Berlin Journal, July 16, 1913

Henry Wade Jordan was born in New York, October 14, 1833. While he was a small boy the family moved to Bath, Ohio, where they lived until he had grown to manhood, then moving to Wisconsin.

He cleared the farm six and one-half miles northwest of Berlin, which was home for more than a quarter of a century, when he sold this place and built a new home upon the spot where he and his older brother John Nathan had erected their first rude shelter in the early pioneer days.

In 1860, Mr. Jordan was united in marriage to Mary Ann Mitchell who died five years later, leaving a son, Henry, now of Neenah.

Some time later he married Isabelle Stevens and to this unit was born seven children, six of whom are living.

He responded to the call of his country for volunteers in 1861, enlisting in Co. I. Eleventh Wisconsin Voluntary infantry, and served till the close of the war.

Twenty-four years ago he became a member of the Seventh Day Adventist church, to which he remained loyal till death.

He had been in ailing health for some time, but seemed as well as usual till the night of June 30 when the weakened heart became unable to perform its duty properly and after a night of suffering he passed away quietly at 7:30 a.m. July 1,

He was a loving husband and father and a good neighbor. Funeral services were from the Congregational church at Auroraville and he was laid to rest near his little daughter in the Welsh Cemetery.

Notes for David Starr Jordan:

Born into a farm family of Gainesville, New York, he entered the newly-established Cornell University as an undergraduate in 1866, and received a master's degree in 1872; he was an instructor in botany at Cornell beginning in 1870.

He then moved to Indianapolis and acquired an MD from Indiana Medical College (1875), after lecturing in 1874 on marine botany at the Anderson summer school of natural history at Penikese Island, Massachusetts, and on botany and ichthyology at the Harvard School of Geology in 1875.

He earned Ph.D. from Butler University in 1878, taking up a professorship in science at Indiana University in 1879.

From 1879 through 1881 he was a special agent of the United States census for the marine industries of the Pacific coast, and he also held appointments at various times with United States Fish Commission, beginning in 1877 and extending through 1891.

He was appointed president of Indiana University on January 1, 1885, and then went to Stanford in 1891 to become its first president, later becoming its chancellor in 1913, in order to have more time available for his peace activities (a new trustee by the name of Herbert Hoover helped arrange this). Jordan retired in 1916.

He was president of the California Academy of Sciences from 1896 to 1904 and after 1908. He was also president of the World Peace Foundation from 1910 to 1914 and chaired the World Peace Conference in 1915.

Jordan was an extremely prolific writer, with 650 articles and books on ichthyology alone, and 1,400 other works. As of 1881, Jordan had already published about 250 papers on North American ichthyology, also the Manual of the Vertebrates of the Northern United States.

Jordan is somewhat notable in the fields of political science and international relations for his optimistic statements about the future of the world before the outbreak of World War I. According to the book Understanding International Conflicts by Joseph Nye, Jordan incorrectly predicted in 1910 that nations would not go to war in the future because it would cause too much damage to their economies.
