Quoted from newspaper article sent to me by Robert Victor Hufford:

"Murder

We learn that Mr. Huffard, living near Greenton in this county, was murdered last week by a man named TURNER, living in the same neighborhood. For sometime a coolness had existed between the parties, and some two or three weeks since, TURNER told some of the bushwackers that HUFFARD had two fine horses, and that they had better go and get them. They accordingly went to his house, and found that he had but two horses and that they were almost worthless. They did not take them. A few days after, TURNER rode by Mr. HUFFARD's and found him at work in a field. Some words passing between them, Mr. H. struck TURNER with a pitchfork. TURNER then rode to a camp of buckwackers, where he armed himself with a pistol, and returned to Mr. HUFFARD's house. In the meantime, Mr. H. had gone to the house, and regretting, probably, having struck TURNER, left the house and hid in some woods. In about an hour TURNER rode up and asked his family where he was, and was told that he was not at home. He then commenced a search and found him hid; whereupon he commenced firing upon him, and did not stop until he had shot him five times. When found a few moments after he was dead. The murderer is still at large. Turner had married Mr. HUFFARD's neice.

These facts we obtained from a gentleman living in the neighborhood."

Quoted from recollections penned by Vesta Morton-Rawlings and sent to me in an e-mail by Leslie E. Branz on May 6, 2001:

"Two of Uncle Sam's boys, 7 and 10 years old, were drowned. Sam and his son, Henry, had lines set out to catch fish. They went and the little boys followed. When they were found, all Aunt Fannie's children had whooping cough and couldn't go to the funeral. The boys were in a water hole in the creek. Sam dove in after them, found them clasped in each other's arms. Buried in one grave. It like to killed Sam and Winnie. One or two others died as babies. They were very pretty little boys. She had 10 children. Had so little clothing for them."

Notes for James Alan Woodruff:

Transcribed from Kansas City Star obituary book located at Mid-Continent Public Library - Genealogy Branch - North Independence:

"Kansas City man apparent suicide

Despite the efforts of a neighborhood youth, a Kansas City man apparently took his own life Saturday at his home, police said.

James A. Woodruff, 36, was found dead in his home at 7710 E. 83rd by police who were called after Woodruff apparently had been thwarted in an earlier suicide attempt.

Later, when police entered the home, they found a shotgun near the body.

Tracy Whited, 19, told police he saw Woodruff sitting in his car in a driveway with a garden hose running from the exhaust pipe through a window into the car. Whited said he attempted to get the man out of the car, then disconnected the hose from the tallpipe.

Whited told police that Woodruff put the hose in his car and drove away, returned about 45 minutes later and went into his house.

When police arrived, they found the door locked and tried unsuccessfully to get a response from Woodruff by telephone and the use of a loud speaker.

Neighbors told police the man had been despondent since his wife and two children moved from the home.
