He was born Abt. 16 Mar 1768 in Ostuni, Brindisi, Italy, and died 06 Aug 1845 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

Notes for Francesco Antonio Giuseppe Semeraro:

Francesco was illiterate. On his death record, he is described as a "vaticale", a water bearer. His marriage listing shows him as resident of Ostuni at the time of his marriage.

His surname on his baptism record is shown as "Semerano". On his father's baptism record, the surname is shown as "Zambarano" and on the baptism records of his father's brother's and sisters, the name is shown as "Zamerano". In Cisternino, the name is only ever spelled as "Semeraro", so the range of spellings in Ostuni is intriguing.

71. Leonardo Antonio⁸ Molendini (Pasqua Anna⁷ Amati, Francesco Quirico⁶, Oronzo⁵, Isabella⁴ Zizzi, Leonardo³, Teofilo², Leonardo¹)^{280,281,282,283,284,285,286} was born Abt. 29 Mar 1766 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 23 Nov 1820 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy. He married (1) Lucia Fumarola^{287,288,289,290,291} 16 Jul 1789 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, daughter of Domenico Fumarola and Maria D'Errico. She was born Abt. 28 Apr 1772 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 09 Jan 1811 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy. He married (2) Marianna Africo²⁹¹ 15 Feb 1819 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy. She was born Abt. 1790.

Notes for Leonardo Antonio Molendini:

On the death record of his son Oronzio Paolo and on the record of his own second marriage, he is referred to as "Lonardo".

The record of his second marriage and some of the marriage records he signed as a witness indicates that he was a pharmacist. He is referred to as "magnifico" on the records of his first marriage and the baptism of his son Oronzio Paolo Molendini. A birth record he witnessed in 1810 refers to him as a "cancelliere", or clerk of the court.

Notes for Lucia Fumarola:

On the baptism and death records of her son Oronzio Paolo Molendini and on the record of her husband's second marriage she is referred to as "Lucia", but in her marriage record, she is referred to "Leonarda Maria". Marriage records for the period of 15 years before and after the likely birth of Oronzio Paolo do not indicate any additional marriages for Leonardo Antonio or for any Molendini with a similar name. Further, her son Oronzio Paolo Molendini named a daughter Lucia Maria. Therefore, Lucia may be a nickname or the reference to Leonarda may have been an error.

76. Nunzio Oronzo⁹ Semeraro (Maria Giuseppa⁸ D'Amico, Francescantonio⁷, Maria Giuseppa Agnese⁶ Amati, Francesco Antonio⁵, Isabella⁴ Zizzi, Leonardo³, Teofilo², Leonardo¹)^{293,294,295,296,297,298,299,300,301,302,303,304,305,306,307,308,309,310} was born Abt. 01 Feb 1803 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died Aft. 1865. He married Maria Teresa Gasparro^{311,312,313,314,315,316,317,318,319,320,321} 24 Dec 1828 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, daughter of Nicola Gasparro and Maria Blonda. She was born Abt. 1808 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died Aft. 1865.

Notes for Nunzio Oronzo Semeraro:

Nunzio was illiterate. He is described alternately in his own marriage record and in his children's birth and death records as a (1) "massaro", or supervisor of a "masseria", a plantation; a (2) "contadino", a peasant farmer and (3) a "vaticale", or water bearer.

Notes for Maria Teresa Gasparro:

Teresa was employed as a spinner of thread prior to her marriage.

He married (2) Antonia Ancona³³⁴ 26 Aug 1861 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

Notes for Francesco Antonio Zizzi:

According to Lynel Marie Rumbutis-Davis, Francesco Antonio Zizzi might have remarried and move with one or more sons to Argentina. I personally have spoken to Maria Zizzi, who lives in Mendoza, Argentina. She indicated that her grandfather Ugo Zizzi moved to Argentina from Italy in the late 1800s. It is possible that Ugo's father is Francesco Antonio Zizzi.

He was born 07 May 1820 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died Aft. 06 Sep 1869.

Notes for Angela Maria Santoro:
Angela Maria was illiterate.

Three Santoro families are listed in Crollalanza as nobility, all in southern Italy (Messina, Lecce and Matera, in Basilicata). Santoro is, however, a very common name.

Notes for Vito Francesco Zizzi:
Vito Francesco was illiterate. His daughter Margherita's birth record indicates that he was a "massaro", or supervisor of a "masseria", a plantation.

According to Palma Zizzi, 3 sons left Italy, perhaps to live in the United States.

83. Oronzio Paolo⁹ Molendini (Leonardo Antonio⁸, Pasqua Anna⁷ Amati, Francesco Quirico⁶, Oronzo⁵, Isabella⁴ Zizzi, Leonardo³, Teofilo², Leonardo¹)^{375,376,377,378,379,380,381,382,383,384,385,386,387,388,389,390,391,392} was born Abt. 18 Sep 1790 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 11 Aug 1849 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy. He married Anna Isabella Sportelli^{393,394,395,396,397,398,399,400,401,402,403,404,405,406}, daughter of Martino Sportelli and Grazia

Neglia. She was born Abt. 1793, and died 06 Feb 1887 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

Notes for Oronzio Paolo Molendini:

Oronzio Paolo signed as witness on a large number of birth and marriage records in Cisternino beginning in 1809 and continuing at least through 1813. He is cited alternately as a civil servant, a student and a pharmacist, although his death record and the birth record of his son Martino indicate that he was a pharmacist. Given that his family was prominent, Oronzio Paolo probably had an "in" to earn extra money by witnessing the recordation of births and marriages. Indeed, the 1809 records that he witnessed give his age as 21, when he in fact was only 19. This may have been done to allow him to act as witness and get paid even though he may technically have been a minor.

Notes for Anna Isabella Sportelli:

No record of Anna Isabella's marriage to Oronzio Paolo was found in either the civil registry or the parish archives in Cisternino, indicating that they may have married in another town, although the Cisternino parish archive marriage records are missing for the years 1809-1815.

The baptism record of Lucia Molendini (b. 1813) shows parents as Oronzio Paolo Molendini and Anna Isabella Simeone (with father named Martino Simeone), but the baptism record of Leonard'Antonio Molendini and the death record of Anna Isabella herself show her father to be Martino Sportelli.

Children of Oronzio Molendini and Anna Sportelli are:

- 108 i. Lucia¹⁰ Molendini^{407,408}, born 01 Jul 1813 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy.

91. Cosimo Damiano¹⁰ Semeraro (Nunzio Oronzo⁹, Maria Giuseppa⁸ D'Amico, Francescantonio⁷, Maria Giuseppa Agnese⁶ Amati, Francesco Antonio⁵, Isabella⁴ Zizzi, Leonardo³, Teofilo², Leonardo¹)^{417,418,419,420,421,422,423,424,425,426,427,428,429,430,431,432,433,434,435,436,437,438} was born 04 Mar 1839 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died Aft. 1865. He married Giuditta Ardente^{439,440,441,442,443,444,445,446,447,448,449,450,451,452,453,454,455,456,457} 17 Apr 1856 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy⁴⁵⁸. She was born 09 Nov 1841 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died Aft. 1865.

Notes for Cosimo Damiano Semeraro:

A stonemason by trade, Cosimo was the first in the Semeraro line to abandon farming. It appears that he may have been apprenticed to a stonemason named Girolamo Angiolla. I deduce this for several reasons. First, the traditional way in which Italians at that time named their children was initially after the father's parents, then the mother's parents, then alternating between the eldest of the father's siblings and the eldest of the mother's siblings. Recall that Giuditta was a foundling and therefore of unknown parentage, so the names of her parents and siblings could not have been used. Cosimo and Giuditta followed this pattern for the first female child, who was named Maria Teresa and the second and third male children, who were named Nunzio (child number two died before the third was born). One would expect the fourth child to have been named after Cosimo's eldest brother, Francesco.

However, the couple chose the name Girolamo. Girolamo died, but the sixth child was again given the name Girolamo. The couple's break with the traditional pattern of bestowing names shows that they had great respect for someone named Girolamo.

Second, the later Girolamo's birth record refers to Girolamo Angiolla, a 60-year-old stonemason who accompanied Cosimo to the Cisternino municipal offices to report the birth. That this Girolamo was both a stonemason and a generation older than Cosimo may indicate a mentor relationship that would have arisen during an apprenticeship.

Cosimo appears to have been illiterate. Although he signed his own marriage certificate, each of the birth records of his children states that he was illiterate (and therefore could not attest to the truth of his statements by signing the record).

Notes for Giuditta Ardente:

Giuditta was abandoned at birth, probably on the steps of the Church of San Nicola, as was the custom at that time in Italy. Her surname Ardente means "spirited, ardent". Such a name, known as an "augurale", was given to foundlings and illegitimate children, which were quite common in Italy due to the extreme poverty and inheritance by the eldest male of all the family land, and therefore wealth. (For more information on foundlings, illegitimate children and orphans in Italy, see "Italian Genealogical Records", by Trafford R. Cole.) Although Giuditta's marriage banns indicate that the lineage on her maternal side was "recognized" and that a death record for her mother was provided, these may have been formalities required by the Catholic Church to permit her to be married.

Also, the marriage banns refers to her as "Giuditta Ardente Antico." This surname never again appears in the birth records of her children that I examined. It may simply reflect the fact that she was living with someone named Maria Rosa Antico, perhaps having been taken in as a child to act as a servant for the Antico family.

Marriage Notes for Cosimo Semeraro and Giuditta Ardente:

As is evident from the dates, Giuditta was pregnant prior to marriage. In fact Cosimo was only 17 years old, while Giuditta was a mere 14! Although nowadays there is a common misconception to the contrary, these were not average marriage ages at that time.

Giuditta reportedly gave birth to 21 children.

She married Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi^{515,516,517,518,519,520,521,522} 12 Sep 1880 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, son of Vito Zizzi and Vit'Antonia Zizzi. He was born 26 Apr 1851 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 31 Dec 1915 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy⁵²³.

Notes for Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi:

Giuseppe Domenico's baptism record mistakenly referred to him in the margin as "Giuseppe Domenico Semeraro", although in the text the surname "Zizzi" is correctly used.

According to Palma Zizzi, from stories told to her by her husband's father, Giuseppe Domenico often beat his children, especially my grandfather, Vitantonio, because he refused to believe them when they gave explanations for their behavior. She also told me that his acquaintances sometimes taunted him. Once, when he was working in the town of Carovigno, the men with he was have having dinner told him that his wife was cheating on him. He apparently dropped everything, walked all the way home to check on her (a trip of 4-5 hours) and then walked all the way back, arriving just in time for work the next morning. Finally, Palma Zizzi recounted that he was known for his tremendous appetite: He was once ate servings of beans intended to feed 7 people!

Giuseppe Domenico Zizzi and his wife and children lived at what is today no. 40/A Localita Pistone, in the countryside near the subdivision of Marinelli, in Cisternino. Interestingly, on my visit there on 15 July 2007, I was informed that a former president of the Italian Parliament (Casini) had just purchased and was renovating several trulli literally 50 meters from where Giuseppe Domenico lived.

Notes for Vito Zizzi:

Of the Zizzis who remained in Italy, the most tragic story concerns Vitantonio's brother Vito, who lived in a "trullo" (a regionally traditional whitewashed stone house with cone-shaped roof) in rural Cisternino (at what is today no. 2 Contrada Marinelli, in the locality known as "Tirunno") with his wife Maria and three daughters. According to my Aunt Margaret (Mary) Zizzi, his wife was seeing a young man who convinced her that she was unworthy of receiving the Holy Sacrament and that the only way to cleanse herself was to purify herself with blood - the blood of her husband. Francesca Zizzi (mother of Vito Antonio Zizzi), however, informed me in July 2007 that the young man (known as "Ciannuddu" or "Cenedd") was false prophet, who claimed to communicate with the Virgin Mary and who even was accepted and encouraged by the local church.

Though Maria Zizzi had nursed Vito Zizzi back to health following an illness, she one day acted: while he was sleeping in bed, Maria split his head open with a hammer. The three daughters remained in the trullo, perhaps in the care of relatives, until they, one by one, married. Maria spent several years in an asylum in Lecce but was released in the 1960s, at which time she sold the trullo and land and (according to her daughter Margherita Zizzi) gave not so much as a lira to her daughters, though she later depended on them when she grew old.

111. Martino Raffaele¹⁰ Molendini (Oronzio Paolo⁹, Leonardo Antonio⁸, Pasqua Anna⁷ Amati, Francesco Quirico⁶, Oronzo⁵, Isabella⁴ Zizzi, Leonardo³, Teofilo², Leonardo¹)^{532,533,534,535,536,537,538,539,540,541} was born 22 Apr 1821 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died Aft. 1865. He married Elisabetta Baldassarre^{542,543,544,545,546,547,548,549,550,551} 22 Dec 1854 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, daughter of Vincenzo Baldassarre and Tommasa Castrignano. She was born 08 Oct 1829 in Monopoli, Bari, Italy, and died Aft. 1865.

Notes for Martino Raffaele Molendini:

Martino signed his own name on the birth records of his daughters Anna Isabella Nicola and Anna Isabella as well as on his marriage certificate and therefore was at least partially literate. His profession on his marriage record, on his daughter Anna Isabella Nicola's death record and on his daughter Anna Isabella's birth record is cited as "orefice", or goldsmith; however, on his son Lonardantonio's death record in 1863, he is listed as a peasant farmer. His father-in-law also was a goldsmith, indicating that Martino may have met his wife while apprenticed to Vincenzo Baldassarre.

Notes for Elisabetta Baldassarre:

Also spelled "Baldassarri" and "Baldassarro" (in the same document, Elisabetta's birth record), as well as "Baldassarre" (in daughter Anna Isabella's birth record and the marriage record of Vincenzo Baldassarre and Tommasa Castrignano (where it is also signed by both Vincenzo and his father Gianbattisa as "Baldassarri")).

He married Anna Isabella Molendini^{569,570,571,572,573,574,575,576,577} Feb 1883 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, daughter of Martino Molendini and Elisabetta Baldassarre. She was born 22 Feb 1863, and died 23 Jan 1937 in Utica, New York.

Notes for Nunzio Semeraro:

Nunzio, together with his wife Anna and their children Giuditta, Teresa, Cosimo and Martino, emigrated to the United States to join his daughter Elisabetta, who had earlier accompanied her husband Vitantonio Zizzi to West Virginia. The family sailed from Napoli on November 15, 1916, on the Re d'Italia, arriving in New York on December 10 that same year. Immigration officials detained the six Semeraros for a day before releasing them for fear that they were "likely to become public charges". Annina (Anna) Agnes Zizzi indicates that this was because Cosimo had respiratory problems.

Nunzio moved the family to West Virginia and labored in several mines in the northwestern part of the state. One tragic day, Nunzio's son Martino fell ill. Nunzio substituted for him in the mines that day but did not return alive, perishing instead when a tunnel collapsed.

He married Elisabetta Maria Semeraro^{613,614,615,616,617,618,619,620,621,622} 09 Feb 1914 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, daughter of Nunzio Semeraro and Anna Molendini. She was born 14 Aug 1890 in Cisternino, Brindisi, Italy, and died 18 Nov 1979 in Utica, New York.

Notes for Vitantonio Zizzi:

Vitantonio's godmother was his aunt Maria Concetta Zizzi and his godfather appears to have been his paternal grandfather.

Vitantonio may have traveled from Italy to the United States three times. With several cousins, he may have sailed from Napoli on May 31, 1907 on the Königen Luise, arriving in New York on June 14. Destination: the home of a cousin, Francesco Zizzi, in Corinthe, West Virginia, perhaps to scout out work possibilities. If that Vitantonio Zizzi was indeed he, it is not known when he returned to Italy. Immigration records indicate that he probably re-entered the United States, via New York, on November 25, 1910, this time with his brother Giovanni, on the König Albert, which departed Napoli on November 11. Vitantonio and Giovanni then probably journeyed to Kayford, West Virginia this time, to the home of their cousin Vito Domenico Zizzi.

Again, if that was indeed my grandfather, exactly when he went back to Italy is unknown. Apparently, he traveled all the way back to Cisternino to find a bride. According to his daughter Margherita (Mary) Zizzi, Vitantonio went to the home of Nunzio Semeraro to request the hand of one of his daughters in marriage. Cosimo wanted to marry off Elisabetta, the eldest, but she was not immediately taken with Vitantonio. Only reluctantly did Elisabetta consent to wed Vitantonio. The couple soon found themselves leaving the Bay of Napoli on the Regina d'Italia, on March 17, 1914, arriving New York on April 3, 1914 after port calls in Palermo and Genoa.

In 1986, when my Uncle Cosmo and Aunt Ruff Zizzi and I spent an afternoon at the U.S. Archives in Washington, DC, we found what we concluded were immigration records for Vitantonio Zizzi and his family. I have no doubt about the relevancy of the records for the Semeraros (see information on Nunzio Semeraro and Anna Isabella Molendini) and for the time Vitantonio and his wife Elisabetta entered together. The record from November 1910, for a Vito Zizzi and a Giovanni Zizzi, is also probably relevant, although the age listed for Vito is drastically inaccurate (by around 6 years). This record probably pertains to my grandfather because (1) Vitantonio's brother Giovanni is not listed in later entry records with any other immigrating family members, (2) family tradition has it that the two brothers arrived together but that Vitantonio returned to Italy alone and (3) Giovanni's wife's obituary states that she immigrated to the United States from Italy in November 1910 -- making it likely that she met her future husband en route. The first record that we saved from 1907 is, however, questionable. We decided it related to Vitantonio Zizzi simply because of the name and the destination, and because the 1910 record indicated that he had been in the United States previously. That "Vito Zizzi" may, though, have been a cousin. There were numerous Vitantonio and Vito Zizzis from Cisternino, all about the same age, all related. Why? The practice of naming children resulted in the eldest male grandsons getting their paternal grandfather's name. So in a Vitantonio Zizzi family with six sons (i.e. the family of my great-great-grandfather), THEIR firstborn sons were all named "Vitantonio." That's five "Vitantonio Zizzis" besides my own grandfather. Plus, to confuse matters, "Vito" was considered a different name: hence my grandfather's brother was named "Vito", after his MATERNAL grandfather, Vito Zizzi. The upshot of all this is that I am only confident of the later two immigration records (the Zizzi-Semeraro record and the later Semeraro family record) and reasonably comfortable with the 1910 record.

That Anna's second husband was not catholic but rather a member of an evangelical Christian denomination proved to be a contentious issue in the family. Some blamed Elisabetta, the eldest child, for allowing her mother to marry this fellow, a philanderer whom she ultimately left.
