Professor Viebahn was once honored with the Presidency of the State Teachers Association.

"Viebahn Street" is named after Charles Viebahn which is a major street in Manitowoc. It is also where the The University of Wisconsin-Manitowac is located.

1872 Efforts were made to form a county teachers association, C.A. Viebahn was elected President. But the organization did not prove to be successful.

In 1879 Principal Hussey ran for county superintendent on the Democratic ticket, but was defeated by Professor Viebahn of the First Ward School by 561 majority. The term was completed by John Nagle, as Professor Viebahn accepted a position on the faculty of the White water Normal School in 1881, and later as superintendent of Schools of Watertown, WI

Obituary notice, 1915

One of Watertown's most beloved and highly respected educators in its public school system was the late Prof. Charles F. Viebahn. He was not only an outstanding school man who helped introduce many modern transformations into the public schools of the city; he was also a civic leader and had an active public career aside from his education activities.

Prof. Viebahn died at his home at South Seventh and Western Avenue. He had held the position of principal of Watertown High School and superintendent of schools for 24 uninterrupted years - from 1880 to 1904. Before that he had also been county superintendent of schools in both Sauk and Manitowoc Counties.

Watertown knew him in many different capacities. He was a legislator, instructor and counselor.

No educator in the State of Wisconsin was better or more favorably known over the state than Prof. Viebahn, who in addition to the laurels won as instructor par excellence, was three times selected to represent his district in the Legislature.

Educator

Mr. Viebahn was the first in many things: while he was principal of the schools of Manitowoc in 1873 he established the first kindergarten in the state to be operated in connection with a public school; while he was county superintendent of schools of Sauk County he prepared and introduced a course of study for country schools, the first course of the kind in the state; he was the first teacher in the state to be granted an unlimited teachers' certificate.

Honored as an educator from one end of the state to another, Mr. Viebahn had been president of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association, and had frequently conducted teachers' institutes and presented many papers before educational bodies. He had been a member of the state board of examiners for many years, serving under five different state superintendents, and was at the time of his death its chairman.

Born in Germany

Mr. Viebahn was born in Germany, near the city of Cologne, in 1842. At the age of ten years he came to Wisconsin with his parents, and for the next ten years his home was on a farm. He was educated in the public schools, by private instruction and study and by attending the University of Wisconsin for three years.

During two winter terms his course as a student was interrupted by teaching a country school. He studied law and was admitted to practice, but finally decided to adopt teaching as a profession.

The honorable and responsible positions he held in his lifetime followed in rapid succession until his retirement in 1904.

Legislator

Elected to the Legislature in 1908, 1910 and again in 1912, Mr. Viebahn served with honor, and was chairman of the committee on education during one term and also member of the committee on legislative procedure.

Mr. Viebahn was in the University of Wisconsin with John Muir, famous naturalist and explorer. In the Legislature in 1912-13, a Democratic colleague of Mr. Viebahn was I. N. Stewart, Appleton. The three students, Muir, Viebahn and Stewart, roomed in the same house back in 1861. Viebahn and Stewart were the oldest Legislators in the session of 1913.

After completing his last term in the Legislature, Prof. Viebahn lived quietly and unostentatiously in Watertown, yet by no means without interest in the life of his fellow citizens, for he retained till the last his interest in the affairs of life, and most particularly the affairs of education.

He was an almost daily visitor at the high school of the city, and even during the last winter before his death had taught classes in the schools, relieving teachers who were ill or forced to be absent for other reasons. In November, 1914, he took an active part in the meeting of the Wisconsin State Teachers' Association at Milwaukee.

Mr. Viebahn mastered one of the most difficult of arts, that of growing old gracefully. During the months before his death, his friends noted with regret that he was failing in bodily health. The tall, impressive figure was growing stooped; the old educator walked more slowly and was less light on his feet. But his every-day smile was always in evidence and his words of greeting were as bright and cheery as of yore.

With the passage of Prof. Viebahn, Watertown lost one of its most honored and best loved citizen, a man whose honesty and integrity, faithfulness and abilities were never questioned.

Married Twice

Prof. Viebahn twice was married. The first wife, who was Miss Lona Fischer, to whom he was wedded in 1868, died in 1893. One son was born to the couple, the late Gustave O. Viebahn, a brilliant man with many of his father's talents, who served the city of Watertown for several years as city engineer. The professor was saddened by the death of this son, which occurred Feb. 2, 1897. In the fall of 1895 Prof. Viebahn married Mrs. Josephine Hall, who had two daughters of a former marriage.

Prof. Viebahn's grave is in Oak Hill Cemetery. In the history of Watertown schools and its progress in education his name will always loom large among the men of the city's first century.

Prof. C. F. Viebahn

As a man of sterling integrity he whose name heads this sketch ranks high. As an earnest, conscientious, progressive educator he occupies a leading place, and has achieved honor in his county and among his own people. In the enthusiastic pursuit of his chosen profession he has awakened public sentiment to a higher appreciation of the benefits of education that will bring renown to his memory as well as satisfaction to his highest aspirations. He is well entitled to the reputation he has certainly acquired of being one of the most successful educators of Wisconsin, and as superintendent of the public schools and principal of the High School of Watertown, Wis., he has proven himself equal to the task imposed upon him, and enjoys to the fullest extent the respect of his fellow men, as well as of his pupils. Public education has no more earnest advocate and co-operator than he, and as he is a man of action, of original and positive character, he has left his impress upon his sphere of public duty.

He was born in Cologne, Germany, April 20, 1841, and possesses some of the most worthy characteristics of that race, being intelligent, persevering, and at all times to be relied upon. His parents, Peter V. and Wilhelma (Deitenbach) Viebahn, came to the United States in 1851, and after a short residence at Baraboo, located on a farm near Mauston, Wis., where they were both eventually called from this life. The father was a notary public when in his native land, and although he gave some attention to agriculture after reaching this country, he was practically retired from the active duties of life. Two of three children born to them are living: Prof. C. F., and William, who is a farmer in the vicinity of Blue Earth City, Minn.

The youthful days of Prof. Viebahn were spent in his native land, in the public schools of which country he received his initiatory scholastic training. At the age of ten years he was brought to the United States by his parents, and until he attained his eighteenth year he made his home with his father on the farm and pursued his studies in the district schools near his rural home. He then began the calling of a pedagogue, in order to acquire means with which to put him through college, and as he pursued this occupation during the winter months, he was enabled to attend the University of Wisconsin during the summer.

In 1862 he became principal of the Sauk City public schools, continuing as such up to 1869, with the exception of one year, and from 1870 to 1872 was county superintendent of schools of Sauk County, Wis. From that time up to 1879 he was the efficient principal of the public schools of Manitowoc, Wis., then was elected to the responsible position of superintendent of schools of Manitowoc County, a position he filled with marked ability, as he had also in Sauk County, until 1881. Since that time he has been superintendent of the public schools and principal of the High School of Watertown, positions for which his varied talents eminently fit him.

The present high school building of the place was erected under his supervision, contains seven rooms, and has an average attendance of 120 pupils in the high school. Prof. Viebahn is a man of fine intellect, is a fine disciplinarian, and has the faculty of presenting his explanations in a clear and forcible manner, and in language fitted for the comprehension of the dullest pupil.

He is with reason regarded as one of the ablest educators of the State, and his heart is in his work, a secret, no doubt, of his success. He keeps well posted on the progress made in his profession, takes some leading educational periodicals, has a well selected, though small, library, and is advanced in all his views.

He was married in 1868 to Miss Lona Fischer, by whom he has one son: G. O., who is the present city engineer of Watertown, and a substantial and intelligent citizen. Prof. Viebahn is a member of the Sons of Herman, but as a rule has not interested himself in secret organizations. He has been a widower since 1893.

Through the death of Mr. Viebahn, which occurred March 17th, the high school lost a warm friend, a faithful supporter, and a fair critic, whose presence encouraged pupils and teachers.

Mr. Viebahn was sympathetic and kindly disposed towards us at all times. His wide experience as teacher, supervisor, and superintendent, made him a valuable counselor.

He was for twenty-four years, from 1880 to 1904, superintendent of Watertown Public Schools. During that time he made many friends for the schools and his high ideals became a part of the life of students who worked with him.

Within the memory of the class of 1915, he has conducted classes in botany, in algebra and in German in the high school. He visited classes often and usually left some word of encouragement or advice. His death is mourned by the entire student body. He will be remembered as a kindly, venerable man, whose place will never be fully filled by another.

Thomas J. Berto, Superintendent of Schools

Notes for CHARLES D. VIEBAHN:

Charles Viebahn came to Aitkin as a young man, was a hotel clerk for a time at the Whipple House and later entered in partnership with Billy Puntenev as engineer to form the Mississippi Transportation Co., Viebahn as captain, running stern wheelers between Aitkin and Grand Rapids, occasionally to Brainerd. The first steamer Irene, built in 1899-1901, was owned by C.D. Viebahn and Albert Tully. The steamboat hauled freight and passengers between Brainerd and Grand Rapids. It burned at its dock below the Mississippi River bridge in Aitkin. A second Irene was constructed and worked the river. In 1908, the Irene sank because of overloading. Raised, the steamer resumed its duties only to sink again the following year at the Aitkin dock. The boat, named for Irene Hodgedon, was hauled on land and dismantled in 1909.

Notes for MARIA MAGDALENA HAMMER:

Ria drafted in the German Air force and was in for 2.5 years. She also worked as a teletype operater (American Western Union) and met Hubert Vieabhn there in the office after the war. Atfer the war Ria took a Boat to Begen Norway then a train to Hamberg Germany. She said she walked 550 miles back to her hometown, Bad Kissingen.

This was Ria's Obituary that she wrote herself.

Ria Magdalena Viebahn, 84, of Cloquet passed away on Monday, September 27, 2004 in Duluth. She was married to Hubert Earl Viebahn from Aitkin, MN. He passed away on July 9, 2002.

She was born in Bad-Kissingen, Germany, Bavarian on November 14, 1919. She had two sisters, Marga and Dora. Marga is still living in Germany. After she graduated from high school, Ria went on to the Fort Gnilding School for two years for bookkeeping and accounting. She also studied the English language for one year (like she had known her future.) When she was 21 years old, Ria was drafted into the German Air Force for teletype operation and was promoted to corporal. For two and a half years she was in Poland, Riga and Holland. She got back to Bad-Kissingen Germany on a big ship.

In her hometown of Bad-Kissingen, the American Military opened a headquarters also for teletype operation, where Ria got the same job. That's where she met Hubert, whom she married after two years and together they had their first son, Victor. A year and a half later a military airplane flew them to New York from where they rode the train to St. Paul and then to Aitkin. They moved to Cloquet when Hubert got a job at Potlatch Paper Co. Ria worked in the city clerk's office as assistant city clerk for 14 years. Later she decided to travel and see more of the United States and the country she loved. She also enjoyed spending time with her family at their lake home in Grand Rapids. She was a happy person who was very proud of her children and grandchildren.

Ria is survived by her children, Victor (Colleen Carlson) Viebahn of Cloquet, Dolores (Glen) Anderson of Shakopee, Gary (Elisabeth) Viebahn of Ann Arbor, MI, and Rick (Linda) Viebahn of Burbank, CA; grandchildren, Todd (Diane), Derek, Kevin, Sara, Jake, Abbey, Nicholas, Eric, Laura, Patrick, E. Carl and Lisa; great grandson, Trent.
