Notes for Capt. John Scott:

From "The Scott Family of Orange County," by Paul H. Scott, William and Mary Quarterly, 1st Series, Vol. XIX, (1939), p. 458-504.

"Capt. John Scott, founder of the Scott Family in Orange County, VA, settled in Orange, then Spotsylvania, by 1729 on a 1,000 acre tract purchased from Col. William Todd of King and Queen County, for 50 cents an acre. Much effort has been expended to learn the origin and antecedents of Captain John Scott but with little reward. Nugent's "Cavaliers and Pioneers," Vol. 1, p. 44, shows a John and Mary Scott living in New Kent County in 1663. Also the Quit Rent Roll of this county for 1704 lists a John Scott owning 300 acres. (Werenbaker's Planters of Colonial Virginia, p 219)

"In Prince George County Records is a deed bearing the date August 20, 1720, from John Scott, Sr. to John Scott, Jr., conveying for natural love and affection certain land patented on June 16, 1714. A descendant of Thomas Scott of Caroline County states that Thomas was the son of James Scott, of Aberdeen, Scotland. In Caroline Order Book, 1746-54, p. 336, August 10, 1752, Rice Williams' deed of gift to Thomas Scott is proved by the oaths of Johnny Scott and Mary Seton(?) witness there to. It seems most probable that John Scott was the brother who came to Virginia with James Scott, father of Thomas Scott."

Notes for John Scott:

There is no proof that this John Scott is the son of Thomas Scott, however, a John Scott is named in a suit by Thomas Terry the husband of Elizabeth Brunskill. Also Elizabeth's sister married Thomas Scott, Jr., who is also mentioned in the suit. It therefore seems very likely that this is the son of Thomas Scott, Sr.

The stories about John Scott is that he drank a lot, was married to Hannah Brunskill, whose father was the Rector of St. Margaret's Parish of the Episcopal church in Caroline. In the history of Caroline county this John Scott is shown as married to Elizabeth Brunskill, however a chart created in the settlement of a suit which was filed against John Scott showed he was the heir of Hannah.

Complete text of Arbitrators Decision:

Thomas Terry and George Booker Plts) against) In Ejectment
 John Scott, Defd)

The arbitrators to whom the matters in difference between the parties were submitted by a rule of this court the third day of October 1789 this day returned their award in these words:

In obedience to the annexed order of the Honorable the District Court by law appointed to be held at Fredericksburg, we beg leave to report that the matter referred to our decision is circumstanced thus:

John Brunskill the ancestor in the annexed table departed this life sometime in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixty one, leaving the several children in the annexed table expressed (as he imagined) or descendants by them. He made a will. In it, he devised the Lands in dispute to his daughter Isabella in fee. This will was attested and proved by only one Witness and was proved to have been written by the Testators own hand.

The death of John was discovered and William by that death the heir of the Testator, made his Will bearing date the 5th day of January 1770 wherein he devises as follows respecting the lands in dispute. "I give all my right and Title to the land called Arnolds to my sister Isabella Scott and the heirs of her body lawfully begotten: but in case she dies without Heir, then the said land to be at her disposal, so as given to the poorest children of her sister."

In the same will he speaks thus of his residuary Estate: "I give unto the Children of my three Sisters to wit Martha, Isabella and Hannah, to be equally divided amongst them at my Wife's death or marriage, and their heirs but I except George Booker, my sister Clark's children and my sister Terry's children, who I desire may never have any part of my Estate, either real or personal, as they have Estates already." It is admitted that George Booker and Thomas Terry the Plaintiffs are two of the persons excepted in the last above recited clause. But is in proof that the Devisee Isabella Scott survived her brother William Bromskill (sic) and consequently took the Estate by him devised to her, and that her sisters Martha Booker and the mother of George Booker, and Elizabeth Terry and the mother of Thomas Terry survived her. It is further in Proof that Isabella Scott died Intestate and without any Heir of her body. It is further in Proof, that at the time of her death, Martha Booker, Elizabeth Terry, Hannah Scott, and the daughters of her sister Mary Clark were her heirs.

It is further in Proof, that George Booker, now the only surviving Plaintiff is eldest son and heir of Martha Booker, and that Thomas Terry the other Plaintiff was in his lifetime the only son and heir of Elizabeth Terry.

On this statement we are of Opinion - - -

1st That the Will of John Brunskill from the defect above mentioned of legal publication and proof conveyed no Estate in the lands in question to Isabella.

2nd That the Will of William Brunskill conveyed to her an Estate Tail, intended to be defensible by her doing an act, which appears to be described with so much uncertainty as not to have been binding, however she made no disposition of all the lands, they reverted to his heirs.

3rd That his living Sisters at the death of Isabella were each entitled to one share in the Reversion, and the daughters of her deceased sister excluded by the Excluding clause in his Will under the words, "my sister Clark's children."

4th That for these reasons Martha Booker, Elizabeth Terry and Hannah Scott were each entitled to one third of the Lands in dispute.

It is further proof, that each of the last above mentioned Ladies died Intestate, and that Thomas Terry one of the Plts died since the annexed reference was made. We award therefore, that as to Thomas Terry this suit is abated by his Death and that a Judgement be entered and writ of Possession awarded to the Plaintiff George Booker for that Proportion of the Lands in Question which he hath claimed by the Present suit, he being in fact entitled to one third of them. James Taylor, John Warden, Edmd. Pendleton, Jr."

In confirmation whereof it is considered by the court that George Booker the surviving Plaintiff recover against the Deft. his term, yet to come of an in one third part of one thousand acres of land with the appurtenances lying and being in the Parish of Saint Margaret in the County of Caroline, in the declaration mentioned and his costs by him about his suit in this behalf appended, and the said Debt may be taken &c. Whereupon the surviving Plt. prays a writ to the Sheriff of the said County to be directed to cause him to have his possession of his term aforsaid to dome &c and to him it is granted returnable here &C.

Thomas Scott lived in Prince Edward County where he was militia colonel, sheriff, justice of the peace, and churchwarden. It was probably this Thomas Scott who represented Prince Edward County in the General Assembly (1768-71). He put up a £1,000 sheriff's bond in 1765.

Thomas bought 368 acres [Prince Edward County, Virginia, Deed Book 3, page 460] in Prince Edward County from Joseph Ligon [880.3.1] in December 1770.

During the Revolution, Thomas was a captain. Scott held 970 acres on Terry's Run in Charlotte County. [Charlotte County, Virginia, Deed Book 1, page 44, 68] Thomas Scott died in Charlotte County (will dated 29 Dec. 1796, recorded 1 July 1799) after having written a codicil to his will dated 29 January 1799. He married Ann Roy June 17, 1784 in Spotsylvania Co., VA, daughter of John Roy and Ann Waller. She was born February 28, 1762, and died April 1, 1846 in Campbell Co., VA.

Notes for Maj. Samuel Scott:

Samuel Scott served in the Revolution. His tombstone in the old Scott burying ground at gate of Barksdale house on Old Forest Road in Campbell County, VA., gives his rank as Major. In 1786 he purchased from Chiles Terrill of Albemarle, 400 acres on Turkey branch at Henry Tate's corner between lands of Benjamin Rucker and Terrill. This is where he built his home, on Forest Road, called Locust Thicket. There are a number of legal records that refer to "Major Scott's Plantation on the Forest Road."

As he prospered, Samuel added to his land holdings. By the time of his death in 1822, his main holdings amounted to 1,755 acres. A dispute between Major Scott and Thomas Jefferson over ownership of an adjoining tract, led to a suit filed by Scott in 1810. It was settled in favor of Jefferson. Major Scott was very upset over the decision and carried a grudge to his grave. However, revenge was his when after his death, his daughter and her husband bought all of Jefferson's Popular Forest from Jefferson's grandson, Francis Eppes.

In 1804 he was one of the justices of the peace in Campbell county. That year he patented 114 acres and 54 1/2 acres on Ivy Creek and the south branch of Ivy. The Court ordered the way viewed for a road from the Quaker Meeting House, running by Scott's Mill to the public road leading from Bedford to Lynchburg. In 1807 Edmund Tate petitioned for authority to erect a toll bridge across Blackwater creek on the road from the county line by Samuel Scott's property in Lynchburg.

Major Scott died in 1822 and his will then recorded on August 15, 1832, reserved for a burying-ground forever one acre of land back of his garden, gave his wife one half of the estate except the tract of land lying in Bedford, called the Ivy creek tract, which he devised to his son Samuel, and his mansion house and plantation at Locust Thicket. Samuel and son-in-law Gordon were appointed trustees of the property devised to his daughter, Belinda Roy; he had conveyed 250 acres of land in Bedford on Cheese creek (bounded by the lands of Benj. Wigginton, George Cabell and others), in trust a permanent provision for his daughter Aphire Beverley; to Marian Stanard he gave a lot in Lynchburg adjoining John Lynch and Wm. Radford. To Beverley was devised land lying in Bedford and Campbell, called Blankenship's tract, conveyed to him by deed November 1818. Samuel M. to receive two tracts, Locust Thicket and Ivy creek upon condition that he conveyed to executors in trust the track called Blackwater, hereafter conveyed to him. To his daughter Emily W. Burton, slaves, and a slave for grandson Philip and granddaughter Emily Burton. Executors, J. M. Gordon, Beverley R. and Samuel M. Scott.

Ann Roy Scott, Beverley Roy Scott and several other family members are also buried in the rock walled cemetery in the corner of the Locust Thicket property.

In 1858, Henry W. Barksdale bought Locust Thicket. Thereafter it was known as the "Barksdale Place." In 1864, during the Civil War, 4,000 Union Cavalry drew up a line of battle on Barksdale's Farm on the Forest Road for the attack on Lynchburg. Many Civil War artifacts have been uncovered. A fine Southern wallpaper, stripped from the walls, bore traces of bullet holes inflicted in the war. Fragments of the various wallpapers were given to Point of Honor (owned by Major Scott's physician, Dr. George Cabell) and to the Smithsonian's Cooper-Hewitt Museum of Decorative Arts in New York. Evidence of former elegances is seen in the marbled front stairway and grained doors, which were probably done after Major Scott's time.

"Locust Thicket" was not located in the original Old Lynchburg. The house became a part of Lynchburg through annexation from Campbell County. Today, it is one of the oldest homes in the City. It is the home of Jackson's Antiques, 2627 Old Forest Road,. The Jacksons acquired the property in 1967.

Notes for Dr. William Parks Rucker:

In "A Centennial History of Alleghany County", Oren F. Morton writes: "William P., great grandson of Colonel Ambrose Rucker of the Revolution, practiced medicine in Alleghany, 1855-62, entered the Union army, was captured and indicted for treason against Virginia, but escaped from prison, October 18, 1863. In 1871-73 he was prosecuting attorney of Greenbrier. A son is William W., twenty-four years a Congressman from Missouri."

The following is an excerpt from a newspaper article by Lieutenant Abraham, included in the book "With the Army of WVA 1861-1864" by Lt. James Abraham, and repeated in the Journal of the Greenbrier Historical Society, Volume II, Number 4, 1978.

"His great-grandfather on the paternal side, Col Ambrose Rucker, and Capt. William Parkes (sic), after whom he was named) and his great-great uncle, on the maternal side, Gen. John Starke (after whose wife his mother was named) were all distinguished officers in the Revolutionary war. The closest and most intimate friendship existed between Parke's relatives and General Washington, and one of his great-great-uncles, Parkes, and General Washington's niece and protege were married just after the Revolutionary War - therefore Dr. Rucker was of blood kin to General Washington, on the maternal side. He could trace his ancestry back through the McDaniels, Dawsons, Garlands, Cliftons, Headlys, and Parkes, on the paternal side, to the famous Holland Dutch Admiral, and through the Bradfords, Starkes, Wallers, and Lewises, on the maternal side, to a celebrated Irish genera. Thus he was almost a full-blooded Holland Dutchman on his father's side, and an entirely full-blooded Irishman on his mother's side. ... General D. H. Rucker, whose daughter married Gen. P. H. Sheridan, was also a relative of the subject of this sketch."

"Dr. Rucker's wife, whose maiden name was Margaret Ann Scott, was a daughter of Capt. Thomas [Hazlewood] Scott, a direct descendant of the Highlanders of Scotland and traced her lineage through the Roys, McGregors, and Wallers the the first king of the Scotts. Dr. Rucker's and his wife's grandmothers were sisters, both daughters of the same Revolutionary captain, Williiam Parkes (sic), herein mentioned above. Dr. Rucker's father and his wife's mother - Margaret Parkes Burks - were first cousins, consequently the doctor and his wife were third cousins. Mrs. Rucker had two distinguished ancestors, officers in the Revolutionary war, their mutual great-grandfather, William Parkes, and her grandfather, William Scott. Honorable Walton R. Staples, ex-judge of the Supreme Court of appeals of Virginia, is a cousin of Dr. Rucker's, on the maternal side, and the Honorable Edward Burks, also ex-judge of the same court, is Mrs. Rucker's first cousin and the doctor's third cousin; while the Harrisons and the Scotts have been intermarrying from time almost immemorial, consequently both President Harrison and his wife are related to Mrs. Rucker."

"Dr. Rucker was educated at the Valley Union Seminary, now Hollin Institute, the University of Virginia, and Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Immediately after graduation in medicine, 1855 he located in Covington, Alleghany County, Virginia (1), where he continued to practice his profession and conduct a drugstore (2) up to the outbreak of the rebellion, in 1861, and was at that time the largest slave owner in the county."

Rucker, after the war, again settled in West Virginia. Having been disabled to such an extent as to prevent him from again entering actively into the practice of medicine, he took up the law, serving for two years as prosecuting attorney of Greenbrier County and two years in Pocahontas. He is now located in Lewisburg, and, I believe, is the postmaster at that place (3)."

(1)He practiced medicine a short time in Alvon, Greenbrier County, prior to his removal to Alleghany County "Greenbrier Independent", January 5, 1905.

(2) County Court Order Book, March 21, 1859, license to William P. Rucker to keep a tavern . . . license renewed County Order Book No. 6, p. 223, 1861, Alleghany County Virginia Records.

(3) In 1865-1867m Rucker was notary public for the county of Nicholas; 1867-1868 - justice of the peace of that county; 1870-1872 - prosecuting attorney for Greenbrier and Pocahontas counties and postmaster of Lewisburg from 1889-1893. During the interim when not in public office, he actively followed the practice of medicine.

RUCKER, WILLIAM P., soldier, farmer, physician, lawyer, was born Nov. 9, 1831, in Lynchburg, Va. He received his education in Collins Institute, the University of Virginia, and the Jefferson Medical College (Philadelphia). He was prosecuting attorney for two years for Greenbrier county, W. Va.; and two years for Pocahontas county. During the war he served as a major of the thirteenth regiment West Virginia infantry; was aide-camp to Generals Fremont, Sigel and Crook; commanded for a short time the third district of the West Virginia home guards. After the war he was a successful merchant and tobacconist of Lynchburg, Va. He is one of the foremost lawyers of the south, and practices his profession in Lewisburg, W. Va.

From "The History of West Virginia" Vol. 2:

He was educated at Laurel Hill Academy, Amherst county, Virginia; Valley Union Seminary, Botetourt county, Virginia; the University of Virginia, and Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. He practiced medicine for a time at Alvon, Greenbrier county, Virginia, and afterward, from 1855 to 1862, at Covington, Alleghany county, Virginia. At Covington he became well-known and popular as a physician throughout that part of the state, and in his extensive practice he traveled over all its roads. He also was interested in public improvements and became president of the Covington & Lexington Turnpike Company. Although he was a large slave owner he was a staunch Unionist, believing neither in secession nor in revolution. His Unionism, before and in the early days of the civil war, brought him into many controversies and difficulties with his fellow townsmen. He had always been a Whig; in the election of 1860 he made many speeches for the Bell and Everett ticket, and was one of the "assistant electors" selected by the central executive committee of the state. In the spring of 1861, with Hon. John Minor Botts and General John J. Jackson, he addressed the people of the state, boldly advocating Unionism while the Richmond convention was debating secession. This incurred for them the special political antagonism of Governor Letcher and his adherents. Shortly after this he left Covington in an effort to reach the Union lines, and came as far as Nicholas county; but, finding no Union troops in that section, and fearing that he would be killed by bushwhackers, he returned safely to Covington. In the following July, he received through Postmaster General Montgomery Blair and his old friend, John Minor Botts, appointment as postmaster of Covington, and was to send in the names of all disloyal postmasters in that section that these might be removed. For various reasons he could not accept this appointment, and he wrote a letter to Mr. Botts explaining the situation; but the postmaster refused to forward the letter, and it never reached its destination.

Dr. Rucker's outspoken denunciations of the secessionists finally resulted in his being attacked by a mob, but he defied them with a bowie-knife and pistol and indulged in some fiery speaking. February 27, 1862, he left Covington, and went to the camp of Colonel Crook, of the 36th Ohio Infantry; he engaged with the army as chief of the secret service of the Mountain Department, and was afterwards appointed provost-marshal of Crook's brigade. His duties were important and confidential, and his knowledge of the country was of great value. He was a daring scout and raider. His most notable achievement in this line was the burning, under orders of General Fremont, of the Cow Pasture bridge; with seventy-five men under his leadership this was successfully accomplished, and the loss of the bridge seriously crippled the movements of the Confederates and cut off their supplies. His fame went through the Confederacy as a bridge-burner, horse-stealer, corn-stealer, etc. July 25, 1862, he and several other Union officers were surprised and captured at Summersville, Nicholas county. Dr. Rucker was taken to the headquarters of General McCausland, at Salt Sulphur Springs. Here he was surrounded by a guard of seven men with loaded muskets and fixed bayonets; a special forging was made for his security, an iron bar extended between his wrists, around which were welded and riveted strong iron bands, which were hammered on the anvil after being put on him. He was kept under the strictest surveillance, not to be spoken to, nor allowed any privileges. Lieutenant Duffy, who has since the war been auditor of West Virginia, being on one occasion officer of the day, broke the order to the extent of giving him some clean clothing, though with hardly a word. Several physicians from Covington and other places and Hon. Allen T. Caperton, interceded for him. General McCausland began to think that Dr. Rucker was not so bad a man as he had thought, and revoked his harsh orders, also parted from him kindly when Dr. Rucker was taken away, but he was still under strict guard. He was committed as a prisoner of war, but Governor Letcher and his adherents demanded that he be held for treason and taken to Covington for trial, before the circuit court of Alleghany county. There were ten indictments against him, one of these being for murder; but he had already been tried and acquitted on this charge, and the court held that he could not be tried again. On the other counts, which included treason, his effort to secure a prompt trial was unsuccessful and the case was continued indefinitely. By direction of Lincoln and Stanton, General Milroy made a special effort to release him; afterward, General Crook made a similar attempt. To avoid his release, the Confederates changed him from prison to prison; in all, he was in ten prisons. Retaliation for his harsh treatment was practiced on a Dr. Green. Helped by unknown friends, Dr. Rucker finally escaped from Pittsylvania county jail, near the North Carolina line, October 18, 1863. Wearing a Confederate lieutenant's uniform, and having a pretended authorization under an assumed name for special duty, he was carried by a waiting buggy to Lynchburg; in Lynchburg, he was presented with a fine horse.

Governor Letcher offered a reward of $5,000 for his capture, alive or dead. At Covington he was recognized and nearly captured, but escaped afoot by a ruse. When he was almost in safety a very bitter secessionist recognized him; but, from old friendship, he not only did not disclose his presence but lent him a horse and sent his brother-in-law to accompany and assist him on his way, the Confederates being then in close pursuit. Finally November 7th, twenty days after his escape, Dr. Rucker reached the Union lines. He was completely disabled, suffering with rheumatism and nervously broken down, and was carried in an ambulance to Charleston. Thence, when he was in better health, he went to Parkersburg, intending to visit his wife and family at Marietta, Ohio, where they had been cared for by the government. Stanton, however, summoned him from Parkersburg peremptorily to Washington, as information, which only he could give, was much needed. Soon he was in the field again with Crook, and he was made major of the Thirteenth West Virginia Infantry. He was on staff duty with Crook, Sigel, and Hunter. Near the close of the war, he resigned his commission. Long afterward, he met Governor Letcher again, and he assured Dr. Rucker that it was never intended to deprive him of his life, but that, for military reasons, it had been purposed to keep him in jail as long as possible.

Notes for Edith Bolling:

Biography: "Secret President," "first woman to run the government" -- so legend has labeled a First Lady whose role gained unusual significance when her husband suffered prolonged and disabling illness. A happy, protected childhood and first marriage had prepared Edith Wilson for the duties of helpmate and hostess; widowhood had taught her something of business matters.

Descendant of Virginia aristocracy, she was born in Wytheville in 1872, seventh among eleven children of Sallie White and Judge William Holcombe Bolling. Until the age of 12 she never left the town; at 15 she went to Martha Washington College to study music, with a second year at a smaller school in Richmond.

Visiting a married sister in Washington, pretty young Edith met a businessman named Norman Galt; in 1896 they were married. For 12 years she lived as a contented (though childless) young matron in the capital, with vacations abroad. In 1908 her husband died unexpectedly. Shrewdly, Edith Galt chose a good manager who operated the family's jewelry firm with financial success.

By a quirk of fate and a chain of friendships, Mrs. Galt met the bereaved President, still mourning profoundly for his first wife. A man who depended on feminine companionship, the lonely Wilson took an instant liking to Mrs. Galt, charming and intelligent and unusually pretty. Admiration changed swiftly to love. In proposing to her, he made the poignant statement that "in this place time is not measured by weeks, or months, or years, but by deep human experiences..." They were married privately on December 18, 1915, at her home; and after they returned from a brief honeymoon in Hot Springs, Virginia, their happiness made a vivid impression on their friends and White House staff.

Though the new First Lady had sound qualifications for the role of hostess, the social aspect of the administration was overshadowed by the war in Europe and abandoned after the United States entered the conflict in 1917. Edith Wilson submerged her own life in her husband's, trying to keep him fit under tremendous strain. She accompanied him to Europe when the Allies conferred on terms of peace.

Wilson returned to campaign for Senate approval of the peace treaty and the League of Nations Covenant. His health failed in September 1919; a stroke left him partly paralyzed. His constant attendant, Mrs. Wilson took over many routine duties and details of government. But she did not initiate programs or make major decisions, and she did not try to control the executive branch. She selected matters for her husband's attention and let everything else go to the heads of departments or remain in abeyance. Her "stewardship," she called this. And in My Memoir, published in 1939, she stated emphatically that her husband's doctors had urged this course upon her.

In 1921, the Wilsons retired to a comfortable home in Washington, where he died three years later. A highly respected figure in the society of the capital, Mrs. Wilson lived on to ride in President Kennedy's inaugural parade. She died later in 1961: on December 28, the anniversary of her famous husband's birth.

Notes for Hedley Scott Rucker:

From "The History of West Virginia" Vol II

Hedly Scott, son of Major William Parks and Margaret Ann (Scott) Rucker, was born at Lynchburg, September 13, 1853. His father was then residing at the old Scott homestead. He attended Marietta Academy, and studied law with his father. In 1873 he was admitted to the bar at Keytesville, Missouri, where he practiced for six years. Coming then to Huntersville, West Virginia, to conduct a case for "assault to kill," and securing the acquittal of his client, he was urged to remain, and decided to do this. Thus, in 1879, he opened an office at Huntersville, which was then the county seat. When the court house of Pocahontas county was in 1892 removed to Marlinton, Mr. Rucker also removed to that place. He has had a very active practice, both civil and criminal, and has been engaged in many notable cases He is a member of the County and State Bar Associations, also of the American Bar Association. In Masonry, he is a member of the chapter. Mr. Rucker has always been active in politics. Until 1884 he was a Democrat. From that year he has been a Republican, and he is now an advanced Progressive. He has been considered for several offices, and was at one time within one vote of the nomination for judge of the circuit court; on this occasion, he withdrew his name, to preserve harmony between the counties in the district.

Notes for Roy Waller Rucker:

Rucker (principal of the Lewisburg School and the School for the Deaf, Dumb and Blind at Romney), and daughter of Roy Rucker, became the wife of Alben Barkley, vice-president of the United States under President Truman.

However, in her book, "I Married the Veep", she talks about her grandfather who was in the Congress when Barkley was first elected to office.
