Document from court records in Fayette Co., Ohio dated 7 September 1833 reads:"It appearing to the court that the widow of Isaac Welliver, late of this county Deceased refuses to take upon herself the burden of the administration of the Estate of said deceased. Thereupon on motion James McCoy, who together with Lawson P. Reid, and Samuel F. German his securities entered into and acknowledges his bond in the penalty of one thousand dollars conditioned as this law directs. Letters of Administration are granted unto him on the personal estate of Isaac Welliver, late of this county deceased. And thereupon the said James McCoy was sworn faithfully to discharge his duty. And it is ordered the Elisha Taylor, Joseph Orr, and Isaac Grace after being duly sworn to appraise into current money all the personal estate of said deceased and make return in three months to the clerk's office as required by law.

He is shown in the 1830 Wayne Twp., Fayette Co., Ohio census.

He was living in Pennsylvania in 1815, then moved to Ross Co., Ohio about 1820 and then lived in Fayette Co.

A document was found, dated 9 July 1836 stating: "this day, Jane Weliver, a minor over the age of twelve years with the assent of the court made choice of Norman F. Jones for her guardian and the said Norman F Jones was by the court appointed guardian for Bray Welever and George Welever minors under the ages of fourteen years. Thereupon the said Norman F. Notes for JOHN CALVIN WELLIVER:

86 years old dean of the telegraph industry, who retired in 1943 as first Vice-President of the western Union Telegraph Company, died June 1924, after a week illness at his home at Carville, NJ.

"Recognized as one of the great figures in the history of the telegraph industry, Mr. Welliver numbered among his early associates the pioneers who built and operated many of the nations's first telegraph lines. He served Western Union for 63 years, longer than any other executive in Western Union 100 year history. Th name of J. C. Welliver appeared on more than six billion yellow telegraph blanks between 1916 and 1943,

After his retirement, Mr. Welliver continued for two years as a director of Western Union, and was a director of two subsidiaries, the American District Telegraph Company and Tel-register Corporation, when he died. He attend a board meeting of the American District Telegraph Company two weeks ago. Many people in the telegraph industry and friends will view the remains Monday and Tuesday evening at Knapp's Funeral Home, 132 South Harrison Avenue, East Orange, and attend the funeral services at the same place at 8 P.M. Wednesday. Interment will be in St. Stephens Episcopal Church Cemetery, Main Street, Milburn at 0930 A.M. Thursday.

Mr . Welliver's preeminence in the communication field resulted from his active participation the the management of the company's affairs throughout almost the entire period of his service. he also stimulated the general use of telegrams for social correspondence by issuing colorful special occasion blanks designed by leading artists, and suggested greeting texts for various holidays and social occasions. He also directed a program which improved the appearance of Western Union Offices over the nation and speeded up telegraph service. He originated and introduced the Night letter in 1910 and the day letter in 1911.

Mr. Welliver was born at Montana, New Jersey, 9 March 1865. His father Jacob H. Willever, was station agent of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at Fort Murray, Warren County, NJ. Young Willever spent much time assisting his father and was a proficient telegraph operator at age of 15. He got his first regular job as a Western Union Telegraph operator in Asbury Park in 1882 at the age of 17. He was soon transferred to New York City and worked in various branch telegraph offices before entering the main office of Western Union, the at 195 Broadway.

While working as a telegraph operator, Willever studied shorthand and became statistical clerk of the General Operating Department. His knowledge of shorthand, then a rare accomplishment, resulted in his appointment in 1887 as stenographer in the office of General Thomas T. Eckert, then president and general manager of Western Union. He soon became General Eckert's secretary and executive clerk and continued until 1909 as executive assistant to Colonel R.C. Clowry, who succeeded General Eckert as president. His intimate contact during these years with every phase of management, operations and development laid the foundation for his outstanding career.

Mr. Willever next assumed charge of the management and development of Western Union's cable business including the intricate relations with foreign administrations. Rapid growth of the international business marked Mr. Welliver as a top salesman as well as an able administrator. In 1914 he was appointed Commercial General Manager of Western Union. Equipped with a broad range of experience covering the executive, traffic, cable and commercial phases of the business, Mr. Willever was prepared to play a dominant role in the written communications business.

He became Vice-President of the Commercial Department in 1916, with control over the commercial activities of the entire Western Union system. In April 1925 he became first vice-president.

It was Mr. Wellivers practice for many years to confer with company officials steadily from 9 to 5, with only a brief pause for lunch. The he would take a train to his home at 223 Sagamore Road, Millburn, NJ., or to his 400 acre farm at Carrville, Warren County, NJ. He would change into old clothes and work often hours with pick, shovel and wheelbarrow, often by lantern light. Then for hours, sometime until early morning he would study office papers he took home in a bulging briefcase. Work was Mr. Welliver's hobby, but he also found time for music, art collecting, farming and flower cultivation. A regular patron of symphony concerts he was proud of his ability to read a conductor' score. He was an avid collector of porcelains and Chinese snuff boxes. He raised prize flowers in great abundance". (From the History of the Woolever family 1650-1958, by Raymond Grant Woolever, 1958).

Notes for CHARLES WELLIVER:

He was born on a farm in Redding Township, Jackson County on 25 August 1853, and has been a resident of the county for more than half a century. He is the son of Hiram and Eleanor (McClure) Welliver.

Charles was reared on the old home farm and received his early educational discipline in the common schools of Jackson County, while even as a boy he began to contribute his quota to the work on the farm, in the management of which he continued to be concerned until he passed the age of thirty. He is now the owner of a well improved and valuable farm of three hundred and twenty acres, having added to the acres of the original place, and practically the entire tract is in cultivation, being devoted principally to the raising of wheat and corn, while he has also been very successful in the raising of shorthorn cattle and Poland China swine. He has made all the permanent improvements on the place, including the erection of a large and substantial barn and a modern and attractive residence. He has labored without ceasing, has brought to bear marked energy and good judgment, and is one of the distinctively progressive and prosperous farmers and stock-growers of his native county, where his friends are in number as his acquaintances. He is essentially public-spirited and his aid and influence are freely given in support of worthy measures for the general good. Though he was reared in the faith of the Democratic party he became convinced that the Republican party best represented the requisites for effective governmental control, and he takes a lively interest, though he has never sought public office of any kind. He is affiliated with Reddington Lodge No 281, Knights of Pythias, at Reddington.

On 15 October 1884, Mr. Welliver was united in marriage to Miss Clara N. Oathoudt, who was born Dearborn County, Indiana, being a daughter of John and Hulda (Holcomb) Oathoudt, who have been for the past decade and a half well known residents of Jackson County, where Mr. Oathoudt is a prosperous farmer.
