

Descendants of Pierre Arsenault

Generation No. 1

1. PIERRE¹ ARSENAULT was born 1646 in Rochefort, France, and died 1710 in Beaubassin, Amherst, NS. He married (1) MARGUERITE DUGAS 1675 in Port Royal, Acadia, daughter of ABRAHAM DUGAS and MARGUERITE DOUCET. She was born 1657 in Port Royal, and died Bef. 1686 in Beaubassin, Amherst, NS. He married (2) MARIE GUERIN 21 Nov 1685 in Beaubassin, Acadia, Nova Scotia, Canada, daughter of FRANCOIS GUERIN and ANNE BLANCHARD. She was born 1662 in Port Royal, Annapolis, Nova Scotia, Canada, and died 25 Apr 1723 in Beaubassin, Amherst, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Notes for PIERRE ARSENAULT:

Pierre Arsenault arrived in Port Royal, NS, Acadia in 1671.

? on ship L'Oranger

The ancestor of the Acadian branch of the Arsenault family, Pierre Arsenault was born in France around 1646. He arrived in Acadia shortly after the 1671 census.

Although his place of birth in France is not known, the surname was a common one in the Poitou and Charentes region during the 17th century. Some spelled the surname Arsonneau.

In Acadia, Pierre married twice. First, around 1675, he married Marguerite Dugas, daughter of Abraham Dugas and of Marguerite Doucet of Port-Royal. Second, around 1685, he married Marie Guerin, daughter of Francois and of Anne Blanchard.

Pierre seconded Jacques Bourgeois in the establishment of the Beaubassin settlement where he lived in 1680. Several of his children settled at Ile Saint-Jean (Prince Edward Island) during the mid 1730s.

Pierre died around 1710. The descendants of Pierre Arsenault are numerous, particularly on Prince Edward Island, in the Gaspé, in Louisiana and in New Brunswick.

Beaubassin, Acadia

The area known as Fort Lawrence was originally called "Beaubassin" by the French in 1671 and "Chignecto" by the Indians. It was the first major settlement to be established by the French outside of Port Royal in Acadia. It grew in stature and eventually became the center of government for all of Acadia in 1684. So it was not only the geographical center of Acadia but the administrative center also.

It was attacked and burnt by an American mercenary Ben Church in 1696 and again in 1704. After 1704, all was reasonably peaceful until 1750, with the Acadians trading with both Louisbourg and Boston. On the arrival of the British in 1750 the whole area was burned to the ground by the French and the population was driven into exile across the river to Point Beausejour (in what is now known as New Brunswick), by the French priest Abbe La Loutre.

Notes for ANTOINE ARSENAULT:

Per Stephen White and Dennis Boudreau Antoine migrated With family in Miquelon before 1758 deportation-listed as Joseph in census of 1764

then to Cocagne, NB

then PEI

then Magdelens by 1785

Per Dennis Savard

1767 St Pierre Miquelon

orphan

lived with Jean Bourg and Marie Arseneau

listed as "Joseph"

per Michael Poirier

after 1764 census, went to Cocagne NB to PEI to IDM

Just to precision your response, Antoine and Louise married at the Magdalen Islands ca 1780, NOT Restigouche! (as Denis Savard has it). This couple were nowhere near Restigouche or the Baie des-Chaleurs. Reasons for that:

Antoine left Miquelon on a sloop with relatives in October 1767 (after the census there) going first to Cocagne, NB, then on to PEI. Joseph & Marguerite Boudrot, Louise's parents, went to PEI first then were at the Islands by at least 1776, where their oldest daughter Marie married her second cousin François Boudrot, son of François & Jeanne Landry (proved by marriage dispensations). So this branch of the Boudrot family was ALREADY at the Magdalens by that time. Louise had to thus be married there as well, which to me makes more sense, after studying these families for over 25 years.

Notes for LOUISE BOUDROT:

Family settled on Magdalens by 1777

Notes for ISAAC ARSENAULT:

Isaac WAS indeed the son of Antoine and Louise Boudrot! and Antoine was the son of Abraham and Marguerite Nuirat. The truth of this is borne out by several marriage dispensations accorded to Isaac's grandchildren which allies him to Antoine's family. Antoine's being the son of Abraham was the result of the documented research of Stephen A.White, the world's expert on Acadian genealogy in Moncton. Isaac was the older brother of Germain and Marcel, two other of his siblings who are the ancestors of the Arseneaus at the Islands, along with him.

As for Pierre & Théotiste Bourgeois, they never had a son born to them named Isaac, only Pierre and Charles, and these can be found in the Miquelon registers. They came to the Magdalens and settled at Entry Island with their mother, sister and brother-in-law, before all removing to Havre-aux-Maisons.

listed as "Joseph"

per Michael Poirier

after 1764 census, went to Cocagne NB to PEI to IDM

Just to precision your response, Antoine and Louise married at the Magdalen Islands ca 1780, NOT Restigouche! (as Denis Savard has it). This couple were nowhere near Restigouche or the Baie des-Chaleurs. Reasons for that:

Antoine left Miquelon on a sloop with relatives in October 1767 (after the census there) going first to Cocagne, NB, then on to PEI. Joseph & Marguerite Boudrot, Louise's parents, went to PEI first then were at the Islands by at least 1776, where their oldest daughter Marie married her second cousin François Boudrot, son of François & Jeanne Landry (proved by marriage dispensations). So this branch of the Boudrot family was ALREADY at the Magdalens by that time. Louise had to thus be married there as well, which to me makes more sense, after studying these families for over 25 years.
