

Descendants of Belduno Zizzi

Generation No. 1

1. Belduno¹ Zizzi^{1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9,10} was born Abt. 1538.

Notes for Belduno Zizzi:

The name "Belduno" in the Cisternino dialect derives from the Italian words for "beautiful gift" ("bel" and "dono"). Spelling varies ("Bello Duno", "Bellidoni" . . .), often reflecting the uncertain translation from Latin to Italian or local dialect, or vice-versa. So from "Belduno", we get the Latin genitive "Bellidoni", meaning "of Belduno" -- commonly used on baptism records when referring to his descendants (e.g., "son of Belduno" would be "filius Bellidoni").

The name itself is exceedingly rare. In fact, I found only one other person who bore that name, the son of a Francesco Zizzi, who must have been a relative of Belduno, possibly a son. But none of Belduno's (other) descendants bore the name, which is unusual. This may mean that he had another given name, perhaps his first name, and that Belduno was a second name that was used more in common parlance. That he was quite prominent is clear from the continued use of the moniker "Belduno" to refer to that branch of the Zizzi family for the next hundred years.

Interestingly, the practice of creating names using the word "bel", or beautiful, may have been in vogue. I found a "Belladiana" born June 6, 1604 and a "Belloramo" born 28 January 1607.

Children of Belduno Zizzi are:

- 2 i. Ena² Zizzi¹¹, born Abt. 28 Jan 1560 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.
- 3 ii. Pasqua Rosa Zizzi¹², born Abt. 10 Jan 1563 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

Generation No. 2

5. Giovanni Antonio² Zizzi (Belduno¹)^{16,17,18,19,20,21,22,23} was born Abt. 08 Feb 1568 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy. He married Perna Antonia D'Alessio^{24,25,26,27,28}, daughter of Barnaba D'Alessio and Vitantonio Camarda. She was born Abt. 21 Jan 1582 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

Notes for Giovanni Antonio Zizzi:

The first record of a child for Giovanni Antonio appears to be in 1603. This obviously seems late, as he was then 35 years old. I suspect that he may have been married and living elsewhere, as he is listed as the father of no other children in Cisternino in the preceding period. Alternatively, the baptism record I found showing Giovanni Antonio Zizzi as son of Belduno Zizzi may have been that of an elder brother (who died young) of my ancestor Giovanni Antonio Zizzi.

His godfather is listed as Roderigo Pizari, who appears to have a Spanish given name and perhaps surname.

Notes for Pietro Giacomo Zizzi:

Pietro was born in Cisternino but moved to Martina Franca, apparently upon his marriage. Several of his elder children took Cisternino brides and resided there. That he was the grandson of Palmo Zizzi is based on his moniker "Palmarello" or "Palmarelli", found in the baptism record of his son Vito Giuseppe, as well as the baptism record of his grandson Francesco Paolo, son of Stefano. The naming patterns of his brothers' children allowed me to reconstruct his entire immediate family, later confirmed by independent data supplied by Orazio and Giuseppe Zizzi.

Pietro and Francesca engaged in the unusual practice of adding "Vito" before the names of many of their male children and the name "Martino" after the first given name. In everyday parlance, the pre-name "Vito" appears not to have been used, as subsequent records show "Vito Giovanni Maria" known merely as "Giovanni".

Notes for Francesca Zizzi:

Her children named their first born daughters Francesca Maria. On the baptism records of all her children, she is referred to merely as Francesca.

Vita Maria's surname does not appear on her son Vito Francesco Zizzi's death record, nor is there a marriage record in the parish archives in Cisternino for Vita Maria's parents. This may indicate that Vita Maria was not born in and did not live in Cisternino prior to her marriage and that after her perhaps early death, there was little contact with her side of the family.

His surname on his baptism record is shown as "Semerano". On his father's baptism record, the surname is shown as "Zambarano" and on the baptism records of his father's brother's and sisters, the name is shown as "Zamerano". In Cisternino, the name is only ever spelled as "Semeraro", so the range of spellings in Ostuni is intriguing.

She was born Abt. 1780, and died 28 Jun 1855 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

Notes for Vito Francesco Zizzi:

Vito Francesco was illiterate. All of his children's birth and death records examined indicate that he was a "massaro", or supervisor of a "masseria", a plantation. He is, however, described as a "contadino", a peasant farmer, on his own death record.

Notes for Angela Maria Marangi:

Angela Maria was probably not born Cisternino, since no record of her baptism was found in the parish archives.

The Marangi family is listed in Crollalanza as a Venetian family originally from Altino. The first mention of the family came in 1376, with Jacopo Marangi, city attorney of Altino, in northeastern Italy.

He married Giuditta Ardente^{1696,1697,1698,1699,1700,1701,1702,1703,1704,1705,1706,1707,1708,1709,1710,1711,1712,1713,1714} 17 Apr 1856 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy¹⁷¹⁵. She was born 09 Nov 1841 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died Aft. 1865.

Notes for Cosimo Damiano Semeraro:

A stonemason by trade, Cosimo was the first in the Semeraro line to abandon farming. It appears that he may have been apprenticed to a stonemason named Girolamo Angiolla. I deduce this for several reasons. First, the traditional way in which Italians at that time named their children was initially after the father's parents, then the mother's parents, then alternating between the eldest of the father's siblings and the eldest of the mother's siblings. Recall that Giuditta was a foundling and therefore of unknown parentage, so the names of her parents and siblings could not have been used. Cosimo and Giuditta followed this pattern for the first female child, who was named Maria Teresa and the second and third male children, who were named Nunzio (child number two died before the third was born). One would expect the fourth child to have been named after Cosimo's eldest brother, Francesco. However, the couple chose the name Girolamo. Girolamo died, but the sixth child was again given the name Girolamo. The couple's break with the traditional pattern of bestowing names shows that they had great respect for someone named Girolamo.

Second, the later Girolamo's birth record refers to Girolamo Angiolla, a 60-year-old stonemason who accompanied Cosimo to the Cisternino municipal offices to report the birth. That this Girolamo was both a stonemason and a generation older than Cosimo may indicate a mentor relationship that would have arisen during an apprenticeship.

Cosimo appears to have been illiterate. Although he signed his own marriage certificate, each of the birth records of his children states that he was illiterate (and therefore could not attest to the truth of his statements by signing the record).

Notes for Giuditta Ardente:

Giuditta was abandoned at birth, probably on the steps of the Church of San Nicola, as was the custom at that time in Italy. Her surname Ardente means "spirited, ardent". Such a name, known as an "augurale", was given to foundlings and illegitimate children, which were quite common in Italy due to the extreme poverty and inheritance by the eldest male of all the family land, and therefore wealth. (For more information on foundlings, illegitimate children and orphans in Italy, see "Italian Genealogical Records", by Trafford R. Cole.) Although Giuditta's marriage banns indicate that the lineage on her maternal side was "recognized" and that a death record for her mother was provided, these may have been formalities required by the Catholic Church to permit her to be married.

Also, the marriage banns refers to her as "Giuditta Ardente Antico." This surname never again appears in the birth records of her children that I examined. It may simply reflect the fact that she was living with someone named Maria Rosa Antico, perhaps having been taken in as a child to act as a servant for the Antico family.

Marriage Notes for Cosimo Semeraro and Giuditta Ardente:

As is evident from the dates, Giuditta was pregnant prior to marriage. In fact Cosimo was only 17 years old, while Giuditta was a mere 14! Although nowadays there is a common misconception to the contrary, these were not average marriage ages at that time.

Giuditta reportedly gave birth to 21 children.

She was born 11 Nov 1857 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 18 Feb 1914 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

Notes for Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi:

Giuseppe Domenico's baptism record mistakenly referred to him in the margin as "Giuseppe Domenico Semeraro", although in the text the surname "Zizzi" is correctly used.

According to Palma Zizzi, from stories told to her by her husband's father, Giuseppe Domenico often beat his children, especially my grandfather, Vitantonio, because he refused to believe them when they gave explanations for their behavior. She also told me that his acquaintances sometimes taunted him. Once, when he was working in the town of Carovigno, the men with he was have having dinner told him that his wife was cheating on him. He apparently dropped everything, walked all the way home to check on her (a trip of 4-5 hours) and then walked all the way back, arriving just in time for work the next morning. Finally, Palma Zizzi recounted that he was known for his tremendous appetite: He was once ate servings of beans intended to feed 7 people!

Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi and his wife and children lived at what is today no. 40/A Localita Pistone, in the countryside near the subdivision of Marinelli, in Cisternino. Interestingly, on my visit there on 15 July 2007, I was informed that a former president of the Italian Parliament (Casini) had just purchased and was renovating several trulli literally 50 meters from where Giuseppe Domenico lived.

Notes for Vito Zizzi:

Of the Zizzis who remained in Italy, the most tragic story concerns Vitantonio's brother Vito, who lived in a "trullo" (a regionally traditional whitewashed stone house with cone-shaped roof) in rural Cisternino (at what is today no. 2 Contrada Marinelli, in the locality known as "Tirunno") with his wife Maria and three daughters. According to my Aunt Margaret (Mary) Zizzi, his wife was seeing a young man who convinced her that she was unworthy of receiving the Holy Sacrament and that the only way to cleanse herself was to purify herself with blood - the blood of her husband. Francesca Zizzi (mother of Vito Antonio Zizzi), however, informed me in July 2007 that the young man (known as "Ciannuddu" or "Cenedd") was false prophet, who claimed to communicate with the Virgin Mary and who even was accepted and encouraged by the local church.

Though Maria Zizzi had nursed Vito Zizzi back to health following an illness, she one day acted: while he was sleeping in bed, Maria split his head open with a hammer. The three daughters remained in the trullo, perhaps in the care of relatives, until they, one by one, married. Maria spent several years in an asylum in Lecce but was released in the 1960s, at which time she sold the trullo and land and (according to her daughter Margherita Zizzi) gave not so much as a lira to her daughters, though she later depended on them when she grew old.

Margherita¹⁰ Zizzi (Vito Francesco⁹, Pietro Antonio⁸, Vito Francesco⁷, Stefano Antonio⁶, Pietro Giacomo⁵, Giovanni⁴, Palmantonio³, Giovanni Antonio², Belduno¹)^{1841,1842,1843,1844,1845,1846,1847} was born 11 Nov 1857 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 18 Feb 1914 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy. She married Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi^{1848,1849,1850,1851,1852,1853,1854,1855} 12 Sep 1880 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, son of Vito Zizzi and Vit'Antonia Zizzi. He was born 26 Apr 1851 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 31 Dec 1915 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy¹⁸⁵⁶.

Notes for Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi:

Giuseppe Domenico's baptism record mistakenly referred to him in the margin as "Giuseppe Domenico Semeraro", although in the text the surname "Zizzi" is correctly used.

According to Palma Zizzi, from stories told to her by her husband's father, Giuseppe Domenico often beat his children, especially my grandfather, Vitantonio, because he refused to believe them when they gave explanations for their behavior. She also told me that his acquaintances sometimes taunted him. Once, when he was working in the town of Carovigno, the men with he was have having dinner told him that his wife was cheating on him. He apparently dropped everything, walked all the way home to check on her (a trip of 4-5 hours) and then walked all the way back, arriving just in time for work the next morning. Finally, Palma Zizzi recounted that he was known for his tremendous appetite: He was once ate servings of beans intended to feed 7 people!

Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi and his wife and children lived at what is today no. 40/A Localita Pistone, in the countryside near the subdivision of Marinelli, in Cisternino. Interestingly, on my visit there on 15 July 2007, I was informed that a former president of the Italian Parliament (Casini) had just purchased and was renovating several trulli literally 50 meters from where Giuseppe Domenico lived.

Nunzio¹¹ Semeraro (Cosimo Damiano¹⁰, Nunzio Oronzo⁹, Maria Giuseppa⁸ D'Amico, Maria Maddalena⁷ Blonda, Antonia Maria⁶ D'Errico, Francesco Antonio⁵, Perna Antonia⁴ Zizzi, Palmantonio³, Giovanni Antonio², Belduno¹)^{1859,1860,1861,1862,1863,1864,1865,1866,1867,1868} was born 25 Jan 1859 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 02 Jan 1918 in Barbour County, West Virginia. He married Anna Isabella Molendini^{1869,1870,1871,1872,1873,1874,1875,1876,1877} Feb 1883 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, daughter of Martino Molendini and Elisabetta Baldassarre. She was born 22 Feb 1863, and died 23 Jan 1937 in Utica, New York.

Notes for Nunzio Semeraro:
Nunzio, together with his wife Anna and their children Giuditta, Teresa, Cosimo and Martino, emigrated to the United States to join his daughter Elisabetta, who had earlier accompanied her husband Vitantonio Zizzi to West Virginia. The family sailed from Napoli on November 15, 1916, on the Re d'Italia, arriving in New York on December 10 that same year. Immigration officials detained the six Semeraros for a day before releasing them for fear that they were "likely to become public charges". Annina (Anna) Agnes Zizzi indicates that this was because Cosimo had respiratory problems.

Nunzio moved the family to West Virginia and labored in several mines in the northwestern part of the state. One tragic day, Nunzio's son Martino fell ill. Nunzio substituted for him in the mines that day but did not return alive, perishing instead when a tunnel collapsed.

He married Elisabetta Maria Semeraro^{1913,1914,1915,1916,1917,1918,1919,1920,1921,1922} 09 Feb 1914 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, daughter of Nunzio Semeraro and Anna Molendini. She was born 14 Aug 1890 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 18 Nov 1979 in Utica, New York.

Notes for Vitantonio Zizzi:

Vitantonio's godmother was his aunt Maria Concetta Zizzi and his godfather appears to have been his paternal grandfather.

Vitantonio may have traveled from Italy to the United States three times. With several cousins, he may have sailed from Napoli on May 31, 1907 on the Königen Luise, arriving in New York on June 14. Destination: the home of a cousin, Francesco Zizzi, in Corinthe, West Virginia, perhaps to scout out work possibilities. If that Vitantonio Zizzi was indeed he, it is not known when he returned to Italy. Immigration records indicate that he probably re-entered the United States, via New York, on November 25, 1910, this time with his brother Giovanni, on the König Albert, which departed Napoli on November 11. Vitantonio and Giovanni then probably journeyed to Kayford, West Virginia this time, to the home of their cousin Vito Domenico Zizzi.

Again, if that was indeed my grandfather, exactly when he went back to Italy is unknown. Apparently, he traveled all the way back to Cisternino to find a bride. According to his daughter Margherita (Mary) Zizzi, Vitantonio went to the home of Nunzio Semeraro to request the hand of one of his daughters in marriage. Cosimo wanted to marry off Elisabetta, the eldest, but she was not immediately taken with Vitantonio. Only reluctantly did Elisabetta consent to wed Vitantonio. The couple soon found themselves leaving the Bay of Napoli on the Regina d'Italia, on March 17, 1914, arriving New York on April 3, 1914 after port calls in Palermo and Genoa.

In 1986, when my Uncle Cosmo and Aunt Ruff Zizzi and I spent an afternoon at the U.S. Archives in Washington, DC, we found what we concluded were immigration records for Vitantonio Zizzi and his family. I have no doubt about the relevancy of the records for the Semeraros (see information on Nunzio Semeraro and Anna Isabella Molendini) and for the time Vitantonio and his wife Elisabetta entered together. The record from November 1910, for a Vito Zizzi and a Giovanni Zizzi, is also probably relevant, although the age listed for Vito is drastically inaccurate (by around 6 years). This record probably pertains to my grandfather because (1) Vitantonio's brother Giovanni is not listed in later entry records with any other immigrating family members, (2) family tradition has it that the two brothers arrived together but that Vitantonio returned to Italy alone and (3) Giovanni's wife's obituary states that she immigrated to the United States from Italy in November 1910 -- making it likely that she met her future husband en route. The first record that we saved from 1907 is, however, questionable. We decided it related to Vitantonio Zizzi simply because of the name and the destination, and because the 1910 record indicated that he had been in the United States previously. That "Vito Zizzi" may, though, have been a cousin. There were numerous Vitantonio and Vito Zizzis from Cisternino, all about the same age, all related. Why? The practice of naming children resulted in the eldest male grandsons getting their paternal grandfather's name. So in a Vitantonio Zizzi family with six sons (i.e. the family of my great-great-grandfather), THEIR firstborn sons were all named "Vitantonio." That's five "Vitantonio Zizzis" besides my own grandfather. Plus, to confuse matters, "Vito" was considered a different name: hence my grandfather's brother was named "Vito", after his MATERNAL grandfather, Vito Zizzi. The upshot of all this is that I am only confident of the later two immigration records (the Zizzi-Semeraro record and the later Semeraro family record) and reasonably comfortable with the 1910 record.
