After marrying, lived in Allen County, southwest of Humboldt, Kansas, near Chanute and southwest of Elsmore. In 1910, they bought eighty acres of land in Bourbon County, southwest of Uniontown, Kansas

Rose said that when they moved to that farm, she thought she had come to the end of the world. The house had three rooms. As the family grew, Warren decided to build a new house in the fall of 1915. They moved into it soon after Christmas. Dorothy, about one year old, cried the first night wanting to go back to her old home. Chester, the oldest son, bought the home place in 1936, and lived there until his death. Joe, Chester's son, lived there as of December 1975.

Warren bought the first car in the community, a Chevrolet touring car with side curtains and took others to town or to the County seat at Fort Scott, Kansas, when they needed to go. Warren served on the school board many years and kept the Uniontown Mutual Telephone Company working in the district, so the neighbors could call each other or eavesdrop on community projects. Warren also served many years on the Bourbon County Fair board.

In 1936, Warren and Rose moved east of Chanute and raised fruits and vegetables and had a big flock of chickens. Warren was a farmer all his life.

When Ethel was a baby, Emma sat up nights to knit her socks out of fine wool, as Ethel was born with club feet. Her feet were straightened (around age 20-21) in a "bloodless" operation, the first one performed in the US by a German doctor. They crushed her feet and reformed them, putting them in casts for 6 months. She always had to wear special shoes and when Avis was very young, she used to massage her feet at night when they were hurting.
