He served as Representative in the House of Delegates in 1916 and 1917. His bid in 1918 for the 9th Senate seat failed as he lost to the Republicans by less than 300 votes. In 1920, he ran against the machine, and was the only Democrat elected in Fayette county. In 1922 he ran for the sixth Congressional seat of West Virginia. He defeated the two term incumbent, L. S. Echols, by 7,000 votes to serve in the 68th Congress. In 1924, he was nominated again and again beat Echols. He was the only Democrat in West Virginia to win. He was nominated again in 1926, but was defeated.
