Angeles is news of the marriage of Miss Clara Heydenreich of Pasadena and Mr. John Swain of Whittier solemnized at 7:45 o'clock last evening at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Heydenreich of Grant Street. Rev. Lamport of the Pasadena M.E. church performed the ceremony in the presents of about fifty guests and music was rendered by an orchestra. The numbers given included the popular marches and "Message of the Violet", played softly during the service.

Miss Heydenreich was gowned in white satin, with lace yoke and rose point bertha, and carried white violets and maidenhair ferns. Her going away gown was of grey cloth and her stylish black hat was trimmed with two long white ostrich plums and a wreath of pink roses.

Mrs. Jay Harrington of Hollywood, who attended the bride as matron of honor, wore her wedding gown of white crepe de chine and carried maidenhair ferns.

Miss Louise Lacey of Los Angeles and Miss Beulah Haskell of Pasadena, who served as maids, wore dainty gowns of violet silk, one of which was trimmed in ribbons and velvet, the shade of the California violet, and the other in white lace.

Mr. Saunders of Whittier attended the groom as best man. Decorations for the affair, arranged by Mrs. H.R. Lacey of Los Angeles, were particularly beautiful. In the parlor, where the ceremony took place, the mantle was banked with wood ferns, violets and white marguerites and overhead was a canopy of white gauze interwoven with white satin ribbon and ropes of smilax. Suspended from the center of the canopy, which was caught to the walls with bows of violet satin ribbon, were two hearts untied with a true lover's knot of white tulle. Smilax and marguerites were tastefully arranged in the front parlor and acacia blossoms formed effective decorations for the den. The stair railing in the hall was banked with Calia Lillies and large bunches of the lillies tied with white tulle, concealed the posts. Violets and violet ribbons were used exclusively in the dining room.

After April 1, Mr. and Mrs. Swain will occupy their own new home in Whittier. Among the handsome gifts received by couple was a piano, presented by the brides parents and furniture for their home, from the groom's parents, besides many pieces of cut-glass and silver.

Founders' Day Fete Attracts 100 Here

The 77th anniversary of the founding of Whittier was celebrated Saturday afternoon in Central Park, when featured speaker Garland Swain told long-time local residents, "We can no longer afford an imbalance of payments in the field of civil rights."

Speaking to nearly 100 people after a noon-time picnic, Swain, son of an early pioneer Whittier family, explained that poet John Greenleaf Whittier, the city's namesake, recognized and supported equal rights for racial minorities. He said the poet "left his imprint indelibly inscribed in the pages of literary history." Swain said Whittier had a "forthright and unswerving dedication to the very fundamentals of freedom for all mankind...regardless of race, creed, or color...."

He described the poets birth in 1807 and his early life, then called for equal education rights, adding "without education for all, no nation today may long survive...nor will the bells of freedom continue to toll for thee."

He explained that citizens today seem to believe civil rights is characterized by a "relatively new and highly organized movement on the part of Negroes and their leaders."

He said, "Like the smallest fire smouldering in the forest, feeding on the stubble of parched grass, so has civil rights...fed by anger and impatience...flared into a new crisis with ever increasing frequency, threatening to kindle the flames of revolution...and complicating both political and social order."

As the group listened, Swain, blamed the social unrest on "the shackles of suppression" which have "kept free men restrained without regard for human justice of our constitutional rights."

"Discrimination is one form or another imposed beyond all reason in some areas, under conditions worse than slavery itself," he added.

"Our future," he declared, "now depends upon the delicate dispatch with which we yield to the pressures being forced upon us as a result of our own prejudices and apparent desires to postpone the task and leave the answers to future generations."

He cited a short verse written by Whittier to the 39th Congress, which said; "Make all men peers before the law, take hands from off the Negroes throat. Give black and white an equal vote."

"Could this be an echo out of the past, equally appropriate to the 88th Congress at this very moment and in the cause now pending?" Swain asked.

"Let us hope that the beacon lights of faith, hope, and charity...will not be extinguished in the darkness of indecision, indifference, and indiscretion," he said.

Obituary from the DAILY NEWS, Whittier, California, March 15,1965

Rites Pending For F.Garland Swain

F. Garland Swain, 46, Whittier native and prominent real estate appraiser, died Sunday of cancer at the Santa Monica Hospital.

He had undergone lung surgery there last November when the illness was first detected, and had re-entered the hospital for treatment last week.

His father, 80 year-old J.G. (Jack) Swain, is a patient at Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital in Whittier, where he has been under treatment for several weeks.

Garland Swain attended both Whittier High School and Whittier College, working in the early 1930s' for the Whittier News as a reporter. He earned the nickname "Scoop" by which he is still known to many friends. After engaging in the hospital business in Santa Monica for a number of years, he entered the real estate business in Whittier in 1946 and remained in it since then. In 1948 he and his family moved to Balboa Island to make their home. He reached the rank of senior appraiser with the Society of Residential Appraisers in the Los Angeles chapter, and was widely known for his work in that field. He was fond of boating and travel and in recent years he and his wife made several trips abroad and through the U.S. and Canada.

Funeral services are being arranged at Rose Hills Memorial Park. Members of the family suggested the Santa Monica Hospital building fund at Santa Monica or the American Cancer Society for memorial fund contributions.

Survivors include his wife, Margaret; four children, Mrs. Donald Lingle of Newport Beach, Mrs. Robert Megling of San Diego, Mrs. Charles Lewis of the San Fernando Valley, and John Swain of Whittier; and a brother, L.J. (Jack) Swain, Whittier advertising agency owner. His mother preceded him in death in 1945. Mr. Swain was a member of the Whittier Masonic Lodge No. 323 and for years was active in the Whittier Rotary Club.
